Togliatti, Italian Red Chief, Shot By Assassin

Transfusions Rally Gravely Wounded Leader; General Protest Strike Called

Rome, July 14 (AP).—A Sicilian law student shot and dangerously wounded Italy's top Communist, Palmiro Togliatti, today. Five persons were killed in Communist-inspired rioting and a general strike was called in protest against the attempted assassination.

Late tonight doctors said the 55-year-old Togliatti was slightly improved. He still is suffering shock from three gunshot wounds received just before noon as he was leaving the Chamber of Deputies to buy ice cream.

The doctors said there are no complications after an operation to remove the slugs. Nearly two quarts of blood were given in transfusions.

Italy was tense. Many citizens feared the shooting might give the extreme left a pretext to seize the power denied it in the April elections.

As violence grew, the Communist-dominated General Labor Confederation called the general strike, to begin at midnight.

No time limit was set for the walkout, which threatens to paralyze Italy's food, transport and industry.

After a three-hour meeting of the confederation's executive committee, observers said the labor leaders might keep the strike in force in an attempt to force the resignation of the De Gasperi government.

Two persons were killed in Naples, one a Communist and the other a student demonstrator. One policeman was knifed to death in Leghorn, one alleged Fascist was lynched in Pisa, and a Communist demonstrator was killed in Taranto.

Scores were reported injured in the fighting.

The General Labor Confederation said strikes, flaring like wild-

New Army Rank To Put Private On Second Rung

By The Associated Press

The private is going to lose his place as the lowest man in the Army's wondrous system of grades and ranks.

On August 1, the low man will be "recruit," under a reshuffling of grades for enlisted men. The private will become the present "Pfc," private first class.

The new classifications, accompanied by a change in types of chevrons denoting grade, are part of several changes based on the Army's "career plan" for promotion of enlisted men.

Here are the present grades and the new titles: master sergeant or first sergeant, new title same; technical sergeant, sergeant first class; staff sergeant or technical third grade, sergeant; sergeant or technicians fourth grade, corporal; corporal or technician fifth grade, private first class; private first class, private; private, recruit.

Russia Rejects Big-3 Demand To End Its Blockade of Berlin

Anglo-U. S. Forces Set Record in Carrying Supplies to City

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

Berlin, July 14.—American-British task forces in the cold-war battle for Germany's capital scored a victory today, bringing in a record total of supplies for this beleaguered city.

More than 2200 tons of food and coal were delivered during the 24-hour period ending at 4 p. m., as clearing skies permitted near-maximum effort.

Berliners heard the comforting continuous roar of planes overhead while awaiting word of the Russian reply to the Allied notes demanding the blockade be lifted.

All concede the airlift job has been a tremendous one, beautifully handled. As a demonstration of the power of the Western allies, it already has made its mark.

To get a complete picture of the unparalleled aerial supply campaign this reporter flew over the "Berlin Express" route in a DC-4. Here's how it works:

Four-engined DC-4s and twin-engined DC-3s take off in split-second timing from American bases at Frankfurt and Wiesbaden in round-the-clock operations. Flying down the 20-mile-wide air corridor

Note Hints All Issues Concerning Germany Should Be Discussed

Russia rejected yesterday the demands of the United States, Britain and France for an end to the Soviet blockade of Berlin.

In a note delivered by Soviet ambassadors here, in London and Paris, the Russians refused to lift the blockade as a condition for negotiations on the Berlin situation or the whole German problem.

The Soviet reply to the three-power protest of July 6 blamed the Berlin situation on alleged violations by the western powers of four-power agreements on the Berlin and German occupations.

A suggestion that the only worthwhile talks would have to include the entire scope of East-West issues on Germany was contained in the Soviet note but the Russians did not offer to lift the blockade even for such general discussions.

Diplomatic officials here said the Soviet reply constitutes an outright rejection of the three-power protest and proposals, that it offers no counter-proposal as a basis for negotiation and that it leaves the Berlin situation deadlocked right where it was.

Diplomatic officials would not speculate on what the western powers would do to break the blockade threatening starvation of the 2,500,000 Germans in the western sectors of Berlin.

The Soviet reply came eight

Soviet Blocks U. S. Proposal For Palestine

Council Near Vote When Gromyko Asks Bernadotte Ouster

Lake Success, July 14 (AP).—Russia tonight suddenly objected to several key sections of the American proposal for ending the Palestine war. The Soviet stand threatened to delay or even kill the plan for the Security Council to issue a cease-fire order to the Jews and Arabs.

Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko raised his objections and made counter-proposals just as the Council appeared to be nearing a vote.

The American plan had six affirmative votes pledged, but seven are needed and Russia thus appeared to be in a position to force a series of changes and deletions.

Council President Dmitri Z. Manuilsky of the Soviet Ukraine hurriedly adjourned the meeting after Gromyko's speech and delegates went into private huddles in an attempt to reach some agreement. The Council will convene again Thursday.

If accepted, the Soviet counter-proposals would eliminate Count Folke Bernadotte from the picture. The United States resolution provides for the U. N. mediator to supervise a truce of unlimited duration and continue efforts at

Year in Jail Given 19 in Rocway Raid

Gambling Operators, Owner, Employes Get Maximum Sentences

By Murrey Marder
Post Reporter

Ellicott City, Md., July 14.—Nineteen of the 21 persons seized in the June 5 raid on the Rocway Towers gambling casino today were given maximum sentences of one year in jail.

Most of the men convicted are from the Washington area. The mass sentences were said to be among the heaviest ever imposed in Maryland on gaming charges, which are misdemeanors in this State.

In pronouncing sentence, Circuit Judge James Clark, who presided at the two-day trial without a jury, regretted he could not assess a heavier penalty.

"I am restricted by the Code (of Maryland) to either fining you $500 or sentencing you to prison for not more than one year. . . .

"This is the one way, and the only way, to keep gamblers out of our county," he declared.

Acquitted by Judge Clark were Robert E. Meyers, Silver Hill, and William H. Garner, 115 Worthington dr., Yorktowne Village. Judge Clark declared there was a "reasonable doubt" as to their guilt.

During the trial, statements allegedly made by Meyers and Garner were introduced, stating they had been employed at Rocway Towers but resigned before the raid on the castlelike roadhouse near Laurel.

Meyers and Garner, like the other defendants, had also been indicted on conspiracy charges which are still pending, and the pair were continued free on $1000 bonds. Those convicted were im-

Victors Hail Stand as New 'Emancipation Proclamation'

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

Philadelphia, July 14.—The Northern liberal wing of the Democratic Party today completely routed Dixie's States' rights forces to nail a sweeping civil rights plank into the Democratic platform.

By a roll call vote 651½ to 582½, the convention spelled out four basic civil rights in a plank liberals hailed as a "new emancipation proclamation."

The delegates then ratified without a murmur the 4600-word "Roosevelt-Truman" platform that missed by one plank its own party harmony goal.

Three-Hour Debate

The civil rights upset followed a boisterous three-hour debate, the first on a platform since 1924. Dixie rebels charged "repeal of the Constitution." Northern liberals demonstrated for 10 minutes and proclaimed human rights "the great issue of the twentieth century."

The vote blew the compromise civil rights lid off the platform and drove into it this resounding plank:

"We highly commend President Harry Truman for his courageous stand on the issue of civil rights."

"We call upon the Congress to support our President in guaranteeing these basic and fundamental rights (1) the right of full and equal political participation, (2) the right to equal opportunity of employment, (3) the right of security of person and (4) the right of equal treatment in the service and defense of our Nation."

States Rights Showdown

The Southerners, only mildly objecting to the Resolutions Committee's middle-of-the-road civil rights plank, had invited a showdown on States rights instead.

Led by former Gov. Dan Moody of Texas, they submitted three separate planks, ranging from a simple affirmation of States rights to a lengthy commitment to separation of Federal-State powers.

The first was smothered by a 925 to 309 roll call vote and the Southerners knew their show was over. The other two Southern planks were simply shouted down.

Delegate Eugene (Bull) Connor, police commissioner of Birmingham, Ala., frantically sought recognition after the full platform was ratified. Chairman Sam Rayburn gaveled him down, ordered a recess.

Connor told reporters at least part of the Alabama delegation will bolt.

"We're not going to walk, it's too slow," he said. "We are going to fly."

The new civil rights plank was presented to the convention by Representative Andrew J. Biemiller (Wis.) in a minority report signed also by Mayor Hubert H.

Mississippi's Governor Calls Rump Meeting

States' Rights Group Plans to Nominate Opponent to Truman

Philadelphia, July 14 (AP).—Gov. Fielding Wright of Mississippi formally called tonight for a meeting of Dixie Democrats in Birmingham, Ala., on Saturday to designate a "States rights" Democratic candidate for President, opposing Harry S. Truman.

He issued the call shortly after the Mississippi delegation and half the Alabama delegates had stalked out of the Philadelphia convention in protest against the convention's indorsement of Mr. Truman's civil rights program.

"The Mississippi delegation is on its way to Birmingham," he told a reporter. "There will be a good many other States represented."

He said the Birmingham conference will suggest a man for the individual Southern States to nominate for President. The meeting will write a States' rights platform, he said.

Minneapolis Mayor Stars At Convention

By J. R. Wiggins
Post Reporter

Philadelphia, July 14.—"Humphrey was here!"

This succinct announcement, printed in black letters on white stickers, put in its appearance at the Democratic National Convention last Sunday.

It was plastered on the sides of hotel lobbies and on elevators and lamp posts.

Today it was plastered on the convention itself.

The civil rights planks of the party platform have stuck all over them the blunt declaration, "Humphrey was here."

The 37-year-old mayor of Minneapolis, Hubert H. Humphrey, jr., left his indelible mark on this gathering. It is a mark that makes him, overnight, one of the coming leaders of his party. He definitely is "on his way."

Due more to him than to any other one man the Democratic platform carries the resounding plank that commits the party to support the President in working for "(1) the right of full and equal political participation, (2) the right to equal opportunity of employment, (3) the right of security of person, (4) and the right of equal treatment in the service and defense of our Nation."

Humphrey worked for that plank from the time he got here. He got half of his draft in the platform reported by the majority of the Resolutions Committee. Then, on Tuesday night, the Minnesota delegation instructed him to fight for the full plank with its four principles. Humphrey made his fight in committee and lost. Then he carried it to the floor. He made a ringing speech for it. That speech touched off a resounding demonstration.

When the vote on the minority report that Humphrey had sponsored was reached, a delegate from California rose to ask that it be reread. Chairman Rayburn declined to do so. The California

'We'll Win,' Says Truman In Acceptance

Assails 80th Congress For Refusal to Heed His Recommendations

By the United Press

Philadelphia, July 15 (Thursday).—Following is a running account of President Truman's speech to the Democratic convention beginning just before 2 a. m. today:

I can't tell you how very much I appreciate the honor which you've just conferred on me. I will continue to try to deserve it.

I accept the nomination.

And I want to thank this convention for its unanimous nomination of my good friend and colleague, Senator Barkley of Kentucky.

Promises to Win

He is a great man, a great public servant. Senator Barkley and I will win this election and make the Republicans like it. Don't you forget that.

We'll do that because they're wrong and we're right, and I'll prove it to you in just a few minutes.

This convention met to express the will of the Democratic Party. There have been differences of opinion, and that's the Democratic way. Those differences have been

Heat Drives Truman From Hall to Sidewalk

Philadelphia, July 14 (U.P.).—It got too hot for President Truman in Convention Hall tonight, so he went outside and sat in a chair on the sidewalk.

Truman, 947½; Russell, 263; 13 Alabamans, Mississippi Quit

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

Philadelphia, July 15 (Thursday).—President Truman, accepting the Democratic presidential nomination this morning, announced that he would call Congress back into special session on July 26.

He addressed the Democratic National Convention after he had been nominated for a full term as President on the first ballot and Senator Alben W. Barkley had been chosen as his running mate by acclamation.

"I'm going to call Congress back," he told a cheering, sweating crowd in Convention Hall, "and I'm going to ask them to pass laws to halt rising prices and to solve the housing problem."

Given Tremendous Ovation

It was probably the greatest speech of Mr. Truman's career, and he won a tremendous ovation from the delegates who had just nominated him.

He accused the Republican-dominated Eightieth Congress of inflicting "poppycock" on the American people.

"Give it to 'em, Harry," gallery-ites yelled. "Pour it on."

The Chief Executive startled the great audience and precipitated cheers when he told of one thing he would ask of the special session of Congress.

"I shall ask for a displaced persons bill," he said, "in place of the antisemitic, antiCatholic bill that the Eightieth Congress passed."

He said he would also call for housing and civil rights legislation, increased minimum wages, extension of social security coverage and development of public power for cheap electricity.

The convention adjourned at 2:31 a. m. after Mr. Truman's address.

Senator Barkley, 70-year-old party wheelhorse of Kentucky, was nominated as the 64-year-old President's running mate 30 minutes after Mr. Truman's selection.

"Harry and Alben" go into the 1948 political battle as distinct underdogs. From all indications here this morning, however, they are going to make a fight for it.

Mr. Truman, riding down a futile and feeble Southern revolt, was nominated on the first ballot.

His only serious opponent was Senator Richard B. Russell of Georgia. Earlier Gov. Ben Laney of Arkansas withdrew from the race. The vote was Truman, 947½, and Russell, 263.

Paul V. McNutt, former Governor of Indiana, got half a vote from Vermont.

Senator Barkley was nominated by acclamation. Georgia put Senator Russell into nomination for the No. 2 place, but Russell asked that his name be withdrawn.

The nomination of Barkley was announced at 1:31, amid cheers. A few minutes later the band played "Hail to the Chief" and President Truman and Barkley appeared while the crowd went wild.

The unofficial vote on the Presidential nomination was:

President Truman	947½
Sen. Richard B. Russell	263
Paul V. McNutt	½

Thirty-five Southern delegates, angry over the convention's adoption of a liberal civil-rights plank, "took a walk" before the balloting began tonight.

Thirteen were from Alabama and

Lightning Kills Cheverly Boy As He Looks Out Roof Hole

A lightning bolt ripping through the roof of a barn at 12:50 p. m. yesterday killed a 15-year-old Cheverly, Md., boy who had sought shelter in the structure with four playmates. None of the others was injured.

The victim, Raymond Stanley Weaver, with his brother Paul, 13, and three other boys had been playing in the vicinity of the barn on the old Magruder tract about a mile from the Weaver home, 2409 Cheverly ave. when the storm broke.

The lads scampered for the barn and climbed a ladder to the loft.

According to Paul, Raymond was peering out a hole in the roof when the bolt "seemed to leap" through the opening, striking Raymond in the face.

The lad slumped slowly to the floor, Paul said. The others thought he was "only kidding" until repeated efforts to rouse him failed.

The boys then ran to a neighboring home and the Bladensburg Fire Department rescue squad was summoned. Resuscitation efforts lasting two hours failed, and Raymond was pronounced dead by Dr. J. T. Maloney, Prince Georges County deputy medical examiner, who said death was apparently instantaneous.

"The bolt echoed through the loft like a gunshot," said Charles Holliday, 12, who had gone to the loft with his brother, Robert, 7, the

Montgomery Charter Foes Win Point as Clause Is Ruled Illegal

By Roger Farquhar
Post Reporter

A disputed clause in the Montgomery County charter was ruled unconstitutional yesterday by the County Circuit Court.

The clause stipulates that the annual budget for the county shall be adopted in June instead of May, the month set aside in the charter and the State constitution for enactment of all legislation.

Hubert A. Schneider, Bethesda attorney, filed suit attacking the validity of the clause and contending that budget adoption is a legislative act and, therefore, must be done in May.

Judges Charles W. Woodward and Stedman Prescott upheld this claim and ruled the clause conflicts with that part of the State constitution under which the charter would be adopted.

In reference to this specific point, the jurists in their eight-page written opinion declared: "To most lawyers it is fundamental that appropriation of funds is enacting legislation and until this suit . . . we have never heard it argued to the contrary."

The court ruling does not restrain election officials from placing the charter issue on ballots this fall, although some observers

16c For 'Joint' Trips

Straight 10c Fare Granted Suburban Virginia Bus Lines

The Interstate Commerce Commission yesterday authorized a straight 10-cent fare for two bus lines between the District and nearby Virginia points.

It also approved an increase from 13 1/3 cents to 16 cents on so-called "joint" trips, involving transfer between buses and streetcars of the Capital Transit Co. and buses of the two petitioning firms.

The bus lines involved are the Alexandria, Barcroft and Washington Transit Co. and the Washington, Virginia and Maryland Coach Co., Inc. The new rates may be put into effect on 15 days' notice.

The new straight 10-cent fare replaces a rate of 3 tokens for 25 cents. It applies to rides to and from the Pentagon, Navy Annex, Air Force Annex, National Airport and intermediate stops.

Under the new "joint" rate, Capital Transit would get 7 of the 16 cents, the remainder going to the bus lines. Capital Transit had been getting 5.73 cents of the old 13 1/3 cents rate. Tickets were sold at a rate of 12 rides for $1.60 and would now be $1.92.

A. B. and W. had asked for the 10-cent fare on the interstate rides, while W. V. and M. sought a 12½-cent token.

Togliatti Is 'Brain' of Italian Reds; Reputedly Ordered Duce's Execution

Palmiro Togliatti reputedly ordered the execution of Benito Mussolini.

The strutting Duce was shot by a member of Italy's anti-Fascist underground in 1945. The Communist newspaper L'Unita in Rome said last year that Togliatti, Italian Communist leader who was wounded today, issued the order from Naples.

The affable, puckish-faced Togliatti has been a life-long Communist agitator. Yet he looks more like a professor than a revolutionary. He dresses neatly in dark suits, usually double-breasted. With his wife, Rita Montagnana, another old-line Communist organizer and member of the Italian senate, he lives modestly.

Rates High in Moscow

Togliatti helped organize the Communist International Information Bureau (Cominform).

He also signed the recent Cominform complaint against Premier Marshal Tito and Yugoslav Communist leaders.

After a week spent last month behind the iron curtain in Prague, Bucharest and Budapest, he returned to Rome saying Italy's Communists would wage an all-out fight against the Marshall Plan.

In the early days after the war, when coalition cabinets were the style, he served as Vice Premier and later as Minister of Justice.

Brain of the Party

At 55, Togliatti is the youngest of Italy's top-bracket politicians. None equals the Communist chief for the appearance of smoothly clicking generalship.

He is known as the sharpest of all debaters in the Chamber of Deputies and the all-embracing brain of the Communist Party in Italy. His speeches are gems of wit and knowledge. He speaks quietly, bolstering his Communist points with quotations plucked from an apparently indelible memory of everything from obscure Catholic dogma to Pinocchio.

In Italy he has conducted a three-year experiment in leading his revolutinoary party to power by legal—for the most part—methods. The Italian Communist Party claims 2,252,716 members—the largest in Europe outside Russia.

Yet Togliatti's supreme bid for victory at the polls failed in the April election.

First a Socialist

The Communist chieftain was born in Genoa on March 26, 1893. He came from a lower middle class family. A conservative magazine recently printed one of his report cards, showing he had practically all "A's."

He was first a Socialist. He became a Communist in 1921. When Mussolini came to power in 1922 Togliatti was forced into hiding.

During the Spanish civil war he was in France, Switzerland and Spain. A great part of his exile was spent in Russia, where he became a member of the Comintern. He learned to speak Russian fluently.

From 1941 to the Italian armistice in 1943 he broadcast from Moscow to Italy in Italian. Then he returned to Italy and began building the Communist Party.

fire, had virtually paralyzed industry and transport.

The central union committee of the government-operated railroads said tonight it approved a "spontaneous strike" of its members. This was tantamount to calling a nation-wide railroad strike.

Workers seized the biggest factories in industrial Turin.

The city of Piombino, on the central Mediterranean coast, was reported completely in the hands of Communists.

Police nabbed 25-year-old Antonio Pallante, who fired five bullets at the Moscow-trained Communist leader.

Togliatti was struck as he stepped from the Chamber of Deputies Building just before noon with a Communist woman deputy, Leonilde Iotto. They wera leaving to buy ice cream.

Two bullets penetrated Togliatti's chest. One grazed his neck. The other two missed their mark as Togliatti lay on the pavement.

Togliatti, leader of the largest Communist Party in Europe outside Russia, is rated as Moscow's ablest tactician abroad.

Police questioned his youthful assailant in an effort to determine whether he acted alone or whether—as the Communists and their Socialist allies screamed—another hand armed him.

Without Political Affiliation

They got from him an admission that he had long plotted the attack. He also declared that he had belonged to no political group since he deserted the Liberal Party (conservatives) in 1946.

Police quoted him as saying further that he could not, as an Italian, "tolerate" Togliatti's participation in meetings of the Cominform, the Russian-led Communist International Information Bureau.

(Togliatti attended the last Cominform meeting and signed the declaration denouncing the Yugoslav Communist Party and Premier Marshal Tito.)

"I held him responsible," the youth was quoted as saying, "for the killings of Italians which happened in Italy after their liberation (from the Nazis and Fascists).

"Note well," he was said to have added, "that I mean 'Italians,' not 'Fascists.'"

An eyewitness said Pallante approached the door of the chamber and said he wanted to see Togliatti. Refused, he loitered around the entrance.

As Togliatti emerged, the youth stepped forward. When the Communist leader went to enter his car, Pallante fired.

Togliatti threw up his leather brief case in an attempt to ward off the attack, then crumpled to the ground. He struck his head on the pavement but retained consciousness.

Persons close to him said he asked whether his brief case was safe and then inquired: "Did they arrest the man?"

Civil strife touched off by the attack swept quickly through the land.

In Rome's central Piazza Colonna, thousands of helmeted police fought an afternoon-long, wavering battle with civilians, many of them bare-chested. Shots were fired, stones were thrown.

De Gasper Decries Shooting

Premier de Gasperi, has Christian Democratic Party, his government and the Vatican decried the assassination attempt.

But in Rome and elsewhere Communist agitators were haranguing angry crowds. In the confused fighting around the Piazza Colonna, known Communist agitators could be spotted urging the throng on.

De Gasperi, who hurried to Togliatti's side at the hospital, told newsmen:

"It is the worst thing that could have happened."

In Parliament, Communist Deputy Giancarlo Pajetta demanded a vote of nonconfidence in De Gasperi's government. It was set for debate Thursday.

The Communist Party's executive committee issued a statement accusing De Gasperi of "wounding mortally the democracy and liberty of the Italian people."

It urged the people to demand the resignation of "the government of discord and hunger, the government of civil war."

U. S., British Air Forces Set Record in Supplying Berlin

to Berlin over the Russian zone, they land at Templehoff Airdrom. German laborers quickly unload the craft and they take off within half an hour without refueling.

Although taking some calculated risks in spacing and weather, American airmen avoid one hazard by returning via one of the British corridors to the western zone and then south to their base. The 600-mile-long triangular course thus is a one-way track.

There is one landing or takeoff every minute of the day or night—with a loaded plane putting down at Tempelhof every four minutes. A complicated "block system" is employed to prevent the faster DC-4s—leaving from a different base—from overrunning the DC-3s en route. Fifty-four Skymasters are employed plus 110 Dakotas. Gen. Lucius Clay, American commander, has asked Washington for at least 200 of the former.

British operation is different. They employ Dakotas, Yorks and Sunderland Flying Boats on a two-way course. It is the corridor used by Americans for their return trip. Trouble is avoided by flying close to the ground, while the Yank pilots go "upstairs."

In today's record total, the British flew 222 missions reliably estimated at close to 1000 tons. The American total was 215 trips bringing in 1305 tons. Both nations said it was the biggest day so far.

Until today 98 per cent of the trips have been "on instruments." Brig. Gen. Joseph Smith, commander of the airlift task force, believes the job is the most intensive instrument flying in history.

After July, the weather here gets worse. The accident rate is normal, with three crashes—one fatal—thus far. More can be expected.

Trucks Carry Exact Load

Smith's job starts at the railhead 1½ miles from the field. Army Transportation Corps troops unload supplies and cart to the "ready line" just off the runway. Trailer trucks manned by Negro troops carrying the exact load for each plane, race to the planes as they land. Gangs of Polish and Latvian DPs load them up as the craft are gassed.

Skymasters carry only flour and coal. DC 3s bring in milk, fresh meat, vegetables and canned goods for Allied forces, canned meat, powdered milk and fresh vegetables for Germans, mail and medicine for all. Flour comes from the United States, coal from the Ruhr.

Sixty-five per cent of the 54 DC-4s and 110 DC-3s are in operation 24 hours daily, with the remainder undergoing maintenance. Pilots were brought from all over the European theater to help and extra mechanics were flown from home.

Flight crews are on duty 16 hours straight and then off for the same period. Transportation troops work 12 hours daily. It is a seven-day week for both. Top-ranking officers including Lieut. Gen. Curtis LeMay double as "plane jockeys" on days off.

We flew the run with a crew from the Fifty-fourth Troop Carrier Squadron from Elmendorf Field, Alaska. With 10 tons of flour aboard, the plane took off in clear weather but headed into thick "soup" as it crossed into the Russian zone This iron curtain parted, however, as we reached the Elbe River. Fields below were under heavy cultivation, but no livestock was seen. Cars were a rarity.

Copilot Philip Shoemaker, whose wife lives at Markham, Va., complained the Russians were jamming the radio compass. "Just heckling," said Lieutenant Shoemaker, "for we tune in on the Soviet broadcasting station in Berlin instead."

General Smith later said the jamming was unintentional due to wavering of the Soviet beam.

Other airmen blame the Russians for other heckling, however. A Yak fighter buzzed the British field in Berlin today. Paratroop training was scheduled over the Soviet airdrome at the edge of the British corridor this morning and later called off.

Military Specialist Covers 'Berlin'

Norris

WASHINGTON Post Reporter John G. Norris, flown to Germany to cover the Berlin crisis, is qualified by education and experience for the assignment.

During the past 20 years as a newsman he has specialized in military affairs and knows personally America's famed generals and admirals. He holds a law degree from George Washington University and is well able to understand the legal aspects of the Berlin blockade. And his experience as a war correspondent helps him explain the military situation.

During World War II, Norris served for a time with the Navy air wing in England. He was aboard an aircraft carrier in the invasion of southern France and was later public relations officer for the Iwo Jima invasion. His last service was aboard the flattop Shangri La. Fleet Admiral Nimitz gave him the Navy Commendation for his Pacific service.

Norris has been with The Washington Post since 1938, covering aviation, the Army, Navy and Congress. In 1946, after returning from the Navy, Norris went to Turkey for The Washington Post aboard the battleship Missouri in the first of the "showing-the-flag" operations in the Mediterranean. On his return by way of Greece, Italy, North Africa and Spain, he wrote a series of articles on conditions in those countries. While in Ankara, Turkey, Norris filed a "scoop" on Russian demands on the Turkish government, which was reported in the London papers the next day.

GOP Campaign Headquarters Will Open Here

New York, July 14 (U.P.).—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey disclosed tonight that Republican campaign headquarters this year would be established in Washington instead of New York, where they have been maintained during the past three elections.

In a brief press conference, Dewey announced that the campaign headquarters would be opened some time next week under Herbert Brownell, jr., who will work closely with the GOP National Committee chairman, Representative Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania.

Russia Rejects Big-3 Demand To End Its Blockade of Berlin

days after the United States, Britain and France, in parallel notes, carried the Berlin fight to Moscow with demands for immediate lifting of the blockade as a condition of negotiations confined to the Berlin situation.

The Russian note threw off all pretense that the blockade was caused by the need for repairing rails and roads into the western sectors of Berlin from the occupation zones of western Germany.

Moscow said the blockade, heretofore attributed by the Russians to "technical difficulties" in the supply corridor, actually is necessary to protect the economy of the Soviet zone against such three-power measures as issuance of new currency for the western zones.

One contention of the note was that old and now worthless currency of the western zones would pour into the Soviet zones. Therefore, the Soviets held, they had to protect themselves with controls over the movement of traffic from the western zones.

The one concrete offer was a Soviet statement that it is trying to eliminate the difficulties which produced the blockade and "if necessary, the Soviet government will not object to insuring sufficient supplies for the whole of Greater Berlin by its own means."

It appeared highly doubtful that the Western Powers would give the Russians just what they wanted—full control of the entire city.

Moscow threw back at the Western Powers much the same basic charges that the Western Powers have made against Russia—namely, repeated violations of four-power agreements on the German and Berlin occupations.

The Russians claimed the three powers, by their separate actions in planning for western Germany, and by other acts, such as instituting a separate currency reform, had "rendered null and void their right of participation in the occupation of Berlin."

Mayor Nails Down Civil Rights Plank

HUBERT H. HUMPHREY,
He Was There

Minneapolis Mayor Stars

delegate then asked: "Is that the amendment for which Mayor Humphrey spoke?"

"I am informed that this is the amendment supported by the mayor of Minneapolis," said Rayburn.

"That's all I wanted to know," said the Californian.

The convention then passed the amendment by a vote of 651½ to 582½. At the same time, it put on the road to real political influence the youthful Minneapolis mayor.

Humphrey was born at Dolan, South Dakota. His father later took the family to Huron, S. Dak., where he opened a drugstore. Hubert Humphrey, sr., mixed pharmacy and politics, serving in the Democratic Party and in the State Legislature. His son followed in the father's footsteps.

Started Out as Pharmacist

Hubert, jr., went to the University of Minnesota where he got a degree in pharmacy and went back to the Huron drugstore. After working a while in the drugstore, he returned to the University of Minnesota and got an A. B. degree majoring in political science. Then he went to Louisiana State University as an instructor in political science. He returned to the University of Minnesota as an instructor. Then he ran for mayor of Minneapolis and was defeated. He taught political science at MacAlester College and in 1945 again tried for mayor. This time he won. In 1947, he was given the largest mayoralty vote ever cast in a Minneapolis election. He was overwhelmingly elected, receiving the support of the Central Labor Union and the CIO.

Humphrey is now opposing for the United States Senate Senator Joseph H. Ball. His victory here today no doubt has strengthened him in this race. His chances, however, may be impaired by a diversion of Democratic and farmer-labor strength to a Wallace candidate in Minnesota. In a three-way race, Humphrey undoubtedly would lose. In a two-way race, he would have a better chance.

Fancies His Own Voice

A prominent ADA leader, Humphrey was not for the renomination of President Truman. He fought against an instructed Minnesota delegation, but voted for a resolution indorsing the Administration. He wore a large yellow Truman button when he made his plea for the civil rights planks.

Humphrey undoubtedly likes the sound of his own voice. He has limited terminal facilities. Often he speaks too long. But he always speaks well. And apparently crowds like his voice as well as he does. He sometimes grates on his political colleague's nerves. He tends to monopolize the platform. But public audiences seem not to hold this against him. He is a ready speaker and a great favorite with women's clubs audiences and labor organizations. He broadened out two years ago and became a popular speaker in farm meetings through Midwestern States.

The father, who weaned his son on a mortar and pestle and Democratic political theory, was in the convention today to hear the son's great effort. Hubert H. Humphrey, sr., a good-looking man in his 70's, is a South Dakota delegate. He joined in the applause and helped put South Dakota's votes behind the Humphrey amendment.

"Humphrey was here" is a mark that a lot of Democratic political gatherings are likely to have stuck on them in the next decade.

settled by a majority vote, as they should be. Now it's time for us to get together and beat the common enemy. That's up to you.

We will be working together for victory in a great cause. Victory has become the habit of our party. It has been elected four times in succession and I'm convinced it will be elected a fifth next November.

The reason is that the people know that the Democratic Party is the people's party and the Republican Party is a party of special privilege, and it always has been and always will be.

The record of the Democratic Party is written in the accomplishments of the last 16 years. I don't need to repeat them. They have been ably expressed by the keynote speaker (Barkley).

Confidence and security have been given the American people by the Democratic Party. Never in the world were the farmers of any republic as prosperous as the farmers of the United States. And if they don't do their duty by the Democratic Party, they're the most ungrateful people in the world.

And labor never had but one friend in politics, and that was the Democratic Party and Franklin D. Roosevelt. And I'll say to labor just what I've said about the farmers—they are the most ungrateful people in the world if they do not support the Democratic Party.

Reviews Foreign Policy

The record on foreign policy of the Democratic Party is that the United States has turned away permanently from isolationism and has converted the best Republicans from that policy.

The United States has to accept its full responsibility for leadership in international affairs. We have been the people who organized and started the United Nations, first started by Woodrow Wilson as the League of Nations. The league was sabotaged in 1920.

And we must see that the U. N. continues a strong and growing body so we can have everlasting peace in the world. We removed the trade barriers of the world, and that is the best asset we can have for peace. Those trade barriers must not be put back into operation again.

And I say to you all these things were done in a cooperative, bipartisan manner.

I've said time and time again, a foreign policy should be a policy of the whole nation and not a policy of one party or the other. Partisanship should stop at the water's edge, and I shall continue to preach that throughout this whole campaign.

Blames GOP for Depression

I'd like to say a word or two now about what I think the Republican Party is, and I'll speak from history and experience.

The situation in 1932 was due to the policies of the Republican Party's control of the United States. The Republican Party favors the privileged few and not the common everyday man. Ever since its inception, that party has been under the control of special privilege, and they concretely proved it in the Eightieth Congress.

They proved that by the things they did to the people and by the things they failed to do.

Time and time again I recommended extension of price controls. I asked for that extension in November, 1945, and in the message on the state of the Union in 1946. A price control bill did not get to my desk until the day it was supposed to expire.

It was such a rotten bill I couldn't sign it. And 30 days after that, they sent me one that was just as bad and I had to sign it because they quit and went home.

They (prices) have adjusted themselves all right. They've gone all the way up the chart and adjusted themselves at the expense of the consumer.

Slaps at Congress

I called a special session of Congress in November, 1947, and I set out a 10-point program for the welfare and benefit of this country, among other things standby price controls.

I got nothing. Congress has still done nothing.

Way back 4½ years ago when I was in the Senate we passed a housing bill known as the Wagner-Ellender-Taft bill. It was a bill to clear the slums from the big cities and to help erect low-rent housing.

That bill, as I said, passed the Senate four years ago. It died in the House.

It was reintroduced in the House as the Taft-Wagner-Ellender bill. The House Banking and Currency Committee sat on that bill. It was forced out of the Banking and Currency Committee. And then the Rules Committee took charge. It's still in the Rules Committee.

Taft-Hartley Act Assailed

The bill they call a housing bill isn't worth the paper it's written on.

We needed moderate legislation to promote labor-management relations, but Congress passed the Taft-Hartley Act which will cause strife and ought to be repealed.

I tried to strengthen the Labor Department. The Republican platform in 1944 said if they were in power, they'd build a strong Labor Department. Do you know what they've done? They've torn it up. There's only one bureau left that's functioning, and they cut that so it can hardly function.

I recommended a higher minimum wage. What did I get? Nothing. Absolutely nothing.

Educational Aid

I asked the Congress to provide 300 million dollars to provide aid in the present educational crisis. Congress did nothing about it.

Time and again I recommended improvements in the Social Security law. Increase the amount of the benefits. Congress studied the matter for two years and couldn't find time to increase benefits, but did find time to take Social Security benefits away from 750,000 people. They passed that over my veto.

I asked the Congress to enact a health program. The Nation suffers from a lack of medical care. Something can be done about it.

Everybody knows that I recommended to Congress a civil rights program. I did so because I believed it to be my duty under the Constitution. Some of my own party disagreed violently. But the Republicans all profess to be for these acts.

"Rich Man's Tax Bill"

When tax relief can be given, it ought to go to those who need it most, and not to those who need it least as when these Republicans passed this rich man's tax bill over my veto. Everybody likes low taxes. But we must reduce the national debt in time of prosperity. They passed a tax bill over my veto on the third try. They finally sent a tax bill that was somewhat improved, but it still helps the rich and sticks the knife into the backs of the poor.

Now the Republicans came here a few weeks ago and wrote a platform. I hope you have read that platform. They adopted a platform and that platform had a lot of promises and statements of what the Republican Party would do. They promised to do a lot of things I've been asking them to do and that they refused to do when they had the power.

High Prices Cited

"The Republican platform cried about the cruelly high prices. I have been trying to get them to do something about high prices ever since they met the first time.

Now listen to this one; this one is easily as bad and as cynical. The Republican platform comes out for slum clearance and low rent housing. I've been trying to get them to pass that housing bill ever since they met the first time. And it's still resting in the Rules Committee, that housing bill is.

The Republican platform recommends extending and increasing social security benefits. And yet when they had the opportunity they took 750,000 off the social security rolls.

GOP 'Failures' Listed

I wonder if they think they can fool the people of the United States with such poppycock as that. There's a long list of these promises in the Republican platform and if it weren't so late I'd tell you about all of them.

I've discussed a number of these failures of the Republican Eightieth Congress. A few of them are of major concern, the failure to do anything about high prices and housing.

My duty as President requires me to do everything within my power to get these things done.

I am therefore calling this Congress back in session on the twenty-sixth day of July.

On the 26th day of July, which I will call turnip day, I will call Congress back, and I am going to ask them to pass laws to halt high prices and to pass a housing bill.

'I Shall Ask Them—'

At the same time, I shall ask them to act on other vitally needed measures, such as aid to education, which they say they're for; a national health program; civil rights legislation, which they say they are for, and an increase in the minimum wage, which I doubt very much they're for. And an increase in social security, which they say they're for.

By indirection this Eightieth Congress has tried to sabotage the power policies that have been pursued for 14 years. That power lobby is just as bad as the real estate lobby which is sitting on the housing bill.

I shall ask for an adequate and decent law for displaced persons to replace that anti-Catholic, anti-Semitic law already passed.

Now, my friends, if there's any reality behind that Republican platform, we ought to get some action out of this short session. They could do this job in 15 days if they want to do it. They're going to try to dodge their responsibilities. They are going to try to drag all the red herrings across this campaign. But Senator Barkley and I are not going to let them get away with it.

The American people will not decide by words or platform, but by record. The record is that the stark battle lines of 1948 are the same as they were in 1932. In 1932, we attacked the citadels of special privilege and greed. We attacked the money lenders in the temple. Today in 1948 we are now the defenders of a stronghold of Democracy and of equal opportunity. The battle cry is just the same now as it was in 1932, and I paraphrase the words of Franklin Delano Roosevelt in Chicago:

"This New Crusade"

This is more than a political call to arms. Give me your help not to win votes alone, but to win in this new crusade and keep America secure and safe for its own people.

Now, my friends, with the help of God and the whole-hearted push which you can put behind this campaign, we can save this country from misrule from now on.

I must have your help. You must get in and push and win this election. This country can't afford another Republican Congress.

Solid Gold Admission Badge Given Truman at Convention

Philadelphia, July 14.—President Truman tonight received a solid gold badge good for one free admission to the Democratic convention.

The President received it in the convention hall office of National Chairman J. Howard McGrath.

The badge was presented to Mr. Truman by Senator McGrath a few minutes after the presidential party arrived at the convention hall.

McGrath presented similar badges to Mrs. Truman, and to Miss Margaret Truman, their daughter.

Secret service men set up the strictest security control of the convention hall which veteran observers recalled having ever seen at a public gathering to be attended by the President.

For an hour before the President was to arrive, doors to the hall were rigidly patrolled, and guards were blocking all movement in and out of many doors of the building.

Enthusiastic Democrats Nominate Truman on First Ballot

CANDIDATES—Fr. P. 1

22 from Mississippi. They marched out of the hall behind a Confederate battle flag, vowing to meet in a real Dixieland convention next Saturday at Birmingham, Ala.

Balloting on the presidential nomination began shortly before midnight.

Three names had been put into nomination, those of President Truman, Senator Richard B. Russell of Georgia, and Paul V. McNutt of Indiana.

In advance of the balloting, Gov. Ben Laney of Arkansas withdrew as a candidate.

Gov. Phil M. Donnelly of Missouri placed Mr. Truman in nomination and touched off an uproarious, 40-minute demonstration.

President Truman arrived in Philadelphia at 9:20 and went immediately to Convention Hall. He remained in the office of National Chairman J. Howard McGrath while the oratory was on in advance of the actual balloting.

Governor Laney of Arkansas had not, of course, expected to defeat Mr. Truman for the nomination. His candidacy was supposed to serve merely as a rallying point for the embittered Southerners.

Laney, in withdrawing, said he could not permit his name to be submitted to the convention in view of the civil rights plank which liberal Northern forces hammered into the platform.

He suggested that the Arkansas delegates give their votes to Senator Russell.

Wilson Wyatt, former Mayor of Louisville, Ky., placed the name of Barkley in nomination after Arizona yielded to Kentucky for that purpose.

"He has served the party and served it well," said Wyatt.

"The tougher the fight the more he can be counted upon."

Feared by Republicans

He added that Barkley is the best campaigner in the Nation and is feared by the Republicans in Kentucky as "the iron man."

Referring to Barkley's keynote address here, Wyatt declared it not only electrified the convention but it reawakened the spirit of liberalism throughout the Nation.

As Wyatt finished with the words, "I hereby place in nomination the name of the next Vice President of the United States, Alben W. Barkley" there was a burst of applause.

Throughout the roll call States in a steady procession seconded Barkley's nomination.

Convention Hall was crowded for the first time when permanent Chairman Rayburn called tonight's session to order.

Rayburn had hardly rapped his gavel when Handy Ellis, chairman of the Alabama delegation, arose on a point of personal privilege. He explained that Alabama, in its Democratic primary election, chose 11 presidential electors who were under instructions never to vote for a Republican and never to vote for Harry S. Truman.

He explained further that, in that primary 13 of Alabama's 26 delegates to the Democratic National Convention were under instructions to take a walk if the convention adopted a civil rights plank in line with Mr. Truman's ideas.

He stated, therefore, that the 13 delegates were under the "painful necessity" of leaving the arena. A roar of mingled cheers and boos—the cheers coming from other Dixie delegates but the much louder boos coming from the Northerners and from the galleryites—greeted Ellis' statement.

Ellis and his dissenters marched from the hall with a Confederate battle flag.

They tried to tie it to the Alabama standard, but one of the remaining Alabama delegates hung on to it.

With the departure of Ellis, Senator Lister Hill took over the chairmanship of the Alabama delegation. This remnant was likewise opposed to Mr. Truman, but was not in favor of a "walk."

Hill yielded to Georgia and that State sent Charles J. Bloch of Macon to the rostrum to put in nomination the name of Senator Russell for President.

Bloch termed President Truman's civil rights program a violation of the constitutional guarantees of States rights. In a paraphrase of William Jennings Bryan's famous "cross of gold speech," he said, "you shall not crucify the South on civil rights."

South's Votes Stressed

"The South," he concluded, "is no longer going to be the whipping boy of the Democratic Party and you will learn that without the votes of the South you cannot elect a President of the United States."

He said that if it hadn't been for the South four years ago, Henry Wallace would be sitting in the White House today.

As Bloch finished, the band struck up Dixie, rebel yells arose, and delegates began marching through the aisles carrying the standards of Tennessee, Alabama, Texas, South Carolina, Florida and Georgia.

One delegate waved the State flag of Arkansas.

A man in the gallery shot off a pistol, using blank cartridges.

Truman Forces Take Hand

The Truman forces staged a demonstration of their own during the Dixie uproar, and this angered old Sam Rayburn. He rapped his gavel, ordered that the Southern forces be allowed to blow off steam in their own way, and once again the band struck up Dixie.

The Russell demonstration lasted about 15 minutes.

Arizona yielded to Missouri, and that State's tall, gray-haired Governor, Phil M. Donnelly, strode to the rostrum to put Mr. Truman in nomination.

Governor Donnelly said that the Chief Executive had "earned the undying gratitude of the Nation." He described his fellow Missourian as "a man of the people."

"He understands the problems and speaks the language of the average man and woman," Donnelly said.

The Governor drew cheers when he said that Mr. Truman was "the first President of the United States who is a member of the American Legion and the Veterans of Foreign Wars."

He said that the Nation, after 16 years of Democratic rule, "is enjoying the greatest prosperity in its history" and has "assumed a world position never enjoyed before."

Governor Donnelly concluded his speech at 9:20. The inevitable happened. First, the band struck up the Missouri Waltz. Delegates poured out of their chairs, bearing State standards aloft. Sirens, cowbells, shouts blended in a wild outburst of sound.

Placard Hits GOP

A magnificent Liberty Bell, made up of red, white and blue blossoms, was carried up to the platform. To add to the riot of color, an Indian in full war regalia popped on the scene, waving a placard of President Truman.

To such old tunes as "Happy Days Are Here Again" and "East Side, West Side," the delegates paraded around the hall, yelling and sweating.

One of the placards in the parade said, "Stop Stalin, Back Truman." Another said, "Win With Truman, Foe of Privilege." Still another read, "Not Peace in Our Time, But Peace in All Time."

The most striking placard bore a picture of former United States Senator Grundy of Pennsylvania, an arch Republican.

The legend said, "On With Truman, No Grundy Retreat."

This was a crack at those who clinched the Republican nomination for Gov. Thomas E. Dewey a few weeks back. It was the conservative Grundy forces in the Pennsylvania delegation who came out for the New Yorker and started the stampede for him.

All during tonight's demonstration, many of the Southern delegates remained in their seats, grimly holding on to their State standards lest some Truman zealot snatch them away.

Polio Aid Seen In Inhibiting Blood Agent

New York, July 14 (U.P.).—A mysterious substance in the blood that goes into action when infection strikes may become an aid to early diagnosis in infantile paralysis, two experts disclosed today.

Lack of a diagnostic tool is one of the greatest handicaps in controlling poliomyelitis.

Drs. David Glick and Frank Gollen of the University of Minnesota medical school, described the mysterious substance at the First International Poliomyelitis Conference.

They explained that the substance, known technically as hyaluronidase, is a spreading agent contained in bacteria, virvses, snake bites and bee stings. It hastens the spread of infection by dissolving the material holding tissue cells together.

The Minnesota scientists explained that the human body naturally produces an inhibiting agent in the bloodstream which attempts to control the hyaluronidase. Making a study of animals and in 27 human polio cases, they found that the amount of the inhibiting agent increased in direct proportion to the amount of infection.

"On the average, the increase was 100 per cent above uninfected controls," they said.

On the basis of the work and continuing research, they said, the possibility exists that the "inhibitor factor" may eventually be used to determine the acuteness of polio infection and confirm diagnosis in suspected cases.

As of now, there is no chemical, or drug, being used successfully to treat human polio, such as is used in most other disease. The drug curare has been used, but most polio experts are agreed that it is not successful.

Unspiked Ties Caused Wreck

"Insecure conditions of the track" resulting from repair efforts by a maintenance crew was blamed yesterday for causing the wreck of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad train at Laurel on June 10.

The report by the Interstate Commerce Commission concluded a month-long probe of the accident which cost the life of one man and injured more than 50 persons.

B. & O. officials at Baltimore immediately announced that "the employes responsible for the failure to properly secure the tracks are no longer in the service of the company.

The ICC report found that 27 ties on the curve where the wreck occurred were not spiked at either rail and 31 ties were spiked at only one rail. "At no point throughout a distance of 271 feet west of the point of derailment was there a firm bond existing between the ties and the ballast," the report concluded.

In the District, firemen were brought on the run during the height of the storm that broke shortly after noon, to the home of Col. Franklin H. Gregory, 1855 Taylor st. nw., when fire flared in the basement.

The officer, attached to the Army Air Forces, and his family were out of town at the time. The fire, believed to have started in a radio transmitter did "extensive damage to the basement and lesser smoke damage to the first floor, firemen said. The blaze was quelled in little over an hour.

Little damage was suffered in the District during the rainfall of 1 inch. A tree was reported down at 621 F st. ne., and wires down in the 3000 block of McKinley st. nw.

In Alexandria, laying of a road on Chalfonte dr., was delayed when the downpour washed away a quantity of freshly laid cement. There was no official estimate of the actual damage.

Further showers are expected Thursday night, the Weather Bureau reported, with a high temperature of about 80.

High yesterday was 78 before the storm. Following the rain a drop to 70 was recorded at 1:45 p. m.

Humphrey of Minneapolis and Mrs. Esther Murray (Calif.).

Actually, it was drawn Tuesday night during a 12-State Americans for Democratic Action caucus.

On instructions from his own Minnesoa delegation, Humphrey made a futile fight for it in the resolutions committee early this morning. Humphrey and Biemiller decided to take it to the floor.

In an effort to head off a floor fight, resolutions Chairman Frances Myers (Pa.), Senator Scott Lucas (Ill.) and other Administration members of the platform drafting group had accepted language submitted earlier by Humphrey slightly strengthening the party's 1944 stand.

Myers predicted the compromise would prevail and few liberal wing extremists expected the upset that followed.

The Biemiller-Humphrey plank reinforced a previously adopted declaration that "racial and religious minorities must have the right to live, the right to work, the right to vote, the full and equal protection of the laws, on a basis of equality with all citizens as guaranteed by the Constitution."

The victorious Northern bloc let that and a civil rights preamble stand. They substituted their own anti-poll-tax, antilynching, FEPC and nonsegregation in the armed forces specifications for a weaker plank, which had read:

"We again call upon the Congress to exert its full authority to the limits of its constitutional powers to assure and protect these rights."

Humphrey touched off the only real demonstration of the floor show when he called on the convention to "get out of the shadow of States' rights and walk forthrightly in the bright sunshine of human rights. . . this is the issue of the twentieth century."

Southerners Sit Silent

Northern and Western delegations broke into loud cheers, and there were cries for the band, but it never struck up. The delegates whistled instead. The Wisconsin, Minnesota, New York and Illinois standards waved wildly.

California, Oregon, New Jersey, Massachusetts, the Virgin Islands joined in the demonstration. Through it all the Southern delegations sat stoically motionless.

There was another brief demonstration when Wisconsin cast its solid vote of 24 for the plank, clinching the majority needed to wedge it into the platform.

Biemiller led off by the Northern liberals, commending the report of the President's Commission on Civil Rights and moving adoption of the plank.

And former Governor Moody started the ball rolling for the Southerners with the first of the three States' rights planks. His report had 15 signers representing eight Southern States.

To prevent a talkathon, Chairman Myers persuaded the convention to adopt a one-hour debate limitation.

Moody proposed a plank declaring in part that "under the Constitution the general Federal Government and the separate States have their separate fields of power and of permitted activities."

Cecil Sims of Tennessee submitted a shorter version, opposing "any attempt, by legislation or otherwise, to invade the exclusive jurisdiction of the States in their domestic affairs."

Walter Sillers of Mississippi proposed the longest States' right plank of all, spelling out detailed powers he said should be reserved to the States.

Moody said he "never bolted a convention and never intends to" but appealed to the delegates to "restore harmony among members of the Democratic Party."

Sillers said his plank would "restore the fundamental principles of the party . . . this is a platform of pure Americanism."

Sims said Tennessee will never "take a walk" but warned that rejection of the States' rights plank will mean "the dissolution of the Democratic Party in the South."

It remained for Gov. Chauncey Sparks of Alabama to say:

"We ask that you not vote down the Constitution of the United States."

Former Gov. Maurice Tobin of Massachusetts was the first to the platform in opposition to the trio of States' rights planks. Tobin said States' rights doesn't appear in any Democratic platform since 1928. Southerners tried to boo him but Northern cheers drowned them out.

"The Democratic Party has not receded from the doctrine of States' rights," he told the delegates. "But the great issue of today is not States' rights but human rights."

Mayor Humphrey and Aaron L. Jacoby of New York followed with their pleas for a clearcut civil rights stand.

"In a world of slavery, we must be in a morally sound position," Humphrey told the delegates. "There is no room for double standards . . . I do not believe there can be any compromise but the compromise we offer here . . . There can be no hedging on this issue."

Plea for Ireland Loses

Almost lost in the welter of minority reports was a plea for U. N. recognition of Ireland. This plank, too, was shouted down, but not before Thomas J. Buckley of Massachusetts and Mayor James Curley of Boston got in their plugs for "a free and independent Ireland."

For seven days and nights, members of the resolutions committee had struggled with the platform, moving it through taut-tempered subcommittees to a final angry full committee vote atop the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel early this week.

In an attempt to avert tonight's Gettysburg rout of the South, Administration "harmonizers" had traded alike with the North and the South, dropping a tidelands plank to appease Dixie members, strengthening the Israel plank to please some of the Northern liberals.

Two Extremes Clash

But the dove of peace flew for shelter after the early morning meeting. The two extremes of the party clashed with each other and committee members rowed with the press. There were shouted exchanges between representatives of the committee and some reporters after a partial text of the platform "leaked" to one press service.

Weary and sleepy-eyed, Chairman Myers started reading what he hoped was the complete platform to the convention at 1:50 p. m.

The delegates hardly listened at first, but then interest picked up and they managed a listless cheer here and there for some of the planks and the platform's running-fire attack on the Republican Congress.

They gave the biggest hand of all to a plank pledging Democrats to work for admission on a nondiscriminatory basis of at least 400,000 of Europe's displaced persons.

Delegations' Vote on States' Rights Plank

Convention Hall, Philadelphia, July 14 (AP). — Here is how the delegations voted on a Southern proposal to include in the Democratic platform a "States' rights" plank (a "yes" vote is for the plank, a "no" vote against it). The vote was 309 "yes" and 925 "no."

Court Leaves Religion Choice to Girl, Now 5

Baltimore, July 14 (AP).—A Baltimore judge today denied a divorced man's petition that his 5-year-old daughter be brought up in the Hebrew faith, but commented that the little girl can make up her own mind when the time comes.

Judge Emory H. Niles, sitting in a Circuit Court custody case, said that he saw no reason "in infancy, to disturb the mother's viewpoint that the child should be a Lutheran."

A plea that the court compel Mrs. George D. Clark, jr., of Roanoke, Va., to rear their daughter as a Jew was made by Hans Kantzenstein of Baltimore.

Democrats Favor Suffrage for District

By a Post Reporter

Philadelphia, July 14 —The Democratic convention today called for suffrage for the people of the District.

The call was sounded when the convention adopted the hotly contested 1948 platform of the Democratic Party including this section:

"We favor the extension of the right of suffrage to the people of the District of Columbia."

The same plank was carried four years ago in the Democratic Party platform.

Republicans last month wrote into their 1948 platform a plank saying "we favor self-government for the residents of the Nation's Capital."

There was no floor fight today over the District plank. The plank was backed unanimously by the 12-member District delegation, and was sponsored in the platform drafting by Brig. Gen. Albert L. Cox, and Mrs. Ernest K. Lindley, District delegates.

Their work was warmly applauded by their colleagues by a formal resolution of appreciation adopted in a morning caucus of the District delegation.

Services of John Wattawa as chairman, and Mrs. Kathleen Louchheim as secretary were also applauded by similar resolutions of thanks.

D. C. Delegates Have Big Part In Victory of Civil Rights Issue

By a Post Reporter

Philadelphia, July 14.—The District of Columbia's 12-member, six-vote delegation had a reason to cheer today when the Democratic Convention refused to compromise and backed up the President's civil rights points.

The entire District delegation voted for Minneapolis Mayor Hubert Humphrey's spell-out civil rights points. Two members of the group figured prominently in the backstage strategy leading to the coup.

They were Joseph L. Rauh, jr., chairman of the national executive board of Americans for Democratic Action, and Tilford E. Dudley, an assistant director of CIO-PAC.

Rauh worked closely with Humphrey in some of the early planning, and both District representatives were present when a 12-State ADA caucus Tuesday night decided the resolution committee's compromise wasn't enough.

As a result of the caucus, and later directions from his Minnesota delegation, Humphrey took his four-point demands to the Resolutions Committee and later to the convention.

The District, farthest south of any of the so-called Northern liberal delegations supporting the change, played a role second only to Minnesota, said Dudley.

Dudley said ADA Leader Rauh was the most active, but the entire District delegation backed him up.

A. L. Wheeler, another District delegate, said the District Democratic delegation has always plugged for civil rights just as it has pushed for District suffrage. In 1944, he said, they won on District suffrage but got a weaker civil rights plank than they wanted.

"We feel real proud tonight," said Wheeler. "We won on both counts."

Industry Branch Of ECA Headed By N. Y. Banker

Samuel W. Anderson of New York yesterday was named head of the industry division, Economic Cooperation Administration, by ECA Chief Paul G. Hoffman.

He will review plans for increasing the production capacities of western European nations and propose methods for carrying them out to Hoffman's special ECA representatives in Paris.

Anderson, 50, was with the War Production Board during World War II. A former partner of Goldman, Sachs & Co., he recently was associated with Lehman Bros., New York investment firm.

Hoffman also announced the appointment of Alan Valentine, 47-year-old president of the University of Rochester (N. Y.), as chief of ECA's mission to the Netherlands.

Wolverton Decries Steel for Near East Oil

Chairman Charles A. Wolverton (R., N. J.) of the House Commerce Committee yesterday criticized the Administration for permitting exports of heavy steel for development of oil fields in the Near East.

He recommended a change in United States export policy "to keep steel needed for petroleum in the western hemisphere."

"It does appear clear at this time that it is somewhat unreasonable to grant export licenses covering large quantities of steel for use in the unsettled Near East when such steel could be used advantageously both here at home and in Venezuela and Mexico," Wolverton said in a statement.

Brig. Gen. Davis Leaving Army After 50 Years

The Army bade an official farewell yesterday to its only Negro general officer, Brig. Gen. Benjamin O. Davis, who joined the service 50 years ago and now is retiring from active service.

Gen. Davis

Army Secretary Kenneth C. Royall, in a letter to Davis, noted that when he joined the Army as a lieutenant of infantry there were only five other Negro officers in the Army. (At the conclusion of the Spanish-American War Davis re-entered the Army as an enlisted man.) Now there are almost 1000 Negro officers in the Army, Royall wrote.

Royall told Davis that his long service had been of "inestimable value to your Army and your country both in war and peace."

Citizen of World Is Declared Only Good One of U. S.

Dr. Ralph McDonald of Washington yesterday told the summer conference of the Maryland Congress of Parents and Teachers, "It is impossible to be a good citizen of the United States without being a good citizen of the world."

About 190 delegates from 21 counties are registered for the three-day session on the University of Maryland campus at College Park.

McDonald is world citizenship chairman of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers. He cited three ways by which Americans can carry out their duties as world citizens.

By working for a sound education program that will provide children with background for participation in world affairs; by individual aid to needy persons overseas; and by exerting influence on the foreign policies of the United States Government.

McDonald said he would rate Maryland among the top six States in recent advances in the field of education, but that "it is a mistake to assume the State is providing adequate education."

McMahon Sees Arms Peril

By a Post Reporter

Convention Hall, Philadelphia, July 14.—The development of the atomic bomb and the present armaments race confront the United States with the supreme challenge of its existence, Senator Brien McMahon of Connecticut told Democratic convention delegates here today.

He warned that "the physical map" of America will have to be remade if the armaments race continues much longer.

He visualized the building of enormous raid raid shelters, underground factories and the relocation of Federal agencies outside of the District of Columbia.

To meet this challenge, he declared, the leadership of the Democratic Party will be needed and "the new germ of isolationism imbedded in the platform of the Republican Party" will have to be destroyed.

He termed the failure of the Republican platform to mention international control of atomic energy "shocking evidence of the gross misunderstanding of the disarmament issue" existing in this country.

Special Session Proposed

Earlier the delegates heard James Roosevelt, son of the late President and California State chairman, urge President Truman to call the Congress back into session this summer.

"This country, facing the swift-moving forces of an atomic age," Roosevelt said, "can not afford the luxury of inaction. We can not wait for the new Congress, the new Democratic Congress to organize in the spring of 1949; the problems must be solved now."

An unscheduled speaker, Roosevelt said he wanted to assure the convention that his mother's absence from the hall was not due to any "lessening of her faith in the Democratic Party."

Roosevelt told cheering delegates he could assure them that he was "privileged to speak for her in saying that no one can with authority in any way subtract from her long devotion and her untiring efforts to stand and work for the great achievements of the Democratic Party of today and tomorrow."

Mrs. Roosevelt has decided to devote herself to her work on the United Nations with "singleness of purpose" and "the fullest of her talents and her energy," he said.

"More Dignified" To Serve UN

"And she found and she believed that it was more dignified for our country to be represented in that great assembly of nations by men and women who were not taking part in partisan politics," Roosevelt added.

When he finished hundreds of delegates broke out into loud cheers. The California delegation leaped up on their chairs and the band played "California, Here I Come."

McMahon told the delegates that the United States' proposal for the control of atomic energy would have "lifted atomic weapons finally and forever from the military arsenals of the world."

The American proposal for the control of atomic energy he said, was made in the spirit of peace and good will.

"The proposal was just, it was generous, and it was unique in the history of international relations," he said.

Waw Speaks for West

Handsome Gov. Herbert B. Maw of Utah tonight launched a bid for the Western vote to offset the appeal of GOP Vice Presidential Candidate Gov. Earl Warren of California.

Saying that he had been asked to represent the West, Maw said that those of the West who lived in States where 50 to 85 per cent of the land is owned by the Federal Government "are vitally affected by the political philosophy of the Government."

"As we have witnessed our progress being threatened by a Republican Congress during the past two years," he said, "we have come more and more to realize how great have been the contributions of the Democratic Party to that great section of our Nation which lies beyond the Rockies."

The West, he said, came into its own when the late Franklin Delano Roosevelt became President of the United States.

Under "the guise of economy," Maw charged, Republican leaders in Congress "are squeezing the life blood out of reclamation in the West, even though they know that the cost of Western reclamation is paid back to the Government in full, and that hydro-electric power costs are paid back with interest."

Plea to Retire Isolationists

An urgent plea to the Nation to retire all isolationist Republican Senators from office was voiced by Senator Scott Lucas of Illinois, minority whip in the Senate.

On the record, Lucas told the delegates, there are 18 Republican isolationist Senators who must face the votes this year.

"If we are to achieve peace and abundance for all, there must be unity, vision and solidarity in our foreign policy," Luas said.

"The golden opportunity for the people of this Nation to render high public service in the interest of peace and security lies in making certain that next November these Republican Senators are replaced with Democrats — Democratic Senators who realize that the mantle of world leadership has been placed upon the shoulders of America; Democrats who realize that the destiny of all mankind is in our hands."

The program opened with the singing of the national anthem by pretty blonde Phyllis Hoyland of Baltimore, Md.

Lucas was followed by A. F. Whitney, president of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, who walked to the platform as the band played, "I've been working on the railroad."

Whitney launched into a scathing denunciation of the Republican Party as the creator of the Taft-Hartley law.

"I plead with the delegates of this convention who love freedom and our way of life to take immediate steps to remove that crown of thorns placed upon the head of labor by the Republican Party," Whitney said.

Former Attorney General Homer Cummings told the delegates the reactionary congressional leadership will dominate the Republican Party.

"The fate of America and of the world may well rest on the outcome of the next election," Cummings said.

"It would be foolhardy to entrust crucial domestic affairs or the hope of world peace to the Republican Party has written such a sorry, such an indefensive record through such a long period of time," he declared.

Representative William L. Dawson of Illinois again and again praised the courage and leadership of President Truman.

"Many, many times he has used the influence of his office and the power of the presidential veto to turn back the Republican forces of reaction," Dawson declared.

"He has courageously and unequivocally advocated that laws be enacted to assure to every citizen the rights guaranteed by our Constitution, that freedom and liberty and security in life and property and the right to work and the right to vote are the sacred heritage of every person."

Civitans Hear Press Rule Hit

A proposed new rule of Maryland's Court of Appeals restricting the publication of certain material in newspaper crime stories actually "sets up a court censorship" over the press, Bethesda Civitan members were told yesterday.

Joseph M. Mathias, attorney and former assistant city editor of The Washington Post, explained that the restrictions, known as Rule 9, would prevent publishing of a defendant's picture after his arrest and would prevent any mention of a confession or of the past police record of a defendant.

The rule, he said, was an unconstitutional extension of the judiciary's right to punish for contempt. He declared that the law, as it now stands, gives defendants adequate protection and that adoption of the proposed rule would result in abridging freedom of the press guaranteed by the Constitution.

Ford's Final Offer, 13 Cents an Hour

Detroit, July 14 (AP).—The Ford Motor Co. gave the CIO-United Auto Workers what it called its "final offer" tonight—a flat 13-cent-an-hour wage increase and other nonwage benefits.

There was no immediate reply from the union as to whether the offer is acceptable.

FCC Sets Conference On Poor Wire Service

The Federal Communications Commission decided yesterday to have an informal conference July 30 on a union complaint about telegraph service.

Commissioners Paul A. Walker and Rosel Hyde will meet with representatives of the Commercial Telegraphers Union (AFL) and the Western Union Telegraph Co.

The CTU petitioned the FCC for an investigation, asserting that "the very future of the telegraph industry is in danger" because of what it described as declining service in many places.

Mrs. Harris' Conviction Is Affirmed

The United States Court of Appeals yesterday affirmed the second degree murder conviction of Mrs. Minnie Harris, 37.

She was found guilty earlier by a District Court jury and sentenced to serve 15 years to life for the axe slaying here in April, 1947, of her husband, James J. Harris, 40, business agent of the Cafeteria and Restaurant Workers' Union (CIO).

Mrs. Harris, according to the evidence, was jealous of her husband and believed him going out with other women. Police were temporarily stymied until four months after the murder they received a letter from New York purporting to be the confession of a "Jimmy Cohen." The handwriting was proven to be that of Mrs. Harris.

In the appeal, it was contended that the forged letter was inadmissible in evidence. The Appeals Court pointed out, however, that fabrication of evidence is cogent proof of guilt, and it did not matter that the letter was delivered several months after the crime.

Navy Calls Off Probe Of Reported Mutiny

London, July 14 (U.P.).—The U. S. Navy today called off its investigation of a reported mutiny aboard the American freighter William Carson, 250 miles northeast of the Azores.

After the Carson radioed last night that the mutiny was under control, Rear Admiral Heber McLean, commander of a practice squadron ordered to investigate the report, said he would proceed on his course from Gibraltar to Guantanamo Bay.

mediately taken to the Maryland House of Correction.

Among those sentenced were Theodore A. (Mike) Meyers, Silver Hill, brother of Robert Meyers and of Alfred E. Meyers, Temple Hill, who was also among those convicted.

Owner, Operator Convicted

During the trial, "Mike" Meyers and Walter Novak, 1205 Jackson ave., Takoma Park, Md., were termed operators of the Towers. Patrick J. Clarke, Laurel, was described by his attorney as having leased the casino to Novak. Both Clarke and Novak were among those convicted.

State's Attorney Daniel M. Murray, jr., who conducted the prosecution, asked for maximum penalties and pointed out that "a murder took place a few hundred yards away from this place."

"Hunter Lewis, a former convict, was employed (at Rocway Towers) with William Carley (one of those convicted)," said Murray. "That killing was a result of the operations in that place, and I refer to Rocway Towers."

List Of Others Convicted

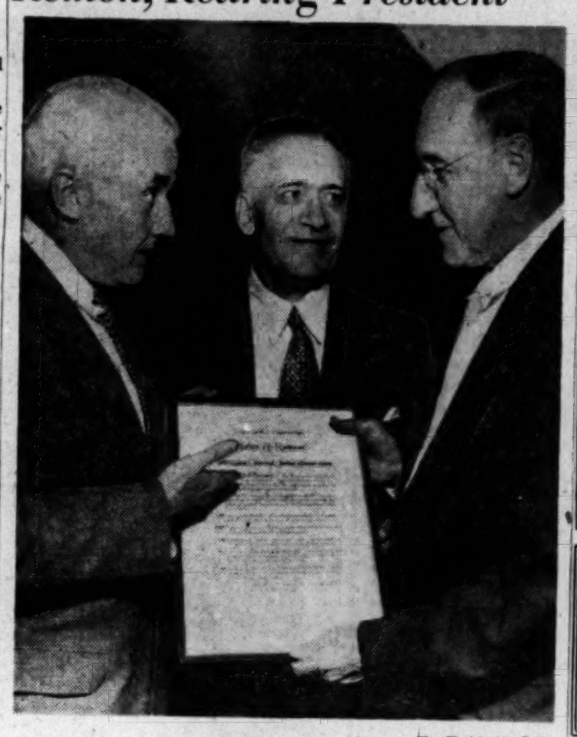
In addition to "Mike" Meyers, Alfred E. Meyers, Novak and Clarke, others convicted today and described as employes at the Towers were:

Martin L. Murphy, 1230 Holbrook ter. ne.; Mike Moffett, 1220 Holbrook ter. ne.; John Geraci, 3004 Madison pl. se.; Edward Kall, 3412 Newton st. ne.; William B. Bellfield, 1445 Ogden st. nw.; Silvio J. Damico, 2901 Nelson pl. se.; Joseph W. Helmich, 3028 Bladensburg rd. ne.; Edward J. LaPrairie, Hamilton Hotel, all of Washington.

Also Charles R. Beers and William E. Downs, Silver Hill; Thomas H. Rice, Silver Spring; William C. Quade, Cheltenham; William Carley, Laurel; Mele C. Rodick, Mount Rainier, and Frank Tolson, 2543 N. Washington blvd., Arlington.

Walter Curran, former attorney general of Maryland and chief defense counsel, did not indicate whether or not he will appeal the convictions.

Criminal Justice Group Fetes Remon, Retiring President



The Washington Post

HONORED MEMBER—George Maurice Morris presents a testimonial scroll to John A. Remon (right), past president of the Washington Criminal Justice Association. Vincent Saccardi (center), association president, witnesses the ceremony yesterday at a luncheon in the Statler Hotel

In honor of his "devotion to civic progress in the Nation's Capital," members of the Washington Criminal Justice Association yesterday paid tribute to their former president, John A. Remon.

Remon, Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co., executive, and charter member of the association, was feted at a testimonial luncheon at Hotel Statler.

President of the Criminal Justice Association from 1945 to May of this year, when he was succeeded by Vincent Saccardi, Remon declared in accepting a testimonial scroll:

"Part of the price we pay for the privilege of living in a democracy is an active concern for the welfare and protection of our fellow citizens.

"We want a Police Department, courts and institutions that are second to none," said Remon. "We have come a long way toward realizing that objective—but there is still much to be done."

Charter Clause Held Illegal

were quick to characterize the court ruling as a "death blow to the charter."

Charter backers, promising "an immediate appeal" from the decision, hotly denied this.

Col. Norman B. Ames, leader of the "home-rule" movement, said "the decision means nothing vital." He was joined by James J. Hayden, attorney and member of the charter board which drafted the contested document. "It does some damage but the charter is still perfectly good," Hayden declared.

In contrast to their apparent optimism were firm statements to the contrary by Schneider and his attorney, David E. Betts, of Rockville.

Both lawyers claimed that to amend the proposed charter to conform with the court decision would be illegal. The charter must be submitted to the voters in its entirety or not at all they claimed. As a result of the ruling the present charter cannot now be voted on, they said.

Final determination of the question could come well before the November election, it was pointed out, even though the Maryland Court of Appeals is in summer recess until October. Cases involving municipal elections have in the past been considered as "emergency" by the appeals court, it was said, and it is believed the court may sit in special session this summer to hear the case. The court normally sits in Annapolis.

In yesterday's decision the judges emphasized they were not ruling on "the political expediency of adopting, or not adopting, a charter" but only on the legal questions involved.

"There may be many people who desire to vote for a charter form of government, but would not care to vote for one with provisions of doubtful legality" the opinion declared.

Declaring that Schneider is entitled to have the offensive clause deleted, the judges said that such deletion would not leave the charter "an unworkable framework for possible governmental functioning."

Under the charter, the present five-man board of county commissioners would be replaced by a seven-member county council and a county manager form of government would be instituted.

The present charter was drawn up by a charter board elected in the 1946 election after a similar board was voted down by a narrow margin in 1944.

Charter leaders were deep in plans last night for a come-back fight after what was generally interpreted as a major setback. Colonel Ames said charter lawyers would meet tonight in Rockville to map plans for their appeal of the ruling.

Said James J. Hayden: "We hope to get the decision reversed."

New Used Cars

The gray market in new automobiles, which has become a first-class racket, received a blow at the hands of Judge Thomas D. Quinn in Municipal Court Monday. Judge Quinn upheld the validity of a repurchase option by which a dealer sought to prevent the purchaser of a new car from selling it to a used-car lot within a six months period. This will be good news to reputable new-car dealers and to would-be purchasers who refuse to pay highwayman's prices.

Perhaps the most aggravating experience for persons patiently sweating out the time until their names come up on new-car lists has been to see the superabundance of sleek new models on used-car lots—at prices of from $300 to $700 or more above list. The transition from new to used status requires, seemingly, only that the car be driven around the block, and, no matter how bare the regular dealer's showrooms, it usually is possible to find plenty of such cars with as few as five registered miles adorning used-car emporia. It has not been uncommon for a buyer to have his name on file with several dealers, to take delivery of one car, turn it over to a used-car lot at a tidy profit, and then repeat the process. The pressure for new cars has put a premium on such profiteering—which of course serves only to augment the shortage.

Aside from those few establishments implicated in the practice, most new-car dealers are concerned with the inroads of the gray market. The repurchase option has been one of the most effective checks devised so far. Now that its legality has been confirmed, it ought to be employed more widely. Indeed, automobile manufacturers could well afford to promote such anti-gray market measures both as a service in combating inflation and a safeguard against retribution when the seller's market ends.

Airport Use

The reported squabble between National Airport officials and the Military Air Transport Service, like the report of Mark Twain's death, appears to be somewhat exaggerated. Actually, negotiations between the two groups for the release of all facilities at the National Airport to civilian use have been proceeding amicably. There is no reason to believe that MATS is not sincere in its intention to move its headquarters to Andrews Field just as soon as that is possible. The move, however, depends on space being made available at Andrews Field, which in turn depends on how soon the Strategic Air Command can be shifted to its new base at Omaha. And while some nudging by civilian authorities to speed up the process is probably to the point, it is unfair to blame MATS "space hogging" for all the congestion at the National Airport.

Actually, MATS occupies less than one tenth of the available terminal and hangar space there. Its scheduled weekly flights amount to only 71 landings and 71 departures—a minuscule percentage of the civilian flights. The primary reason for congestion at National is the sheer expansion of airline traffic. When the airport was completed in 1941, Washington was served by only three certified airlines. Moreover, there was no such thing as military air transport, which was introduced as a wartime necessity. Today the airport must accommodate nine certificated domestic airlines, five foreign lines and a great number of noncertificated flights in addition to MATS.

At the same time, although the National Airport was built with Government funds, it was intended primarily for civilian operations. While the MATS terminal occupies relatively little space, it is so situated as to block drastically needed expansion of civilian facilities. In our opinion the continuance of military operations there is an anachronism when the airport is already overloaded.

The complaint that some VIPS—very important persons in the armed forces and the Government—might be delayed by shifting all MATS flights to Andrews Field has some merit, though it is certainly not a major consideration. Here is a chance, however, to clear up another anachronism. Why cannot some of the VIP flights be handled at Bolling Field, which is virtually as close to downtown as the National Airport? If it is necessary to displace some training operations, why cannot they be moved to Andrews Field? Why, moreover, cannot the adjoining facilities of Bolling Field and the Naval Air Station at Anacostia be combined? Certainly it would simplify the present scrambled traffic pattern to have one control tower instead of two. Furthermore, the merger of these operations would serve as a prime example of unification right at home.

Philadelphia Revolt

The Democratic platform as rewritten on the convention floor late yesterday afternoon is a defeat for the Southerners and may be summed up as a Truman manifesto. The delegates simply would not compromise on the burning issue of civil rights which has rocked the Democratic Party. The commitment of the party to the belief that "racial and religious minorities must have the right to live, the right to work, the right to vote, the full and equal protection of the laws, on a basis of equality with all citizens, as guaranteed by the Constitution" could mean much if it were to be fulfilled by the Southern States, which have the power to make it effective. But many Southern leaders rebelled against even the statement of this elementary principle. And it was their intransigence, together with the feeling that the party should go to the country as the party of liberalism, that induced the convention to spell out exactly what was meant by the original generalization of the Resolutions Committee.

A tumultuous debate on the floor led to the incorporation of a pledge to work for Federal legislation guaranteeing the rights of full and equal political participation, equal opportunity of employment, "security of persons" and "equal treatment" in the armed services. This was certainly a franker pledge than the promise simply to use all "constitutional powers" to assure and protect the rights that were enumerated in the committee's civil rights plank, and the Southerners were left in high dudgeon. Thus the South's flare of rebellion has been repulsed rather than compromised by what may be a historic convention, although, in deference to the South, the platform-makers had eliminated entirely the plank for Federal control over tidelands oil, and no further action on this score was offered on the floor of the convention.

The platform added to its appeal to what Mr. Roosevelt would have called the "underprivileged" by courting the labor vote with a plank pledging repeal of the Taft-Hartley Act. While this extreme stand supports President Truman's veto of this legislation, it flies in the face of the majority of the Democratic legislators, who voted to override the veto. No such drastic pledge, of course, has any chance of being fulfilled, but it may win for the ticket some of the waverers in union labor ranks. The entire platform is a vote-puller, but the decisive action on civil rights may produce such dissension in the ranks of the Democratic Party as to present the election to the Republicans, though the ultimate outcome may well be a new alignment in the party system in the United States based less on geography and more on ideology.

Togliatti

When Premier de Gasperi described the attempted assassination of Signor Togliatti, leader of the Italian Communist Party, as "the worst thing that could have happened," he spoke only the truth. Already the shooting appears to have touched off a series of riots and demonstrations in various sections of the country, and general strikes have been called in Rome and in most of the other important industrial cities. In short, it appears at this writing that a crisis has been precipitated, which the Communists may use as a pretext for an attempt at a forcible seizure of power. Indeed, the incident is so much to the advantage of the Italian Communists that the meager information now available does not entirely eradicate the suspicion that they might possibly have had a hand in creating it.

The young man who fired three shots into Togliatti as he emerged from the building of the Chamber of Deputies in Rome has been identified as a Sicilian named Antonio Pallante. He is described by the Italian police as a fanatical nationalist, but not identified with any of the numerous Italian political parties. This, of course, may explain his action. Togliatti has been known as a dutiful and devout follower of the party line. Indeed, it was Togliatti's blind obedience to the will of Moscow, even in such matters as the liquidation of non-Communist collaborators in the Italian resistance movement, that sickened and disillusioned the celebrated writer, Ignazio Silone.

Togliatti was a participant at the recent meeting of the Cominform and one of the signatories to the bull of excommunication hurled against Marshal Tito of Yugoslavia. Thus it is possible that the two events are not unrelated. The truth is that we are living in a world in which nothing is too fantastic to be credible. However, if the Yugoslavian schismatics had anything to do with the attack on Togliatti, it would indicate that they are politically far less astute than is generally supposed.

At the same time, Togliatti's demonstrated subservience to Moscow is not exactly prima facie proof that he would be safe from liquidation if for any reason it became advantageous to make a martyr of him. After all, we must bear in mind the dictum attributed to Lenin that whatever advances the Communist revolution is moral and whatever retards it is immoral.

Art's Reward

An interesting sequel has developed to all the congressional ranting of last year over the collections of American art that were being exhibited abroad by the State Department. These were the paintings, you will recall, that brought forth such censure from Capitol Hill connoisseurs as "corny," "degenerate," "idiotic" and "a disgrace to the United States." Even the President entered the fray by terming them "ham and egg art." One of the chief critics was Representative Karl Stefan, who commented, "No wonder foreigners think Americans are crazy," and took great glee from the inability of State Department officials, among them former Assistant Secretary Benton, to describe the merits of the particular pictures during questioning. As a result of this epithetical storm, the department was forced to withdraw the paintings from Czechoslovakia and Haiti, where they were being displayed. The withdrawal, it might be added, caused considerable discomfiture to the Czech government, which had arranged for a prolonged tour.

Now it develops that the State Department was in a fair way to reap a neat little profit from the collections. Originally the paintings cost the Government $55,800. When they were sold recently by the War Assets Administration as surplus war property, legitimate bids were received from private nonpriority bidders amounting to $79,600. The much-discussed "Circus Lady Resting," the portrait of a plump maiden in tights, was quoted at $2000 although the original cost was only $700, and one seascape brought an offer of $10,000. This does not mean that these were the prices finally realized; museums and other public institutions were permitted to purchase the paintings at a 95 per cent discount. But obviously the private bidders, who are not in business to make gifts to the Government, thought more of the pictures than the self-appointed critics. All this seems to indicate either (1) that the congressional taste in art is slightly outmoded, or (2) that in art as in other fields, a little publicity goes a long, long way. Or maybe it proves the validity of Secretary Marshall's plaintive lament: "It must be very good art, because I cannot understand it."

Coal Compromise

The captive-mine strike, together with the sympathy strikes resulting from it, is estimated to have cost the country more than two million tons of coal. Since this coal is needed for steel-making, a prolongation of the strike would have had a paralyzing effect on that industry as well as on a wide range of steel-consuming industries. As it is, the effects of the strike will be felt for a long time to come, while the miners involved will think regretfully of the five million dollars of lost earnings representing their direct share of the cost of the strike.

Fortunately a settlement of the dispute has been reached without Justice Goldsborough's being forced to enjoin the strike, as he no doubt would have done but for the compromise he was instrumental in bringing about. It seems to be a most sensible arrangement, permitting the question of the legality of the union-shop clause in the new UMW contract to be threshed out in NLRB hearings and ultimately by the courts. This time-consuming process insures undisturbed operations under the new contract for a good many months, possibly for the duration of the contract.

Meanwhile, the next Congress may consent to revise the Taft-Hartley Act so as to remove the requirement for a poll of employes prior to inclusion of a union-shop clause in labor contracts. If that does not happen, the Supreme Court will have the last word, and that may well be in the form of a verdict unfavorable to Mr. Lewis. Consequently the compromise settlement is no guarantee against revival of the conflict precipitated by Mr. Lewis' refusal to take the non-Communist oath as a prerequisite to asking the NLRB to hold a union-shop election. However, Mr. Lewis has at least consented to follow the procedure laid down by the Taft-Hartley Act for dealing with disputes of the present kind involving charges of unfair labor practices. That is a major victory for the cause of law enforcement and a hopeful sign that Mr. Lewis has been chastened by his encounters with the redoubtable Justice Goldsborough.

ENTREATY

O let us spurn the serpent words,
Which coil and menace for the thrust,
And drain the venom and unfang
The copperheads of our distrust.

Enough the treacherous travail,
The clutching quicksand of the bog,
And snares of weather, wind and storm,
And silent daggers of the fog.

Instinctively we should revolt
Against encroaching earth and sea
And air and fire, but never strike
At harassed co-humanity.

HAROLD ZLOTNIK.

"Who Wrote What?"

"Who Wrote What?" your editorial of July 10, is an achievement in cleverness which should be award a Pulitzer Prize for brilliant editorial writing.

But are you not aware that the mystery of the authorship of Shakespeare's plays was cleared up beyond peradventure of a doubt right here in Washington some 60 years ago? Scholarly, humorless Ignatius Donnelly came all the way from Minnesota telling the world en route that Sir Francis Bacon wrote them. Senator Joe Blackburn and Dick Wintersmith, Kentucky raconteurs the likes of whom have not since been seen hereabout, banqueted him at John Chamberlin's historic restaurant on 15th st. Easily giving the gate to the Earl of Oxford, Sir Philip Sidney and all other possible contenders for the honor, Donnelly skillfully expounded his theory for nigh onto two hours. The liquor ran out; the guests squirmed or dozed.

"What you say sounds plausible, Mr. Donnelly," interposed Wintersmith, "but my friend Blackburn and I know Shakespeare wrote those plays."

"How can you know it?" demanded Donnelly.

"We were at Avon and saw him write 'em," replied Wintersmith.

"Why Mr. Wintersmith you amaze me. Those plays were written nearly 300 years ago!" exclaimed Donnelly.

"Faith In Freedom"

In your July 5 editorial, "Faith in Freedom," you quote from a statement by E. M. Douglas, assistant superintendent of the Montgomery County schools, which in part, says "If high school seniors cannot be exposed to avowed Communists without losing faith in American ideals, our educational program and American system are both a flop."

The writer was associated with a number of the New Deal moves since 1933, including the war period. He remembers quite a few of the Harvard and Columbia "professors, doctors and economists." After having been exposed to Laski, Tugwell et al, they were ever ready to applaud foreign doctrines and deplore and apologize for anything and everything American. Since these were mature men and they were gullible enough to swallow this foreign line, what right has the professor to assume that high school students would be immune?

It all boils down to this—any educational system paid for with public funds, unless it imbues the student with a deep reverence and respect for the institutions and traditions of our country over those of any other land, is a distinct and pronounced failure and should immediately and vigorously be overhauled. C. L. ROSEMUND.

Inadequate Raise

The Washington Post is to be congratulated on its forthright editorial and news reporting job in connection with the new Federal pay raise bill. It is obvious that the Federal employe in the classified service has little cause to rejoice in the $330 pay increase, while employes of the District government have every reason to feel bitter about their failure to receive any raise at all.

In 1939, an employe classified at CAF-7 received a base salary of $2600. After retirement deduction (at 3½ per cent) his take-home pay was $2521. If he was married and had one child, he paid no income tax.

Under the current pay schedule, the base salary at CAF-7 is $3727. However, after retirement deduction at 6 per cent ($224) and a withholding tax deduction ($353), his cash take-home pay is cut down to $3150. Since 1939 the cost of living has risen by more than 70 per cent, according to the Bureau of Labor Statistics. In terms of actual buying power, therefore, the cash salary of $3150 is worth only $1850 in 1939 dollars. The Federal employe, rather than being better off, has in effect had a wage cut of almost $700.

In one respect, however, the Federal Pay Raise Act may have a salutary effect. Congress has done more than a corps of union organizers to convince the Federal employe that union membership pays off. The more favorable treatment granted the postal workers, who received an increase of $450, was a direct result of their more effective organization. About two thirds of all postal employes belong to trade unions, while only 10 per cent of the classified workers are organized. HARRY WOOL,
Public Relations Chairman, Government Workers Union (CIO).
Washington.

Anonymous Answers

One of the interesting developments of letter writing to the editor is the aftermath of anonymous letters, phone calls, and threats. This is, however, more than compensated for by the many signed communications, calls, and face-to-face discussions anent the burden of some of our epistles.

Most of the anonymous notes—of which I have a volume—are clearly the work of cranks, fanatics, and semi-illiterates. Nearly all are in handwriting. They show signs by composition, grammar and spelling of little education, or mental aberration.

The arguments advanced usually take the form of justifying segregation. They are based on the concepts that one drop of Negro blood creates of a man a Negro; that all Negroes, Jews, Orientals and some other minorities as groups are unclean, unintelligent, criminal and generally inferior to all whites.

Too many so-called Negro citizens, realizing how much better off they are than the Russian citizen, or the exploited serfs and colonials elsewhere in the world, are too satisfied with the doubtful security of a job, a home or place to sleep or eat, and membership in some segregated institution of school, church or hospital. The Negro learns American history, he admires the sentiments if not the practices of Patrick Henry, Thomas Jefferson or Christ. More of them should take the risks these men took to insure Christianity and democracy. To some Americans these were also Communists, a stereotype often hurled at those who want just plain unadulterated Americanism. E. B. HENDERSON.

Withdrawal From Berlin

Are we not reacting to the blockade of Berlin as it was intended that we should?

My hunch is that it would be disastrous for the Russian government if the United States ceased to provision Berlin. I cite its repeated relaxing of tension over the crises it had created as an indication that it deliberately antagonizes us in order that patriotic pride will intensify our determination to remain there.

To color the rose native Communists vociferously demand that Berlin be united with the eastern zone. But why did the Russian government originally consent to admit us 100 miles within its domain, if not to shift the expense of supporting Berlin's 3½ million upon us?

We are feeding two-thirds of the inhabitants. We supply most of the fuel and raw materials for the greatest industrial city of Europe. We furnish the Russian government's executors with many essential commodities unobtainable elsewhere. Furthermore, it has been receiving quite a few dollars, so indispensable in international exchange, through our payments for the services of the municipal utilities it controls.

The supplies which the United States contributes to Berlin are a gift, however accounted. No other nation even has them to advance, and it is not certain that we ourselves can afford this gratuity. It would be impossible for the Russian government to service Berlin. It could not pay for foodstuffs, but would have to commandeer them and thereby infuriate the peasantry.

To its misfortune the normal supply system is oriented toward the west—the canal to Hamburg, the rails to the Ruhr. Train and truck deliveries would be impeded by bottlenecks and by Red tape. Insufficient Polish coal would be available to operate all of the factories and to heat all of the houses. Workable materials could not be provided except by diverting them from other industrial areas in the Soviet sphere.

When land transport was interrupted, we impetuously commenced the extraordinary and expensive air lift. Our representatives were derelict to permit the Russian government to squander taxpayers' money in burning gasoline to import coal. The proper riposte would have been, "My dear Alphonse, since you're itching to care for our 2,250,000, we're only too happy to oblige. We shall leave immediately." We would have been instantly informed that the tracks had been repaired.

We should utilize this occasion to expel the Russian government from control of the city. The ultimatum: either all of its agents (German party members excepted) quit Greater Berlin, or we extricate ourselves. The Russian government might comply at once; if there were subsequent interference with our communications and transport routes, that would be cause for us to abandon the city. If it unwisely refused to retreat, we would retire, leaving its agents to be nonplussed by the rioting of the hungry and the unemployed.

When the inability of the Communist Party to provide for the population had been demonstrated to the Berliners, to the Germans, to the Europeans, and to the world, but before starvation became fatal, we would return with relief, using force if necessary to deliver it. Of course, if the Russian government sought to repel "the U. S. cavalry to the rescue," anarchy would rule the city. After the people had been revived, it would be disposed to surrender Berlin, when threatened with another withdrawal.

Charity In A Setback

By Malvina Lindsay

Brunt On Children

EVEN ST. PAUL'S glorification of charity has not been able to save it from coming recently upon lean days. The feeble response in this country to the United Nations Appeal for Children—a contribution of only about 12 million of the 60 million dollars sought—dramatically emphasizes this. But other drives for funds had previously shown that a general tightening of pocketbooks was on, that people, as they put it, were "tired of giving."

Several causes lie back of the failure of Americans to answer with their usual generosity the most moving of all appeals, that of the world's hungry, sick and near-naked children. One was the widespread misconception of the Marshall Plan as relief rather than reconstruction. Many Americans thought ERP would take care of all foreign obligations, including hungry children.

Others thought governmental appropriations for the International Emergency Children's Fund would do the job. Yet these appropriations have been small and grudging, and the fund was counting heavily on voluntary support through the United Nations Children's Appeal.

THE appeal also suffered from the way it was conducted. Originally it had been conceived with great imagination. Dr. Aake Ording, Norwegian delegate to the United Nations, had the idea that if there was anything the world could get together on—at least for a day—it was the feeding of hungry children. He proposed that all the peoples of the world unite in giving one day's income, wages, services or goods to save their common stake in tomorrow, their children. Dr. Ording believed that this gesture of unity would have great meaning aside from what it would contribute materially.

A start was made in the U. N. to set up an organization to this end. But red tape and factionalism bogged it down. Then each nation decided to go it alone. In the United States the drive was combined with the American Overseas Aid, a coalition of about 20 relief agencies. The Children's Appeal was to get one-third of the funds sought.

With so many agencies in the American drive, the campaign became confusing. It lacked the dramatic "one world for a day" motif. In many cities there was jealousy and lack of cooperation on the part of older charitable agencies.

Yet most of the nations which stuck to the single idea of "give a day for the children" had better luck. Such countries as Britain, Canada, New Zealand, Sweden and Czechoslovakia collected much greater amounts proportionate to their wealth and population than did the United States.

IT IS, of course, true that people here have been heavily called on for help to war sufferers. And now inflation has greatly cut down many persons' ability to give. Yet recent tax reductions, increased profits, and wage hikes should have made it possible for many Americans to have given more generously.

Failure to do so is part of the general attitude now developing toward fund solicitation. It is partly psychological. Many people are irritated at what they regard as constant "gimme" demands. The war is over, they feel, and they want a rest from responsibility. They are tired of being their brother's keeper financially, politically or any other way.

This financial retreat from the day's challenges is part of the general postwar reaction that threatened for a while to set the Nation backtracking politically and economically. But now the American people seem to be reluctantly starting to take on, in the international field at least, the adult responsibilities the war handed them.

They still have another hard dose of maturity to take. It is that they are going to be "bothered" more and more by charitable demands. The unfortunate and the needy, both at home and abroad, will be increasingly on their doorsteps. It will be self-protection as well as charity to do something about them. That's the kind of world it now is.

Baltimore Gag Rule

On a previous occasion we "threw our darts" at you for a story you published about Baltimore. However, in the spirit of just and fair play we must now give you an "orchid."

Your superb coverage of the murder of Marsha Brill of Baltimore and Carol Bardwell of Washington is to be commended.

You gave your readers the news of the confession of Eugene James to the slayings. Baltimore newspaper readers and radio listeners are "in the dark" to many of the facts surrounding the case which you so ably reported. Even police inspectors have been "fighting" to get copies of The Washington Post in order to get the full report.

This situation develops, as you know, from the gag on a free press imposed by the Supreme Bench of Baltimore City. Orchids, too, are in order for your staff reporter who has taken such an active role in the fight to prevent a State-wide imposition of the gag rule on crime news. Your editorials on the subject have also been very good.

Thank heavens that we have such a paper as The Washington Post to take an interest in Maryland affairs. RAY MARTIN.

Today And Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

Hail And Farewell

ALTHOUGH this article must be written and out of my hands before the nominations are made at Philadelphia, I am assuming that the predictions are correct and that the ticket will be Truman and Barkley. If that is it, the convention will have made the best it could out of Mr. Truman's refusal to step aside. It will have made it possible for Senator Barkley to become the caretaker of the party once Mr. Truman leaves the White House. For while Mr. Barkley is only the second man on the ticket, he will be the first man of the party when it becomes the opposition. Only in Congress will the Democratic Party play a responsible part in the National Government. Senator Barkley is already the Democratic leader in Congress. As the nominee of the convention for Vice President, he will have the clearest mandate to exercise his leadership which the party was able to give him.

HAD THE party expected to elect Mr. Truman, it would not have turned to an elder statesman to be his running mate. The choice of Barkley, who is older than Truman but is a highly experienced legislator and a trusted party leader, is as frank a recognition as the circumstances and the rules of the game permitted that the Democrats have written off this election, and are looking beyond it. The managers and the orators of the convention came as near to saying this as they could. They dwelt upon the record of the past, upon the achievements of Wilson and Roosevelt, passed over the Truman period in virtual silence, treating it as an interlude, and reaffirmed the big attitudes and aspirations to which a new generation of Democrats, as yet unseen and unknown, will give substance and meaning.

IT HAS been said, notably by Mr. Farley, that the Democratic leaders and bosses did a disservice to the party by manifesting their opposition to Mr. Truman. They have, so runs the complaint, torn down the man whom they were bound to nominate and support. Mr. Farley is, I think, too preoccupied with the orthodox routine of party organization. The opposition to Truman did not tear down a strong and successful leader. There would not have been the bitter and varied opposition if the Truman leadership had not already broken down. For the different factions to have pretended that they were happy and harmonious would have deceived no one—least of all the disaffected rank and file. It would have built up the Truman Administration.

But it would have stifled the one best thing in the Democratic Party, the very thing which will enable it to survive defeat, and to recover. That is its vitality and freedom, its enterprise and adventurousness, often undisciplined, sometimes reckless but, nevertheless, the secret of its hold upon those who look forward and want to go forward. Had the convention followed Mr. Farley's advice and shown itself to be complacent, partisan to the point of hypocrisy, the result would have been more melancholy than it is. For then, in addition to certain defeat this year, the party would have made it much more difficult for those who cannot support Truman now to remain Democrats for the future. They would have been homeless, unable to stay with the Truman Democrats, unable to go to Wallace.

The great clatter of the anti-Truman opposition was the noise of the doors being forced wide open for a new generation to enter.

THE NEW generation of Democrats will not be ready and available for some years to come. Nor, unless there is a national or international catastrophe, are the Democrats likely to return for at least 8 years, perhaps for 12 or 16 years. Under Dewey and Warren there is every reason to anticipate a long period of Republican rule. For Dewey is not only likely to be an extremely competent President but an astute party leader as well, quite capable of holding the conservatives while he reaches out for the progressives.

For some considerable time, therefore, the Democratic opposition will not be dealing with the Republican Party they have been used to for the past 16 years—but with something much more formidable, more intelligent, more attractive—with a party which moves in the tradition of Theodore Roosevelt, of Root, of Stimson rather than of Hoover, Coolidge and Landon. The new generation of Democrats will be educated by serious competition. That is something they have lacked for 30 years, and that is one of the main reasons why, after Roosevelt, they have no great national figures today.

AS THE Democratic Party relinquishes its power, it is torn by factionalism, yet I think there are both general and specific reasons for disgreeing with those who, like Mr. Wallace, say that the party is dying. The general reason is that American parties do not die. My old friend and colleague, Herbert Croly, used to say that the two American parties were like primitive organisms which cannot easily be killed: If their heads and tentacles are cut off, they grow new ones. Experience hears him out. The Democrats, who tore themselves to pieces in 1924, won overwhelmingly in 1932; the Republicans who in 1936 looked to be as down and out as it was possible to be, would, but for the war, have been probable winners in 1940, certain winners in 1944.

The factionalism of the Democrats today is not, it seems to me, so violent as it was after the Wilson period. There are no controversies so apparently irreconcilable as were those which raged over the Ku Klux Klan, prohibition, Al Smith and Bryan. My own notion is that any party, when it has exhausted its mandate to govern, becomes factional. But its divisions are not what cause it to lose power. It is the prospect of losing power that incites and releases the factions of which all great parties are invariably composed.

THE COUNTRY, all of it, may, therefore, say to the Democrats as they relinquish the power they have held so long and the heavy responsibilities they have borne through dangerous days: "Hail and farewell . . . we shall meet again . . ."

Power Failure At Philadelphia

Childs

PHILADELPHIA.—The ABC's of political power—or the lack of it—are written large over this humid, unhappy assembly of what was once a powerful and triumphant party.

If anyone took the time to read, he might learn. Above all, he could learn that political power is not conjured up out of nothing. It does not consist of press statements. It is not made out of radio broadcasts. It does not lie in leather-lunged cries for Eisenhower or Douglas.

These things may be a part of it. But essentially power must be grounded in organization. That is the lesson for those who tried by such amateurish means to engineer the stop-Truman drive. And that same lesson should be conned by Candidate Harry S. Truman, although it is rather late in the day.

Candidate Truman is tagged with bossism. He was tapped by professional politicians at the start of his career and they have boosted him on up the political ladder.

But his chief weakness is his political ineptitude. He seems never to have learned the ABCs of political organization and how to use it. That is the supreme irony in the position of the man who must now try to guide the sulky and disgruntled forces of his party in something resembling a national campaign.

A great deal has been written about the faces that are missing here; above all, the men and women who created the New Deal; men and women sometimes brilliant and resourceful, sometimes arbitrary and mistaken. But another set of men far more fundamental are missing, too. I mean, of course, the bosses.

YOU NEED to look back only 12 years to another convention held here in Philadelphia to get a measure of the change. In 1936 the Democratic Party assembled to renominate Franklin D. Roosevelt. That may well have been the greatest gathering of bosses ever under one political tent.

They were all there—the Hagues, the Kellys, the Crumps, big and little. They were potentates, each with his suite and train of followers, each from his own principality where power was more or less absolute.

Boss Tom Pendergast of Missouri was one of them. Short, thick, bullet-headed, he walked in majesty through the hotel lobbies. Two years before he had sent his man, Truman, to the Senate and the new Senator was one of his following on that relaxed and happy occasion.

They renominated Franklin D. Roosevelt, and he came to Philadelphia to accept the nomination at Franklin Field. It was a night of magnificent moonlight, clear and warm, and Roosevelt, at the top of his political form, made it into one of the greatest rallies in our political history.

Those bosses are gone or they are tired and old, shorn of their power. They needed Roosevelt. That is to say, they needed a candidate with his winning qualities and his great capacity for personal leadership.

What is equally important, he needed them. He knew it; he never allowed himself to forget it. But he knew how to use them and their power for his own ends and that is the important distinction today.

IN CONTRAST, Mr. Truman has been used by the bosses. This is not intended to sound sinister, since in spite of all the digging by determined diggers no one has been able to attach scandal or corruption to Truman's name. One reason Boss Pendergast chose Harry Truman to represent him in the Senate was because he had proved to be honest and loyal.

In Washington, however, Truman took his orders. He often took them too literally. Stubbornly, Senator Truman fought for the men whom the boss wanted appointed to Federal office. His loyalty was of the kind that forswears independence. If he had learned how to compromise the power of the boss, he might today be a different kind of President and a different kind of candidate.

Long ago, Lincoln Steffens, in his searching study of American cities, pointed to the importance of the role of the boss as a kind of broker between the haves on one side of the railroad track and the have-nots on the other side. The man in high political office must be broker for the power of the bosses. And without the skill and diligence of the organizer, the broker, the compromiser, no party—and in particular the Democratic Party—has any very firm foundation.

There is still another lesson in all this. It is not hard to recall the talk of a "Roosevelt dictatorship" and even silly and hysterical suggestions that he intended to pass his power on to members of his own family. This dictatorship was building on the absolute power of the bosses. But where is it? Certainly not here in Philadelphia in the year 1948.

Matter Of Fact

By Joseph And Stewart Alsop

The Twilight Of The Gods

Philadelphia, July 14.—In the long run, the final, open split between the Northern and Southern Democrats is likely to prove a more important event of this convention than any mere nomination of candidates. The passage this afternoon of the strong civil rights resolution of Mayor Hubert Humphrey of Minneapolis leaves a split far more embittered, far more difficult to heal, than the splits of the Northern and Southern Democrats of the '20's. Then the issues were merely Rum and Romanism. Now they are Civil Rights and Social Change.

The convention's action was, of course, the result of the mounting rage of the Northern Democrats against the Southern shouters for white supremacy. Some of these have gone so far, at this heart-breaking convention that one began to expect the Mississippi delegation to propose repeal of the anti-slavery amendments of the Constitution.

The general odor of the Southern bloc was not improved, either, by its almost impassioned advocacy of the tidelands oil grab, no doubt not unconnected with the reported financing of the forthcoming Southern rump convention by the oil interests. In the passion of the moment, men more representative of the real South, like Senator Lister Hill of Alabama, were rendered powerless, and in the passion of the moment, the Northerners became infuriated with all Southerners and hit out with little regard for immediate consequences.

The background of this great event is dramatic. President Truman had desperately hoped to patch up a compromise. By his instruction, his few faithful henchmen like Senator J. Howard McGrath of Rhode Island and Senator Francis Myers of Pennsylvania tried frantically to pass the resolutions committee's weasel-worded civil rights plank.

But the plans of the insurrectionists had been well laid, mainly at a meeting of the Americans for Democratic Action, for whom this is a big score. John Shelley of California was prepared to lead his men in a march on the platform if Convention Chairman Sam Rayburn tried to gavel the rebels down. The ADA had men in every Northern delegation, ready to demand delegation roll calls if delegates tried to go along with Truman. And the big city leaders—Ed Flynn, Paul Fitzpatrick, Ed Kelly, Jake Avery, David Lawrence—formed part of the combination. They had the votes, and they won.

The melodrama is stirring. But the melodrama of the moment is less important than the great process of social change which has transformed the big city leaders of the North from rigid conservatives to progressives. The split in the Democratic Party is so much deeper now, for a very simple reason. This vital change has already affected the North, while the Democratic Party in the South has largely remained in the hands of the oligarchy which has always controlled it. Formerly planters, the leading oligarchs are now industrialists and bankers.

Different interests predominate in different States, textile mill owners are strong in the Carolinas. The power people carry great weight in Georgia. In Mississippi, the cozy relationship between Gov. Fielding Wright and the Mississippi Power & Light Co. is a beautiful example of mutual affection. And so it goes.

Meanwhile, although the oligarchy still rules, the same social change that has altered the Northern big city organizations has been going on more slowly in the South, as a result of diversification of agriculture and industrialization. The effects can already be seen in the Congress. There are fewer moderate Southern conservatives in the great tradition of Senator Joseph T. Robinson and Secretary of State James F. Byrnes. There are more and more Southerners like Senators Hill and Sparkman and Representative Kefauver, who are strongly progressive on all questions but the race question. Unfortunately, there are also more Southerners of the type that used to be classically represented by Senator Theodore Bilbo.

The advent of social change in the South has, in fact, rendered the position of the oligarchy insecure, as the emergence of the Hills, Sparkmans and Kefauvers suggests. Thus the oligarchs are being driven more and more to support Bilbo-like candidates (as big business is supporting the revolting Herman Talmadge) because these candidates insure the submergence of social issues in the race issue. This tactic hits, in turn, at the Hills, Sparkmans and Kefauvers, who, being civilized men, will not go to the extremes of the Bilbos.

In the end, one suspects that the old fashioned Southern conservatives of the Byrnes type will disappear. Where the oligarchy is defeated, there will be Southern leaders like Kefauver, and where the oligarchs triumph, there will be such denials of all the guaranteed, constitutional rights and liberties as will confront the Federal Government with a real problem of making the Constitution stick. For the short run, it is not a happy prospect.

For the long run, it must be added, the prospect makes the tactics of the Northerners at this convention seem a little less politically unwise than President Truman, thinking of the campaign, no doubt believes. The issue had to be faced some time. It was probably just as well to face it now, when there is almost certainly going to be a Republican administration in Washington. Control of the Federal Government by the Republicans ought to give the Southern Progressives their chance, if anything ever will.

Democrats' Foreign Plank Irks Dewey

New York, July 14 (U.P.).—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, Republican presidential nominee, struck at the Democratic platform plank on international affairs today by saying it was filled with "extremely partisan and provocative assertions."

He made his opening attack on the Democrats after a lengthy conference with John Foster Dulles, American delegate to the United Nations. Dulles, Dewey's chief adviser on international problems, is being mentioned as Secretary of State if he wins the election.

"Mr. Dulles and I have canvassed the tense Berlin situation and provocative assertions concerning foreign affairs in the draft platform of the Democratic Party," Dewey said.

He did not mention specific phases of the Democratic foreign affairs plank. It was understood he objected to its entire tone.

As GOP standard bearer in 1944, Dewey proposed that international policy be worked on a bipartisan basis. He named Dulles as his representative to confer with the then Secretary of State Cordell Hull.

The Democrats, Dewey charged, confined the bipartisan agreement to the U. N. and the Marshall Plan. He said the Truman Administration had not consulted Republican leaders on such foreign dealings as the Potsdam Conference or the Palestine policy.

Dewey indicated that he would make foreign affairs one of the major issues of the campaign. When campaigning for the GOP nomination, he termed Mr. Truman's foreign policy "slipshod and without direction."

The Governor, however, has advised Dulles to accept an invitation by the Department of State to attend the next meeting of the U. N. General Assembly in Paris.

NLRB to Test UMW Clause On Union Shop

The National Labor Relations Board will proceed with its charge that the union shop clause in the United Mine Workers contract, recently signed, is illegal, Robert N. Denham, NLRB general counsel, said yesterday.

Denham's announcement came after NLRB reluctantly withdrew its injunction proceedings against John L. Lewis and the UMW before Federal Judge T. Alan Goldsborough. Goldsborough Tuesday initiated a compromise settlement of the strike in "captive" coal mines. The steel company owners of the captive mines signed the contract with a stipulation that the union shop clause would be waived if a court ruling later held it contrary to the Taft-Hartley Act.

The NLRB hearing into the case will be held before a trial examiner July 24. The examiner's ruling then will be subject to appeal to the appellate court by either side.

Clark Accused Of Shelving Rail Rate Case

Attorney General Tom C. Clark was accused yesterday of "pigeonholing" the recommendation of the Justice Department's antitrust division for an investigation into allegations that the Army had been "overcharged" on wartime freight rates.

The accusation was made by Representative George H. Bender (R., Ohio), chairman of a subcommittee of the House Expenditures Committee, which is investigating wartime costs, including freight rates.

In an open letter to the Attorney General, Bender noted that Clark had been quoted as saying he could act in the case of Army transportation officers "who set exorbitant wartime freight rates" only if the Bender subcommittee could furnish facts to substantiate charges of misconduct.

"Had Facts Since 1945"

The Bender letter added:

"I should like to point out that the testimony before my subcommittee shows that facts were in possession of your antitrust division as early as 1945 and these facts were the basis of a report by that division recommending an FBI investigation of Army traffic personnel. Knowledge of the matter was only recently brought to the attention of the subcommittee by former and present employes of your department, including James E. Kilday, chief of the transportation unit of the antitrust division.

"In answer to a question by the subcommittee council, Mr. Kilday confirmed the fact that suspicion of activities of Army traffic personnel had led to an inquiry by the antitrust division during the war, culminating in a report which recommended a detailed investigation by the FBI. Mr. Kilday testified further that the matter was subsequently dropped and no FBI investigation was undertaken.

Charges Inconsistency

"Other witnesses added that the investigation was set aside because, they were told, the Attorney General wished to handle the matter 'personally.'

"I am in entire agreement with you that the Justice Department should proceed against the officers in question only on the basis of facts. But I should like to emphasize the inconsistency of your department's position in calling for facts on the one hand, and on the other pigeonholing the recommendation by one of your own divisions for investigation by the FBI—the only agency equipped to develop completely the relevant facts which might be a basis for further action.

"In order to clarify this matter, I should appreciate your furnishing to the subcommittee at your earliest convenience a copy of the antitrust division report in question."

Kingswinford, England, July 14 (U.P.). Crystal Nash, 16, was crowned beauty queen of the Kingswinford Labor Party Saturday. She received her prize last night and confessed she belonged to the Young Conservatives.

Strike Threat Is Averted

Ottawa, July 14 (AP).—The threat of a Canada-wide rail strike was averted today less than 16 hours before 150,000 workers were to have walked out.

The strike had been set for 6 a. m. Thursday.

Labor Minister Humphrey Mitchell announced the Canadian rail unions had agreed to accept a wage increase of 17 cents an hour, retroactive to March 1. The unions had scaled down their original demand of 35 cents to a 20-25 cents-an-hour demand before agreeing to the compromise figure.

Queen, 2 Princesses Hurt in Denmark

Copenhagen, July 14 (AP).—Queen Ingrid of Denmark and Princesses Margrethe, 8, and Ann Marie, 23 months, were injured today when their automobile hit a tree. The court said later their condition is satisfactory.

The Queen was driving the car with a chauffeur at her side. The car skidded on a slippery road.

British Inflation Ended, Cripps Says

London, July 14 (NYHT).—Sir Stafford Cripps told a press conference today that Britain has stopped inflation "and in certain lines disinflation has set in."

The Chancellor of the Exchequer said a buyers' market is beginning to emerge in some fields. He said demand was falling off for electric clocks, radios, electrical appliances, carpet sweepers and for certain types of clothing and leather goods.

Which?

Which came first? Useless controversy! Both supply the world's needs.

To us, clothes and furnishings are equally of inseparable relationship.

When we provide the finest clothing the world offers, how lax we would be if we could not supply worthy furnishings—hats to shoes, shirts to underwear, stockings to ties—all that a well-dressed man must have for his complete wardrobe.

If some of our customers wax terrifically enthusiastic about the wide range and illimitable choice of our furnishings, we know many others who come close to raving about our clothing.

That both are right is of great pride to us.

Smile a Minute Farce at Olney

By Richard L. Coe

THE MACARTHUR FAMILY is certainly doing its all by Olney. Mother Helen Hayes MacArthur opened the season with exceptional elan. Daughter Mary MacArthur proved a sweetly competent ingenue for the first six weeks. And now Father MacArthur comes along as coauthor of the summer's funniest farce.

This is "Twentieth Century," which MacArthur and Ben Hecht wrote along about 1932. Eugenie Leontovich has been lured to recreate her role of the fading, tempestuous theatrical star, Jose Ferrer is proving that a true actor can play comedy as well as the dramas with which he recently has been associated, and a sound supporting cast is making high-jinks of the first water.

Although John Barrymore and Carole Lombard played this in the movies, "Twentieth Century" is particularly welcome because it hasn't been gnawed to ribbons by previous local productions. Its lines still have sting, and through a couple of contemporary insertions one feels it might have just come out of the authors' acidulous typewriters.

The scene is aboard that celebrated train of the Chicago-New York run. In one way or another every passenger we glimpse is an individualist. Most colorful of them are Oscar Jaffe, a theatrical producer whose bank balance is etched in red ink but whose plans for the future are as rosy as all "at liberty" in his optimistic profession, and Lily Garland, an actress whose future is dubious but whose vivid past links her with Oscar. How their ambitions once more are enjoined is the frolicsome plot of the Hecht-MacArthur observations on the heart and fringes of things theatrical.

A Real Actor

Ferrer's choice, relaxed performance of the self-dramatizing producer is wonderful fun. The tricks that prompt Oscar's success recall the zest of the conniving "Volpone," one of Ferrer's outstanding successes in his new capacity as sparkplug of New York's City Center drama group. Oscar is a juicy part, but it's a real tribute to say that Ferrer is one of the few actors of the American stage who, within a few seasons, has played a gamut running from Iago to Cyrano to the sharp burlesque of this role. His is the versatility of the true actor as opposed to the carbon copy characterizations which all too often pass for acting.

Miss Leontovich, when lapsis linguae deserts her, is deliciously bewitching as Lily of the mercurial moods, Lily who enjoys a trounce in an armchair with any male that's handy but keeps her mind on her career at all turns. Her entrance with the gold statuette of the Hollywood Academy is neatly played, and when she comes to reading a line like, "What is there in life I have not had too much of?" she's a marvel.

The balance of Director Joseph Kramm's cast is exceptionally good, with Richard Rober's tart-tongued publicity man, Donald Stevens' wacky passenger and Ethel Remey's ambitious playwright outstanding.

Down-to-earth laughter is the Olney keynote this week, and the folks are digging it fine. Don't miss "Twentieth Century."

THE WASHINGTON Workshop Drama Group tonight closes its semester with two one-act plays, "Fleas and Figs," by Mary Averett Seelye, the group's director, and "The Happy Journey," that merry fluff of Thornton Wilder . . . The plays go on at 9:15 in the Workshop's studios, the Walsh Mansion, 2020 Massachusetts ave., with a repeat performance scheduled Thursday night, July 22, in the Parish House of St. John's Church, 819 16th st.

Oklahoma Sans Song

OKLAHOMA'S history is getting its share of attention this week. With the hit musical ensconced at the National, Keith's yesterday took up the subject of the territory a few years before the stage play takes over, in a better-than-average Western, "Return of the Bad Men."

With Randolph Scott's strong arm and quick trigger finger on the side of Right, you don't need to be told that things come out as they always do in a Western. But RKO has made things tough for our Randy.

RANDOLPH SCOTT
The Law in Oklahoma

This time he's got almost every outlaw you ever heard of agin him: the Younger brothers, the Dalton boys, Billy the Kid, two Wild Bill's and the Arkansas Kid, loosely allied, are doing what they can to make a dishonest living after the Land Rush of 1889. Belle Starr was busy elsewhere (dead, perhaps?), but there's a lady bandit, too, one Cheyenne, who reforms under the smooth talk of Scott's Virginia accent.

Something of a welcome novelty is the appearance of Gabby Hayes as a bank president. The popular Gabby, usually working at something less vital, makes the banker an amusing character and Anne Jeffreys has a good time as the female bandit who takes to the straight and narrow.

Another battling the righteous Randy is Robert Ryan, as the Sundance Kid, who, whether he stems from fact or fancy, is a boy whose downright viciousness positively mesmerized yesterday's packed first house. Bob kills one Indian, pumps lead into a pal's head, strangles Miss Jeffreys and gosh knows what else he did while we were picking up our popcorn bag.

All told, "Return of the Bad Men" is exactly what you'd expect it to be, and if you don't think the blood and thunder stuff has its faithful partisans you should have seen the mob at Keith's yesterday.

"Letter to a Rebel"

Also on the Keith bill is "Letter to a Rebel," which the Johnston office has been promoting. This is one of the "This Is America" series and is a letter from a father to a son. The older man is editor of a small town newspaper; his son edits his college paper.

Exactly what the son has written in an editorial that prompts the father's paean for the blessings of capitalism we are not told. Dad seems to live in a world where prices have not risen 100 per cent and where there seems to be no housing problems. While one wouldn't disagree with Dad's Americanism, he doesn't seem to have a very clear idea, for a newspaper editor, of what's going on.

Dad tells Son that only in the United States do unions enjoy freedom. How about Britain's T. U. C. and its Labor Party? Dad says the druggist never sold him anything "bad," though he doesn't mention that Federal laws are his real protection. That the family table is heaped with good things seems to this observer more reflective of the natural resources of our amazing country than of a laissez-faire system which the film tacitly lauds. "Letter to a Rebel" is all very noble, but one can't help wondering what Son's editorial said. Pop's rewrite of an N. A. M. press release doesn't help.

You 'Roll Your Own' at District Camera Schools

By Ollie Atkins

IT IS not too late to take summer courses and is just the right time to consider enrolling in fall terms in the several excellent schools offering all phases of photographic training in the Washington area.

I have examined the schools and have found them all competently operated. Day and night classes accommodate both the student considering photography as his career and the casual amateur who wants to fit training into his free time.

Several things about the schools' methods impressed me favorably. There is a lot of actual picture making, developing and printing. You shoot your own pictures. You follow up in the lab by processing your own work, giving additional interest to the fascinating darkroom routines.

Students may make personal pictures and process them at the school labs. Even odd jobs the students may pick up are allowed to pass through the school facilities.

The tested methods of the commercial photographer are combined with the tastes and abilities of the individual so that the work is turned out in a professional manner but not by fussy, time-wasting formulas.

SELF-MADE photographers may frown at school training. I am one of the old-school lads myself. My training was on newspapers under sourfaced chief photographers who dreaded the task of training rookie lensmen every year or two. I can add that the last thing I'd care to do even today is train a photographer.

We figured that an ambitious fellow could learn to produce a picture on nearly every assignment after a solid year's work, and it was no eight hours a day and five days a week at that time'

Professional schools turning out dentists or lawyers or trade schools training printers or toolmakers do not expect to graduate master craftsmen. But one would have to be a very stubborn character not to admit that the schooling makes it easy to develop excellent technicians out of the trainees. Too, the boys who do not have the necessary spark are usually weeded out during training.

Here are the schools of photography in Washington. Not included are small classes taught by private individuals or courses offered as a sideline to high school and college education.

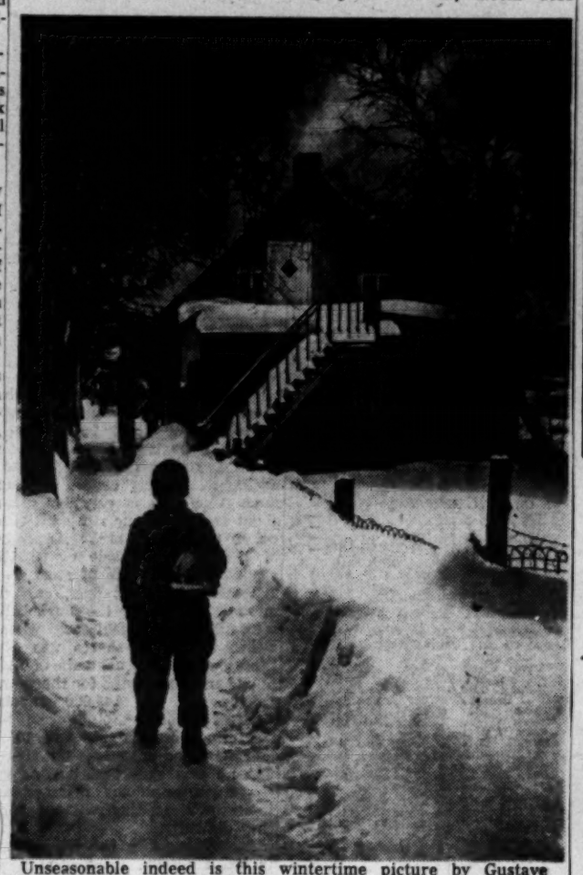
NATIONAL SCHOOL OF PHOTOGRAPHY, Ruroy Sibley, president, 922 Burlington ave., Silver Spring, Md. Telephone Shepherd 4222 or 4131. Catalogue available. Coeducational. Day and night classes. All phases of photography and color photography.

Washington Institute of Photography, Harry Frohman, director, 2637 Connecticut ave. nw., Washington 8, D. C. Telephone MIchigan 2266. Printed information available. Coeducational. Day and night classes. Specializes in portrait and general professional photography.

Capitol School of Photography, Robert S. Scurlock, director, 1813 18th st. nw. Printed information available. Colored, coeducational. Day and night classes. General training plus advanced courses in portraiture and commercial photography.

Department of Agriculture Photographic Seminar, Room 1031 South Building. Telephone Republic 4142, Ext. 6337. Catalogue available. Government employes with exceptions. Coeducational. College credit and noncredit courses in general photography and specialized fields.

SUMMER meetings of the National Photographic Society opened last night with Dr. S. S. Jaffee exhibiting his collection of color slides of Mexico and Harry B. Shaw reviewing photographic printing processes from Daguerre to the present at the Little Tea House in Arlington. The society's portrait class will conduct a special meeting at the Marine Monument, near the Virginia end of 14th st. bridge, at 1 p. m. Saturday. Models will be available. You may bring your lunch.



Unseasonable indeed is this wintertime picture by Gustave H. Werner, 102 Exeter rd., Bethesda, Md., but it is a cool reminder of days when most of us admired the snow but did nothing to photograph it. Mr. Werner made this picture on ortho film at 1/25th second F/11

2 D. C. Banks Vote Increase In Dividends

By S. Oliver Goodman

Stockholders of two Washington banks received some pleasant news yesterday in the form of an extra dividend and an increased disbursement.

Directors of National Savings & Trust Co. declared an extra of $1 a share in addition to the regular quarterly dividend of $2 a share President Bruce Baird announced. Both are payable August 2 to stock of record July 23.

Hamilton National Bank declared a semi-annual dividend of $1 a share, President Wilmer J. Waller reported, making a total payment of $2 a share for this year compared with $1.80 last year. The dividend is payable August 2 to stock of record July 22.

N. S. & T.'s declaration of an extra dividend marks the fifth year in which the Washington trust company has increased the rate of payment. This year's disbursement will total at least $9 a share. In previous years, dividends were paid as follows: $8 in 1947, $7.50 in 1946; $6 in 1945; $5 in 1944 and $4 in 1943.

In the same period the bank's stock, listed on the Washington Stock Exchange, has risen from $205 bid in 1943 to the current bid price of $420.

National Savings & Trust Co. has forged ahead to third place in deposits among Washington banks. Latest statement as of June 30, 1948, showed deposits of $88,102,233, compared with $26,113,527 on June 30 1943.

GEICO DIVIDENDS: Stockholders of Government Employes Insurance Co. yesterday approved a capital increase of $200,000, bringing the Washington firm's total paid-in capital to $500,000. Directors then authorized a 66 2-3 per cent stock dividend and also declared a semiannual cash dividend of 83 1-3 cents on the 75,000 shares of $4 par stock now outstanding. Both dividends are payable July 30 to stock of record July 21. President Leo Goodwin reported the cash dividend is equivalent to an annual rate of $1 a share on the 125,000 shares which will be outstanding after the stock dividend.

WHO'S WHO TODAY: Howard S. Palmer, president of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad, has asked to be retired August 12. His resignation had been widely rumored following claims of Frederick C. Dumaine, Boston financier, that he and his associates have acquired enough of preferred stock to give voting control . . . George E. Felton, Boston industrialist, has been appointed director of production, one of the key staff positions of the National Security Resources Board . . . E. B. Newill, general manager of the Allison Division of General Motors, has been elected a vice president of GM.

NEW HOURS TODAY: The Washington Stock Exchange will take a long forward step today with the inauguration of extended trading hours. The new hours of 10 a. m. to 3 p. m. for trading in dually-listed issues are expected to increase turnover and the importance of the exchange to local investors. Previous hours of 11:15 a. m. to noon have been found unsatisfactory.

FOOD PRICES: Wholesale food prices hit an all-time high this week, Dun & Bradstreet reported. The wholesale index, representing the sum total cost per pound of each of 31 common foodstuffs, reached $7.36 Tuesday. The previous record high was $7.28 January 13. Last week the index stood at $7.12, and a year ago at $6.52. Skyrocketing meat prices led the advance. In the higher column were flour, oats, beef, ham, lard, cheese, sugar, cocoa, eggs, steers, hogs and lamb. Down were wheat, corn, rye, barley, cottonseed oil, and beans.

New Indonesian Firm

New York, July 14.—The Republic of Indonesia has approved the formation of the American-Indonesian Corp. as part of a broad program to rehabilitate and develop Indonesian economy. The corporation will act as agent and service organization in sale of Indonesian government-owned commodities. It will also act as the Republic's purchasing agent in the United States for governmental requirements.

New York Cotton

New York, July 14 (AP).—Cotton futures 20 to 55 cents a bale higher today. Evening-up operations in nearby July dominated the market until trading in those contracts expired at noon today. Traders had thought prices would decline sharply with July futures out of the way. When this failed to materialize, they covered contracts aggressively which led a fair rally toward the close. The interest of dealers centered on crop weather, leading up to the first Government forecast of the 1948 cotton crop on August 8.

Chicago Grain

Chicago, July 14 (AP).—The only grain contract anyone really seemed to want on the Board of Trade today was July corn. It spurted more than 3 cents a bushel, giving some steadiness to other deliveries of the yellow cereal. But the rest of the market worked lower.

Some of the buying in July corn came from previous short sellers. It was based on strength for this grain in the cash market. At one time cash houses also jumped into the pit on the buying side of this delivery. Trading in July contracts ends on July 23.

Wheat closed unchanged to ⅝ lower, July 2.27⅝; corn was ¼ lower to 3⅛ higher, July 2.08¼@2.08½; oats were unchanged to ⅛ lower; July 88⅞@89; rye was 2½-2⅝ lower; December 1.87¾, and soybeans were 7¾ to 8 cents lower, July 3.87½@3.87¾.

Platform Adopted by Democratic Convention at Philadelphia

Philadelphia, July 14 (Wednesday) (AP).—The official text of the 1948 Democratic platform, as approved early today by the party's 108-member resolutions committee, and later ratified by the Democratic Convention after floor insertion of a new civil rights plank:

The Democratic Party adopts this platform in the conviction that the destiny of the United States is to provide leadership in the world toward a realization of the Four Freedoms.

We chart our future course as we charted our course under the leadership of Franklin D. Roosevelt and Harry S. Truman in the abiding belief that democracy—when dedicated to the service of all and not to a privileged few—proves its superiority over all other forms of government.

Our party record of the past is assurance of its policies and performance in the future.

Ours is the party which was entrusted with responsibility when 12 years of Republican neglect had blighted the hopes of mankind, had squandered the fruits of prosperity and had plunged us into the depths of depression and despair.

Ours is the party which rebuilt a shattered economy, rescued our banking system, revived our agriculture, reinvigorated our industry, gave labor strength and security, and led the American people to the broadest prosperity in our history.

Ours is the party which introduced the spirit of humanity into our law, as we outlawed child labor and the sweatshop, insured bank deposits, protected millions of home owners and farmers from foreclosure, and established national social security.

Party Led Nation to Victory

Ours is the party under which this Nation before Pearl Harbor gave aid and strength to those countries which were holding back the Nazi and Fascist tide.

Ours is the party which stood at the helm and led the Nation to victory in the war.

Ours is the party which, during the war, prepared for peace so well that when peace came reconversion promptly led to the greatest production and employment in this Nation's life.

Ours is the party under whose leadership farm owners' income in this Nation increased from less than $2,500,000,000 in 1933 to more than 18 billion dollars in 1947; independent business and professional income increase from less than three billion dollars in 1933 to more than 22 billion dollars in 1947; employes' earnings increased from 29 billion dollars in 1933 to more than 128 billion dollars in 1947, and employment grew from 39 million jobs in 1933 to a record of 60 million jobs in 1947.

Aided Democratic Countries

Ours is the party under which were conceived the instruments for resisting Communist aggression and for rebuilding the economic strength of the democratic countries of Europe and Asia—the Truman Doctrine and the Marshall Plan. They are the materials with which we must build the peace.

Ours is the party which first proclaimed that the actions and policies of this Nation in the foreign field are matters of national and not just party concern. We shall go forward on the course charted by President Roosevelt and President Truman and the other leaders of democracy.

We reject the principle—which we have always rejected, but which the Republican Eightieth Congress enthusiastically accepted — that government exists for the benefit of the privileged few.

To serve the interests of all and not the few; to assure a world in which peace and justice can prevail; to achieve security, full production and full employment—this is our platform.

Our Foreign Policy

We declared in 1944 that the imperative duty of the United States was to wage a war to final triumph and to join with the other United Nations in the establishment of an international organization for the prevention of aggression and the maintenance of international peace and security.

Under Democratic leadership, those pledges were gloriously redeemed.

When the United States was treacherously and savagely attacked, our great Democratic President, Franklin D. Roosevelt, and a Democratic Congress preserved the Nation's honor, and with high courage and with the invincible might of the American people, the challenge was accepted. Under his inspiring leadership, the Nation created the greatest Army that ever assembled under the flag, the mightiest Air Force, the most powerful Navy on the globe, and the largest Merchant Marine in the world.

The Nation's gallant sons on land, on sea, and in the air, ended the war in complete and overwhelming triumph. Armed aggression against peaceful peoples was resisted and crushed. Arrogant and powerful war lords were vanquished and forced to unconditional surrender.

United Nations Organized

Before the end of the war the Democratic Administration turned to the task of establishing measures for peace and the prevention of aggression and the threat of another war. Under the leadership of a Democratic President and his Secretary of State, the United Nations was organized at San Francisco. The Charter was ratified by an overwhelming vote of the Senate. We support the United Nations fully and we pledge our whole-hearted aid toward its growth and development. We will continue to lead the way toward curtailment of the use of the veto. We shall favor such amendments and modifications of the Charter as experience may justify. We will continue our efforts toward the establishment of an international armed force to aid its authority. We advocate the grant of a loan to the United Nations recommended by the President, but denied by the Republican Congress, for the construction of the United Nations headquarters in this country.

We pledge our best endeavors to conclude treaties of peace with our former enemies. Already treaties have been made with Italy, Hungary, Bulgaria and Romania. We shall strive to conclude treaties with the remaining enemy states, based on justice and with guarantees against the revival of aggression, and for the preservation of peace.

We advocate the maintenance of an adequate Army, Navy and Air Force to protect the Nation's vital interests and to assure our security against aggression.

Atomic Control Advocated

We advocate the effective international control of weapons of mass destruction, including the atomic bomb, and we approve continued and vigorous efforts within the United Nations to bring about the successful consummation of the proposals which our Government has advanced.

The adoption of these proposals would be a vital and most important step toward safe and effective world disarmament and world peace under a strengthened United Nations which would then truly constitute a more effective parliament of the world's peoples.

Under the leadership of a Democratic President, the United States has demonstrated its friendship for other peace-loving nations and its support of their freedom and independence. Under the Truman Doctrine vital aid has been extended to China, to Greece and to Turkey. Under the Marshall Plan generous sums have been provided for the relief and rehabilitation of European nations striving to rebuild their economy and to secure and strengthen their safety and freedom. The Republican leadership in the House of Representatives, by its votes in the Eightieth Congress, has shown its reluctance to provide funds to support this program, the greatest move for peace and recovery made since the end of World War II.

Necessary Funds Pledged

We pledge a sound, humanitarian administration of the Marshall Plan.

We pledge support not only for these principles—we pledge further that we will not withhold necessary funds by which these principles can be achieved. Therefore, we pledge that we will implement with appropriations the commitments which are made in this Nation's foreign programs.

We pledge ourselves to restore the reciprocal trade agreements program formulated in 1934 by Secretary of State Cordell Hull and operated successfully for 14 years—until crippled by the Republican 80th Congress. Further, we strongly indorse our country's adherence to the International Trade Organization.

A great Democratic President established the good neighbor policy toward the nations of the Western Hemisphere. The act of Chapultepec was negotiated at Mexico City under Democratic leadership. It was carried forward in the Western Hemisphere Defense Pact concluded at Rio de Janeiro, which implemented the Monroe Doctrine and united the Western Hemisphere in behalf of peace. We pledge continued economic cooperation with the countries of the Western Hemisphere. We pledge continued support of regional arrangements within the United Nations Charter, such as the Inter-American Regional Pact and the developing Western European Union.

Pledge to Israel

President Truman, by granting immediate recognition to Israel, led the world in extending friendship and welcome to a people who have long sought and justly deserve freedom and independence.

We pledge full recognition to the state of Israel. We affirm our pride that the United States under the leadership of President Truman played a leading role in the adoption of the resolution of November 29, 1947, by the United Nations General Assembly for the creation of a Jewish state.

We approve the claims of the state of Israel to the boundaries set forth in the United Nations resolution of November 29, and consider that modifications thereof should be made only if fully acceptable to the state of Israel.

We look forward to the admission of the state of Israel to the United Nations and its full participation in the international community of nations. We pledge appropriate aid to the state of Israel in developing its economy and resources.

Arms Embargo Revision

We favor the revision of the arms embargo to accord to the state of Israel the right of self-defense. We pledge ourselves to work for the modification of any resolution of the United Nations to the extent that it may prevent any such revision.

We continue to support, within the framework of the United Nations, the internationalization of Jerusalem and the protection of the holy places in Palestine.

The United States has traditionally been in sympathy with the efforts of subjugated countries to attain their independence, and to establish a democratic form of government. Poland is an outstanding example. After a century and a half of subjugation, it was resurrected after World War I by our great Democratic President, Woodrow Wilson. We look forward to development of these countries as prosperous, free, and democratic fellow members of the United Nations.

Our Domestic Policies

The Republican Eightieth Congress is directly responsible for the existing and ever-increasing high cost of living. It cannot dodge that responsibility. Unless the Republican candidates are defeated in the approaching elections, their mistaken policies will impose greater hardships and suffering on large numbers of the American people. Adequate food, clothing and shelter—the bare necessities of life—are becoming too expensive for the average wage earner and the prospects are more frightening each day. The Republican Eightieth Congress has lacked the courage to face this vital problem.

We shall curb the Republican inflation. We shall put a halt to the disastrous price rises which have come as a result of the failure of the Republican 80th Congress to take effective action on President Truman's recommendations, setting forth a comprehensive program to control the high cost of living.

We shall enact comprehensive housing legislation, including provision for slum clearance and low-rent housing projects initiated by local agencies. This Nation is shamed by the failure of the Republican 80th Congress to pass the vitally needed general housing legislation as recommended by the President. Adequate housing will end the need for rent control. Until then, it must be continued.

Sound Fiscal Policies

We pledge the continued maintenance of those sound fiscal policies which under Democratic leadership have brought about a balanced budget and reduction of the public debt by 28 billion dollars since the close of the war.

We favor the reduction of taxes, whenever it is possible to do so without unbalancing the Nation's economy, by giving a full measure of relief to those million of low-income families on whom the wartime burden of taxation fell most heavily. The form of tax reduction adopted by the Republican 80th Congress gave relief to those who need it least and ignored those who need it most.

We shall endeavor to remove tax inequities and to continue to reduce the public debt.

We are opposed to the imposition of a general Federal sales tax.

We advocate the repeal of the Taft-Hartley Act. It was enacted by the Republican Eightieth Congress over the President's veto. That act was proposed with the promise that it would secure "the legitimate rights of both employes and employers in their relations affecting commerce." It has failed. The number of labor-management disputes has increased. The number of cases before the National Labor Relations Board has more than doubled since the act was passed, and efficient and prompt administration is becoming more and more difficult. It has encouraged litigation in labor disputes and undermined the established American policy of collective bargaining. Recent decisions by the courts prove that the act was so poorly drawn that its application is uncertain, and that it is probably, in some provisions, unconstitutional. We advocate such legislation as is desirable to establish a just body of rules to assure free and effective collective bargaining, to determine, in the public interest, the rights of employes and employers, to reduce to a minimum their conflict of interests, and to enable unions to keep their membership free from communistic influences.

Would Rebuild Dept. of Labor

We urge that the Department of Labor be rebuilt and strengthened, restoring to it the units, including the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service and the United States Employment Service, which properly belong to it, and which the Republican 80th Congress stripped from it over the veto of President Truman. We urge that the department's facilities for collecting and disseminating economic information be expanded, and that a labor education extension service be established in the Department of Labor.

We favor the extension of the coverage of the Fair Labor Standards Act as recommended by President Truman, and the adoption of a minimum wage of at least 75 cents an hour in place of the present obsolete and inadequate minimum of 40 cents an hour.

We favor legislation assuring that the workers of our Nation receive equal pay for equal work regardless of sex.

We favor the extension of the Social Security program established under Democratic leadership, to provide additional protection against the hazards of old age, disability, disease or death. We believe that this program should include:

Increases in old-age and survivors' insurance benefits by at least 50 per cent, and reduction of the eligibility age for women from 65 to 60 years; extension of old-age and survivors' and unemployment insurance to all workers not now covered; insurance against loss of earnings on account of illness or disability; improved public assistance for the needy.

We favor the enactment of a national health program for expanded medical research, medical education, and hospitals and clinics.

We will continue our efforts to aid the blind and other handicapped persons to become self-supporting.

We will continue our efforts to expand maternal care, improve the health of the Nation's children and reduce juvenile delinquency.

Aid to Mental Health Favored

We approve the purposes of the Mental Health Act and we favor such appropriations as may be necessary to make it effective.

We advocate Federal aid for education administered by and under the control of the States. We vigorously support the authorization which was so shockingly ignored by the Republican Eightieth Congress, for the appropriation of 300 million dollars as a beginning of Federal aid to the States to assist them in meeting the present educational needs. We insist upon the right of every American child to obtain a good education.

The Nation can never discharge its debt to its millions of war veterans. We pledge ourselves to the continuance and improvement of our national program of benefits for veterans and their families.

We are proud of the sound and comprehensive program conceived, developed and administered under Democratic leadership, including the GI Bill of Rights, which has proved beneficial to many millions.

The level of veterans' benefits must be constantly reexamined in the light of the decline in the purchasing power of the dollar brought about by inflation.

Security for Veterans

Employment and economic security must be afforded all veterans. We pledge a program of housing for veterans at prices they can afford to pay.

The disabled veteran must be provided with medical care and hospitalization of the highest possible standard.

We pledge our efforts to maintain continued farm prosperity, improvement of the standard of living and the working condition of the farmer, and to preserve the family-size farm.

Specifically, we favor a permanent system of flexible price supports for agricultural products, to maintain farm income on a parity with farm operating costs; an intensified soil conservation program; improvement of methods of distributing agricultural products; development and maintenance of stable export markets; adequate financing for the school lunch program; the use of agricultural surpluses to improve the diet of low-income families in case of need; continued expansion of the rural electrification program; strengthening of all agricultural credit programs; intensified research to improve agricultural practices, and to find new uses for farm products.

We strongly urge the continuance of maximum farmer participation in all these programs.

Oleo Tax Repeal Favored

We favor the repeal of the discriminatory taxes on the manufacture and sale of oleomargarine.

We will encourage farm cooperatives and oppose any revision of Federal law designed to curtail their most effective functioning as a means of achieving economy, stability and security for American agriculture.

We favor provisions under which our fishery resources and industry will be afforded the benefits that will result from more scientific research and exploration.

We recognize the importance of small business in a sound American economy. It must be protected against unfair discrimination and monopoly, and be given equal opportunities with competing enterprises to expand its capital structure.

We favor nondiscriminatory transportation charges and declare for the early correction of inequalities in such charges.

We pledge the continued full and unified regional development of the water, mineral, and other natural resources of the Nation, recognizing that the progress already achieved under the initiative of the Democratic Party in the arid and semiarid States of the West, as well as in the Tennessee Valley, is only an indication of still greater results which can be accomplished. Our natural resources are the heritage of all our people and must not be permitted to become the private preserves of monopoly.

The irrigation of arid land, the establishment of new, independent, competitive business and the stimulation of new industrial opportunities for all of our people depends upon the development and transmission of electric energy in accordance with the program and the projects so successfully launched under Democratic auspices during the past 16 years.

Reclamation Favored

We favor acceleration of the Federal reclamation program, the maximum beneficial use of water in the several States for irrigation and domestic supply. In this connection, we propose the establishment and maintenance of new family-size farms for veterans and others seeking settlement opportunities, the development of hydroelectric power and its widespread distribution over publicly owned transmission lines to assure benefits to the water users in financing irrigation projects, and to the power users for domestic and industrial purposes, with preference to public agencies and REA cooperatives. These are the aims of the Democratic Party which in the future, as in the past, will place the interest of the people as individual citizens first.

We will continue to improve the navigable waterways and harbors of the Nation.

We pledge to continue the policy initiated by the Democratic Party of adequate appropriations for flood control for the protection of life and property.

In addition to practicing false economy on flood control, the Republican-controlled 80th Congress was so cruel as even to deny emergency Federal funds for the relief of individuals and municipalities victimized by recent great floods, tornadoes and other disasters.

We shall expand our programs for forestation, for the improvement of grazing lands, public and private, for the stockpiling of strategic minerals and the encouragement of a sound domestic mining industry. We shall carry forward experiments for the broader utilization of mineral resources in the highly beneficial manner already demonstrated in the program for the manufacture of synthetic liquid fuel from our vast deposits of coal and oil shale and from our agricultural resources.

We pledge an intensive enforcement of the antitrust laws, with adequate appropriations.

We advocate the strengthening of existing antitrust laws by closing the gaps which experience has shown have been used to promote the concentration of economic power.

We pledge a positive program to promote competitive business and to foster the development of independent trade and commerce.

We support the right of free enterprise and the right of all persons to work together in cooperatives and other Democratic associations for the purpose of carrying out any proper business operations free from any arbitrary and discriminatory restrictions.

Civil Rights Plank

The Democratic Party is responsible for the great civil rights gains made in recent years in eliminating unfair and illegal discrimination based on race, creed or color.

The Democratic Party commits itself to continuing its efforts to eradicate all racial, religious and economic discrimination.

We again state our belief that racial and religious minorities must have the right to live, the right to work, the right to vote, the full and equal protection of the laws, on a basis of equality with all citizens as guaranteed by the Constitution.

We highly commend President Harry Truman for his courageous stand on the issue of civil rights.

We call upon the Congress to support our President in guaranteeing these basic and fundamental American principles—the right to full and equal political participation; the right to equal opportunity of employment; the right of security of person, and the right of equal treatment in the service and defense of our Nation.

We pledge ourselves to legislation to admit a minimum of 400,000 displaced persons found eligible for United States citizenship without discrimination as to race or religion. We condemn the undemocratic action of the Republican Eightieth Congress in passing an inadequate and bigoted bill for this purpose, which law imposes un-American restrictions based on race and religion upon such admissions.

Statehood for Hawaii, Alaska

We urge immediate Statehood for Hawaii and Alaska; immediate determination by the people of Puerto Rico as to their form of government and their ultimate status with respect to the United States; and the maximum degree of local self-government for the Virgin Islands, Guam and Samoa.

We recommend to Congress the submission of a constitutional amendment on equal rights for women.

We favor the extension of the right of suffrage to the people of the District of Columbia.

We pledge adherence to the principle of nonpartisan civilian administration of atomic energy, and the development of atomic energy for peaceful purposes through free scientific inquiry for the benefit of all the people.

We urge the vigorous promotion of world-wide freedom in the gathering and dissemination of news by press, radio and television, with complete confidence that an informed people will determine wisely the course of domestic and foreign policy.

We believe the primary step toward the achievement of world-wide freedom is access by all peoples to the facts and the truth. To that end, we will encourage the greatest possible vigor on the part of the United Nations Commission on Human Rights and the United Nations Economic and Social Council to establish the foundations on which freedom can exist in every nation.

We deplore the repeated attempts of Republicans in the Enghtieth Congress to impose thought control upon the American people and to encroach on the freedom of speech and press.

We pledge the early establishment of a national science foundation under principles which will guarantee the most effective utilization of public and private research facilities.

We will continue our efforts to improve and strengthen our Federal civil service, and provide adequate compensation.

We will continue to maintain an adequate American merchant marine.

We condemn communism and other forms of totalitarianism and their destructive activity overseas and at home. We shall continue to build firm defenses against communism by strengthening the economic and social structure of our own democracy. We reiterate our pledge to expose and prosecute treasonable activities of anti-Democratic and un-American organizations which would sap our strength, paralyze our will to defend ourselves, and destroy our unity, inciting race against race, class against class, and the people against free institutions. We shall continue vigorously to enforce the laws against subversive activities, observing at all times the constitutional guarantees which protect free speech, the free press, and honest political activity. We shall strengthen our laws against subversion to the full extent necessary, protecting at all times our traditional individual freedoms.

U. S., the Principal Protector

We recognize that the United States has become the principal protector of the free world. The free peoples of the world look to us for support in maintaining their freedoms. If we falter in our leadership, we may endanger the peace of the world—and we shall surely endanger the welfare of our own Nation. For these reasons it is imperative that we maintain our military strength until world peace with justice is secure. Under the leadership of President Truman, our military departments have been united and our Government organization for the national defense greatly strengthened. We pledge to maintain adequate military strength, based on these improvements, sufficient to fulfill our responsibilities in occupation zones, defend our national interests, and to bolster those free nations resisting Communist aggression.

This is our platform. These are our principles. They form a political and economic policy which has guided our party and our Nation.

The American people know these principles well. Under them, we have enjoyed greater security, greater prosperity, and more effective world leadership than ever before.

Under them and with the guidance of Divine Providence we can proceed to higher levels of prosperity and security; we can advance to a better life at home; we can continue our leadership in the world with ever growing prospects for lasting peace.

Comparison of Two Platforms

Philadelphia, July 14 (AP).—Here is the stand taken by Republicans and Democrats on major issues in their 1948 platforms:

LABOR

REPUBLICANS — Pledge "continuing study" of labor-management relations to improve present laws. Says the "fundamental" right to strike is subordinate only to "paramount" considerations of public health and safety.

DEMOCRATS—Favor repeal of Taft-Hartley Act. Want minimum wage raised from 40 cents an hour to 75 cents.

CIVIL RIGHTS

REPUBLICANS — Favor whatever Federal laws are needed to prevent lynching and to insure equal opportunity for persons of all races and creeds to work and advance in life. Opposes race segregation in armed forces.

DEMOCRATS—Commend President Truman for his civil rights program. Call on Congress to back him up in guaranteeing racial and religious minorities these rights: 1. Full and equal political participation; 2. Equal opportunity of employment; 3. Security of person, and 3. Equal treatment in the service and defense of the nation. Convention refused to insert a "States' rights" plank.

FOREIGN POLICY

REPUBLICANS — Promise aid "within prudent limits" to other peace-loving countries on a basis of self-help and mutual aid, with "businesslike and efficient" administration. Call for removal of United Nations veto in peaceful settlement of international disputes. Ask peace-keeping armed force for U. N.

DEMOCRATS—Promise necessary funds and a "sound humanitarian" administration of Marshall Plan for European recovery. Pledge full support of United Nations, continued leadership toward curtailing veto power, establishment of armed forces to back up U. N. authority.

PALESTINE

REPUBLICANS — Pledge full recognition of Israel and United States aid within "letter and spirit" of U. N. Charter. Charge Truman Administration undermined U. N. prestige by "vacillation" on Palestine question.

DEMOCRATS — Pledge full recognition and aid. Favor lifting arms embargo to give Israel "right of self-defense." Pledge support within U. N. framework, for internationalization of Jerusalem.

HIGH PRICES

REPUBLICANS — Blame Truman Administration for them. Promise attack on "basic causes" by cutting Government spending, reducing public debt and other measures.

DEMOCRATS — Blame GOP Eightieth Congress for them. Support President Truman's anti-inflation program including standby power to impose price and wage controls.

HOUSING

REPUBLICANS — Recommend Federal aid to States for slum clearance and low-rental housing when needed. Promise encouragement to private enterprises in getting homes built.

DEMOCRATS—Pledge "comprehensive" housing legislation, including slum clearance and low-rent housing projects built with Federal funds through local agencies.

TAXES

REPUBLICANS — Say Federal Government should withdraw or cut taxes which can better be administered by State governments, especially excise and inheritance taxes.

DEMOCRATS—Favor all feasible tax reduction. Advocate that any reductions give "full measure" of relief to low-income families.

SOCIAL SECURITY

REPUBLICANS — Urge extending Federal old-age and survivors' insurance program and increasing benefits to "a more realistic level." Urges strengthening of Federal-State programs to provide more hospital facilities.

DEMOCRATS — Favor increase in old-age and survivors' benefits by at least 50 per cent, and reduction of eligibility age for women from 65 to 60. Would extend these programs to workers not now covered. Favor national health program.

VETERANS

REPUBLICANS—Propose "realistic and adequate adjustment of veteran benefits on cost-of-living basis. Demand "good faith" in giving veterans preference in Federal jobs.

DEMOCRATS—Demand constant effort to keep benefits in line with living costs. Pledges program of houses for veterans at prices they can afford to pay.

FARM

REPUBLICANS — Urge long-term program including "sounder" soil conservation; protection of "reasonable" market prices through flexible support system, commodity loans and marketing agreements; encouragement of family-size farms; support of the principle of bona fide farmer-owned cooperatives; "sound" rural electrification.

DEMOCRATS — Pledge efforts to maintain farm prosperity, higher living standards and preservation of family-size farms. Urge flexible price support system to keep income on par with operating costs; more soil conservation; better distribution methods; stable export markets; more rural electrification; repeal of oleo taxes; encouragement of cooperatives.

BUSINESS

REPUBLICANS—Declare small business must be encouraged through aggressive antimonopoly action, elimination of unnecessary controls; protection against discrimination, correction of tax abuses, limitation of competition by governmental organizations.

DEMOCRATS—Pledge intensive enforcement of antitrust laws with adequate appropriations and strengthening of the laws. Pledges "positive" program to promote competitive business. Supports the right of free enterprise.

Kitty Hawk Plane, A 'Priceless' Relic, Is Appraised at $1

Dayton, Ohio, July 14 (AP).—A valuation of $1 was put today on the Wright brothers' famous Kitty Hawk plane now in a British museum.

Probate Judge Rodney Love said the valuation made by trustees of the estate of the late Orville Wright was a preliminary step for return of the plane to the United States.

The low valuation was said to have been made for taxation purposes. It is considered priceless as the world's most prized aviation relic.

After the death of Wright last January it was disclosed it was his intention to have it returned to this country. It will be placed in the Smithsonian Institution at Washington.

Lazard Freres Banking Firm 100 Years Old

Lazard Freres & Co., 44 Wall st., New York, one of the oldest banking firms in America, is celebrating the 100th anniversary of its founding in New Orleans in July, 1848.

The initial partners were three brothers—Alexandre, Simon and Lazare Lazard, who came from Lorraine, France, to settle in the United States. They were later joined by other members of their family including Alexandre Weill, whose descendants, David David-Weill and Pierre David-Weill, are today active partners in the businesses which grew out of the original New Orleans firm.

In the years prior to the Civil War, the firm expanded with the establishment of Lazard Freres et Cie. in 1852 in Paris and Lazard Bros. & Co., Ltd. in 1877 at London. From modest beginnings, these firms have steadily developed and have made important contributions toward the growth of commerce and industry throughout the world.

The San Francisco office of the firm was reorganized in 1884 as the London-Paris & American Bank, Ltd. The interest of the firm in this institution was sold in 1908 and, by merger, it became a part of what is now one of California's leading institutions, the Anglo-California National Bank of San Francisco.

In 1880 Lazard Freres & Co. opened its New York office and has since maintained headquarters in New York, Paris and London.

Today the three firms, Lazard Freres & Co., New York, Lazard Freres et Cie., Paris, Lazard Brothers & Co., Ltd., London, are continuing to maintain the traditions of the past 100 years of service.

The present partners of the New York firm are Pierre David-Weill, Andre Meyer, George Murnane, James S. Adams, Albert J. Hettinger, jr., Edwin H. Herzog and William A. Forrester, jr.

The senior partner of the Paris firm is David David-Weill. The chairman of the London firm is Lord Kindersley and it includes Lord Brand, Clive Pearson, Lord Cowdray, Thomas H. Brand and Hugh K. M. Kindersley who is also a director of the Bank of England.

Bradley Estate In Montgomery Worth $100,000

An estate valued at $100,000 was left by Mrs. Anna P. Bradley, widow of Joseph H. Bradley, former Washington real estate man, when she died last March 31.

The will, admitted to probate yesterday in Montgomery County Orphans Court, bequeathed $5000 to the Wilkes-Barre (Pa.) City Hospital, and the remainder to a daughter, Mrs. Mary Watkins, and a cousin, Frederick M. Bradley, both of Washington.

The 400-acre Bradley estate near Rockville has been a county show place for many years.

Tucker Corp. Receiver Asked; Danger of Collapse Alleged

Chicago, July 14 (AP).—A stockholder and dealer's firm today sued in Federal Court to have a receiver appointed for the Tucker Corp. They allege that the company, which had been planning a radically new automobile, "is in danger of financial collapse."

The suit was filed by Edward Hubant, Edward L. Story and Thomas Vinella, all of New York, against the corporation and Preston T. Tucker, president. Hubant owns 100 shares of common stock, class "A," of Tucker; the other two hold a dealership franchise in New Jersey.

The suit charges the Tucker auto was advertised as "new and unusual" and that the offer "to sell and attempt to produce said cars was started in 1946," but that "no car of any kind other than the experimental car has been produced."

The company, the petition went on, "has dissipated a large portion of its cash so that there remains not sufficient money to meet its current necessary expense."

Tucker was not available for comment, but a company spokesman said he "categorically denied" all the charges.

The suit charged in addition, these specific points:

That the radically new engine announced by Tucker, which would have eliminated clutch, transmission and driveshaft, "has now proved impractical and unusable."

That the corporation is using another engine, "manufactured by a Syracuse company (Aircooled Motors, Inc.), which company was acquired by the defendant corporation for $1,800,000 although (it) had been publicly offered for sale for one million dollars."

That the Tucker company changed its method of financing and "undertook to sell, in addition to the said Tucker automobile, accessories . . . in what would be known as 'package lots,' . . ."

That Tucker himself "within the past year has withdrawn from said corporation without justification over $100,000 in cash and has not accounted for same."

1947 Oleo Output Doubles Prewar

A record 746 million pounds of oleomargarine was produced in 1947 and domestic use alone may reach 860 million pounds this year, the Agriculture Department reported yesterday.

The output in 1946 was only 573 million pounds and the prewar average 354 million pounds.

The expected consumption this year would be at the rate of 6 pounds per person, compared with 2.7 pounds before the war.

Ginsberg Gets 1-5 Years in Larceny Case

New York, July 14 (AP).—Isidore Ginsberg, a building materials broker who was called "the worst of the grey marketeers" in a Congressional hearing, today was sentenced to one to five years in Sing Sing Prison following conviction of grand larceny.

Queens County Court Judge Peter T. Farrell pronounced sentence. Ginsberg, representing himself, had charged "an unfair trial" and asked that his sentence be suspended.

He obtained a stay in execution of sentence until July 27. Meanwhile he said he would try to secure a certificate of reasonable doubt so that he could launch an appeal.

Ginsberg was convicted June 22 of accepting $1575 from the Crystal Lumber Co. of Winston-Salem, N. C., for materials he failed to deliver. The prosecution claimed he knew when he took the money he never would be able to deliver the materials.

Plenty of Fuel Oil Predicted With Production Up 8 Per Cent

Plenty of fuel oil this year and thereafter for all consumers was predicted yesterday by A. Graham Shields, director of the oil heating division of the Merchants and Manufacturers Association.

Shields

Shields said an expected national increase in fuel oils will be sufficient to "take care of present consumers and a reasonable number of new oil heating installations."

Speaking before a luncheon meeting of the Silver Spring Rotary Club at Indian Spring Country Club, he discovered that the oil industry expects "about an 8 per cent" national increase in fuel oils over 1947.

Most important factor in last year's fuel shortages was the short steel supply, Shields said. Partially responsible, he said, were "bad guessing," and low estimates of oil demand by oil refiners, oil equipment manufacturers, and the Government.

He outlined five ways oil heat users can save money and oil: 1. Get an efficient burner. 2. Install heat retaining devices. 3. Install heat control devices. 4. Use a large storage tank. 5. Fill the tank during the summer.

Smyrna Plant Burns

Smyrna, Del., July 14 (AP).—The main assembly plant of the Wilson Cabinet Co., was destroyed by fire today. President John E. Wilson estimated damage at one million dollars.

'Skins Renew All-Star Feud With Formal Protest

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

PEACE, IT'S WONDERFUL—but not in baseball. The Yankees are sore at the Indians and vice versa, the Browns are mad at both the Indians and Yanks, and amid a general outbreak of squabbling the American League pennant race is suddenly getting to be more fun.

POVICH

Bill Veeck's Cleveland Club and Veeck himself are in the middle of most of the feuds, not that it disturbs Laughing Boy Veeck who is concerned only with what his Cleveland fans think.

If the Yankees win the pennant they're going to take almost as much satisfaction out of beating Veeck and his Indians as they will get out of their World Series checks. His Yankee players are solidly behind Manager Bucky Harris, Veeck's protagonist, who has been teeing off verbally against the Cleveland president.

Harris and the Indians have been swapping insults ever since he called Feller's withdrawal from the All-Star game a bare-faced runout. Joe DiMaggio who rarely throws his weight around, agreed with Harris, and Veeck has been telling Harris to "run the Yankees and otherwise mind his own business."

UNLIKE THE YANKEES, the Browns are no pennant factor, but they're sore at the Indians just the same. Just before the All-Star game, they moved into Cleveland for a three-game series and read in the Cleveland papers that they were supposed to be "a nice breather for the Indians before the important games with the Eastern clubs."

Manager Zach Taylor didn't like it a bit and he posted the clippings in the Browns' clubhouse and asked his guys what they were going to do about it. They went out and knocked off the Indians two out of three, including a win over Feller. That latter event was the day after Feller announced he wouldn't pitch in the All-Star game.

In Cleveland, the Indians' fans actually applauded Feller's walkout from the All-Star game, and that is understandable. They're so hot for the pennant nothing else is important and if it meant that Feller could take an extra turn for the Indians, that was great. But the Browns, according to Gerry Priddy, gave Feller the most merciless riding any pitcher ever got, including all the unprintables.

THERE'LL BE some satisfaction in Detroit, too, if the Indians blow the pennant. At least in the Tigers' front office there will be. As I learn it, General Manager Billy Evans got up in the American League clubowners meeting the other day and tore into Veeck for being a pop-off and a publicity-seeking sensationalist.

Evans' particular peeve was Veeck's action in signing Satchel Paige, the vagabond pitcher of uncertain age from out of the Negro National League. He called it outright exploitation and an affront to major league baseball. He was speaking the mind of baseball's conservatives, for whom Veeck cares not at all. Veeck has tangled before with that kind and at this point he's a bigger man in the game than ever before.

The paradox is that Veeck is catching it from clubs that greedily latch onto the big visiting teams' checks he provides with his progressive operation of the Indians. He's making them all rich, with the big crowds his Indians are drawing.

VEECK ISN'T BELLIGERENT. He just does what he thinks best for the Indians and you'd have to say he's done pretty well. In a city one-sixth of the size of New York, he's outdrawing the Yankees. He has his club in first place. He has put himself in a position to bid with the rich clubs for talent. He paid $90,000 for Sam Zoldak to top the Yankee offer.

But there could be a boomerang, if enough clubs get mad at the Indians. Anger can whip them into special efforts. An antagonized club can be tough. Bucky Harris knows about that.

When Harris took his Washington team on its last Western trip in 1924 and they were leading the league, he found much sentiment for a Washington pennant. "Be nice to every club that's nice to us," he told his players. "Don't ride 'em." The White Sox alone of the Western teams were strangely unfriendly. "Against them you can forget about being nice guys," said Harris, "it won't help. So give 'em the works."

A's, Indians Clash Today for 1st Place

By Jack Walsh
Post Reporter

As has been the case all season when the two teams have met, the American League lead will be at stake when Cleveland moves into Philadelphia today to provide the top attraction of the resumption of major league rivalry.

Any pennant hopes the surprising Athletics have may well be in the balance in the four-game series which opens with a twi-night double-header. Since losing the first two games, Cleveland has had its Indian-sign working to perfection against the Mackmen. In their last nine battles, Boudreau's boys have taken eight decisions.

If the A's continue to roll over in this series, they may fade right out of contention.

At first Boudreau announced that Bob Feller would pitch one of tonight's games. Then someone in the Cleveland front office must have suddenly remembered that it wouldn't look too good for the $80,000-a-year right-hander to appear right before and right after the All-Star game he ducked.

At any rate, a fast switch was made. Now Steve Gromek and the Indians' actual ace, Bob Lemon, are slated for the starting assignments.

A double victory would put the A's in first place by something slightly less than .010 in the percentage table. To overcome their 16-point deficit in this department, Connie Mack will use Phil Marchildon—if he's ready—and Dick Fowler.

Last time the leading contenders played, when Cleveland took a doubleheader June 20 there, an all-time major league attendance record of 82,841 was set. Even if fans hang from the rafters at Philadelphia's Shibe Park not more than 40,000 can force their way into the premises.

The New York Yankees, due to make a serious pennant move one of these days, will entertain the seventh-place St. Louis Browns in a night game. Bucky Harris' charges are only 2½ games off Cleveland's pace.

Braves 5½ Games Ahead

Up in Boston, the Red Sox play an afternoon game with Detroit and the teams go right back at each other's throats in a night encounter. Chicago plays a night game with the Nats here.

The National League is going to start to see what it can do about Billy Southworth's pesky Boston Braves, who are threatening to make the traditionally tight race a walkaway.

Boston has pulled away to a 5½-game edge over second-place Pittsburgh, the longest lead a team has had all year in the senior circuit.

The Braves open their important Western trip with a doubleheader in Chicago. The Cubs are in last place, but took three straight from the Pirates before their vacation. New York's sliding Giants meet Pittsburgh in a day game.

Third-place St. Louis will have Philadelphia as its night-game opponent and Brooklyn also will be under the lights at Cincinnati.

Chisox Invade . . .

Nats Start Scarborough Here Tonight

The Nats end their annual All-Star game vacation tonight when their Windy City "cousins," the Chicago White Sox, invade for an 8:30 Griffith Stadium game that launches a three-game series and an 11-day home stand.

Ray Scarborough, their .364-hitting pitcher, has been given tonight's mound assignment for the Nats in an effort to do something about a sixth place standing that is beginning to look permanent. Five full games now separate the Washington hopefuls from fifth place, while only four and a half games separate them from seventh.

Opposing Scarborough for the White Sox will be Bill Wight, owner of a five won and seven lost record.

Ray Has Split in 10 Games

Scarborough has split even in 10 decisions so far. Only Walter Masterson has a better hits-per-inning record, although Scarborough has been less wild. He has issued a mere 28 walks in 76 innings, striking out 35 batters.

So far this year the Nats and White Sox have met 13 times, the Nats winning seven, losing five and tying once. However there's little cause for rejoicing over this edge since the Sox are deeply mired at the bottom of the A. L. standings.

Cleveland Here Next

Back with the Griffs are their two entries in Tuesday's All-Star game in St. Louis, neither noticeably covered with glory. Masterson, as the surprise starting pitcher for the American League, was touched for the Stan Musial homer that put the junior loop behind 2-0 in the first inning.

Mickey Vernon, pinch hitting for Masterson in the third, contrived a walk that resulted in a run for the winners.

Following the Chicago series the Nats play host to Cleveland, Detroit and St. Louis before starting another swing that takes them out of town from July 26 until August 13.

4 Players Invited but Await Ruling

By Bill Burnett
Post Reporter

The Washington Redskins have filed a formal protest against the annual football feature between the College All-Stars and the National Football League champions in Chicago's Soldier Field, it was revealed last night.

Chief Stockholder George P. Marshall, who would like to see the NFL's withdrawal from the August 20 classic almost as much as he'd like to win the 1948 league championship, said the protest had been lodged with Commissioner Bert Bell.

"We don't expect to hear anything for two weeks," Marshall said, "and until we have the Commissioner's ruling we'll make no decisions on whether any of our stars will play in the game."

Lists Objections

Thus the Redskin Chief-of-Everything makes his first official move in a boisterous squabble that brewed for some time, finally broke into the open last season in Chicago, and has erupted with various degrees of violence several times since.

"I object to the game personally," Marshall repeated yesterday for those who didn't hear him the first time," and I object for the sake of my players and team . . ."

His reasons are as varied as one of the Redskins' halftime shows. First off, it is common knowledge he has been in disagreement with Sports Editor Arch Ward of the Chicago Tribune, sponsor of the event. He considers the originator of the game, according to many observers, unfair to the NFL because of his connection with the Chicago Rockets of the rival All-America Conference. He further objects to the use of AAC players in what he considers a closed NFL affair.

He is convinced the All-Star game takes NFL rookies away from their new professional employers at the most crucial period of their pre-season training. He says he thinks participation in the game violates every young player's contract with his club and league.

Says Players Fear Injuries

He further believes none of the players invited to take part really want to play, fearing injury that will impair their earning ability later on.

You might say Marshall is thoroughly "anti-All-Star game."

"I will not defy Commissioner Bell, however," Marshall summed up, "but if his ruling forces any of my men into the affair I will still nurse a personal objection."

Four Redskin rookies have been invited to play against the Chicago Cardinals, it was revealed by the Tribune yesterday. They are Harry Gilmer, All-America halfback from Alabama; Tackle Weldon Edwards from Texas Christian; Halfback Dan Sandifer from Louisiana State, and End Sid Halliday from Southern Methodist. Only Halliday has expressed a desire to compete so far.

Last year the Redskins were represented by Georgia's Joe Tereshinski, end; and Maryland's Tommy Mont, quarterback. Tereshinski played a brilliant game but Mont never got into action, having hurt his elbow in training.

Gilmer Apprehensive

Gilmer, the passing star Washington hopes to use as a replacement for Sammy Baugh, had the right answer to his invitation to play, as Marshall sees it. He immediately wrote back, asking the sponsors the amount of insurance against injury taken out on each player.

"The All-Star insurance is a joke," Marshall said. "Take Mont, for instance. All he got out of showing up in Chicago was $150 and an injury that might have ruined his pro career. Smart boys don't go for that sort of thing when they start earning a living."

Kansas Back In Good Graces As Stars Quit

Skipper Patrick

Kansas City, July 14 (AP).—The University of Kansas got back in the good graces of the Big Seven Conference today by ending its defiance of an eligibility rule that had threatened to interrupt athletic relations with his other member schools.

Chancellor Deane W. Malott, now on cruise with the University naval ROTC unit, advised the Big Seven that Kansas agreed to go along with the conference in its interpretation of a rule which made five of the school athletes ineligible for further competition.

The players in question paved the way for the chancellor's statement early in the day by advising Athletic Director E. C. Quigley they were voluntarily withdrawing from competition.

Faculty representatives of the conference—officially the Missouri Valley Intercollegiate Athletic Association — last Saturday ordered its members to cancel all games with Kansas unless it announced by July 24 it would comply with the rules.

Malott had defied the rule interpretation, made at the May meeting of the conference in Lincoln, Nebr., which limits the competition of players who enrolled prior to May 1, 1947, to four years, including both freshman and junior college play as one year.

The Kansas players, footballers Don Fambrough, Tom Scott, Gene Sherwood and Marvin Small, and Jack Eskridge, basketball letterman, thanked the university for its stand in their behalf and said they felt their withdrawal the "only fair way."

"We do not feel we should stand in the way of our football and basketball teammates and those athletes in all other varsity sports who wish to continue their careers along major league lines," the players wrote.

Considine Will Write Series on Olympic Games

Olympic preview!

The Washington Post brings its readers next week a series of articles by Reporter Bob Considine — authoritatively setting the stage for the 1948 Olympic Games, starting in England July 29.

And not a more capable man could be found than Bob Considine — author, commentator, top-flight newsman and ace sportswriter—to tell the story

Hippenstiel Rushes On in Straight Sets

Top-seeded Capt. Robin Hippenstiel, Headquarters USAF, yesterday breezed to a 6—0, 6—0 victory over Staff Sergt. Joseph P. Tebbe, Bolling Field, in quarterfinals play of the Eastern Air Force sectional tennis tournament at Arlington.

Chief Warrant Officer Frank Wierauch of Bolling Field, who had won two straight love-set matches, was turned back, 6—1, 6—2, by Maj. William M. Davis of Wright Air Force base.

Because of rain only five matches were played. Remainder of the quarterfinal singles matches and the second round and quarterfinal doubles matches will be played today. Also scheduled for today is the start of semifinal singles play.

But Gardella Will Appeal

Baseball Monopoly Charge Dismissed in District Court

New York, July 14 (AP).—A $300,000 damage suit, brought by a suspended player and charging organized baseball with a monopoly in violation of the antitrust laws, was dismissed in Federal District Court today.

Judge Henry W. Goddard said he based his findings on a United States Supreme Court ruling in 1922 in a case involving the Federal League, a circuit operating outside of organized ball. That ruling held that baseball then was not engaged in trade or commerce under the Sherman Act.

The suit was brought by Danny Gardella, one-time outfielder-first baseman of the New York Giants in the National League. Gardella jumped the club in 1946 to play with other players from the United States in the Mexican League.

In organized baseball, once a player signs with a certain club, he is the property of that club until disposed of. He can be traded, sold or released.

Judge Goddard said that the United States Circuit Court of Appeals in 1947 reaffirmed the 1922 decision, but pointed out that the Supreme Court had revised its definition of trade in recent years and "so it is quite possible that the Supreme Court may not adhere to its earlier decision in the Federal League case" if Gardella appealed.

Frederic A. Johnson, attorney for Gardella, said the case would be carried to the United States Court of Appeals and to the Supreme Court if necessary.

Senior Golfers Tee Off Today

Roger Whiteford, last year's winner, will defend his title today as senior golfers of this area compete for the Walter McCallum Memorial trophy in the Middle Atlantic championships at Burning Tree Club.

Also involved in the afternoon-long program, which includes lunch and dinner besides the 18-hole tourney, is Walter R Ruckerman, retired Army officer who tied Whiteford in regulation play last year and lost in a playoff.

The affair, handled by Dr. R. A. Keilty, executive secretary of the Middle Atlantic Golf Association, honors the memory of the late golf writer for the Evening Star.

Mrs. Stokes Loses, 3 and 2

Baltimore, July 14 (AP).—Mrs. Charlies Nes of Baltmiore's Greenspring Country Club put Mrs. Walter Stokes of Washington's Manor Country Club out of the Maryland State women's golf championship in the quarter-final round today.

The upset disposed of the last non-Baltimorean in the tournament and one of the co-medalists. The other, Jeanette Myers of Suburban Country Club, was beaten by Mrs. Maurice Glick of Woodholme, the defending champion.

The defeat of Mrs. Stokes, 3 and 2, was a major tournament upset.

Mrs. Glick beat Miss Myers, 5 and 4, by shooting the front nine in 38 strokes while her opponent was taking 43. Mary Ann Downey of Baltimore County Club gained the semifinals bracket opposite Mrs. Glick by beating Mrs. C. Prevost Boyce of Elkridge Country Club, 4 and 3.

64,877 See Tribe Beat Bums, 4-3; Satchel Sparkles

Cleveland, July 14 (AP).—Catcher Jim Hegan's single with two out in the eleventh inning scored Joe Gordon from second base and gave the Cleveland Indians a 4-to-3 triumph over the Brooklyn Dodgers in an exhibition game tonight before 64,877 in Cleveland Stadium.

The large crowd was treated to a brilliant two-inning relief chore by Leroy (Satchel) Paige, ageless Negro hurler recently signed by the Tribe.

Paige shuffled in from the Cleveland bullpen in the seventh, threw only 12 pitches, each of them with a corkscrew windup, and struck out the side. He fanned Gil Hodges on four pitches, struck out Palica with three curve balls and whiffed Bobby Brown on five offerings, one a foul ball.

The ancient Alabaman retired three more hitters in order in the eighth to complete his labors for the night.

Sal DeGiorgi Has Brooklyn Scouts in Dither After Stellar Play for Post's Sandlot Stars

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

THE WASHINGTON POST'S 15-man all-star sandlot baseball squad was resting yesterday after its overwhelming 12-2 victory Monday over a Brooklyn team before 15,000 Flatbush fans.

Catcher Sal DeGiorgi was swamped by Brooklyn Dodger scouts after he led the District team to victory. The scouts got an eyeful of dark complexioned Sal as he easily threw two would be base-stealers in the first two innings and then barely missed hitting a home run in the fourth. He got a double on the blow which hit the top of the left field wall, 343 feet from the plate.

When Sal told the scouts he planned a college education before turning to pro ball, they promised to get him into any institution he wanted. He could have had the Brooklyn Bridge had he asked for it.

Bill Jones' sharp single in the seventh precipitated the throwing of trash onto the field. No one was sure whether the trash was aimed at Jonesy or the Brooklyn players who were taking a terrible beating from the District sluggers.

But Public Addressor Tex Richard called the crowd's attention to the fact that somebody might be seriously hurt. "Now, please fans," he boomed "don't t'row nuttin' on the field."

Tex's grammatical error made everyone laugh, the fans' pressure went down, and the trash-throwing ended.

Because of last-minute illness, Manager Jim Munro did not accompany the Washington team to Brooklyn. Filling in very capably were Tommy Nolan, Anacostia High coach, and Marshall (Jake) Jacobs, manager of the Bunker Hill and Hardesty's junior teams.

GEORGE SISLER, former first base great, now a scout for the Dodgers, was more than just an honorary pilot of the Brooklyn sandlotters. He sat in his team's dugout and flashed all the signs.

After his team's crushing defeat, the great Sisler came to the dressing room to congratulate the Washington team and the two coaches. It was one of the biggest thrills in the life of Nolan. When he was a youngster, he chose Sisler as his No. 1 baseball hero. Nolan still can quote the Hall of Famer's yearly batting averages.

The game Monday night was the first of six in the Brooklyn Against the World series this year. The next game takes place at Griffith Stadium July 27 against the same Washington club. Then Brooklyn journeys to Halifax, Toronto, Nova Scotia, Quebec and Providence, R. I.

PROFITS OF THE games go to the Brooklyn Dodgers-Brooklyn Eagle Baseball Foundation which supplies baseballs, bats and uniforms for 480 kid teams in the five Long Island counties. Before Monday's game, two annual games raised $40,000 for the foundation.

In cooperation with the Dodgers' drive to keep kids out of mischief by teaching them to play ball, the Brooklyn Board of Education opened 10 high school diamonds for use in the summertime, a move which the District educators might well copy.

On Tuesday, the Washington players split up, some taking advantage of the St. George's beautiful swimming pool; others taking in a sightseeing tour of the New York area. The pool, by the way, is mirrored all the way around, is equipped with sun lamps, and is reputed to be the largest indoor salt-water tank in the world.

Manyunk Close Second In Potomac

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Havre de Grace, Md., July 14.—Mrs. E. H. Augustus' Seven League, winner of three allowance races, made his first stake appearance a successful one when he took the $10,000 added Potomac feature by a head margin in a rousing on-the-wire battle.

Beaten by the scant margin was Foxcatcher Farms' Manyunk, while five lengths farther back came the favored Task from the King Ranch.

With Jocky Mike Basile aboard and mud under his hooves, the son of Our Boots and Gifted Lady was all out at the end of the mile and a furlong to bring his backers a $6.60 mutuel as second choice in the betting.

A crowd of 6500 reported for the midweek program and watched Seven League step the 9 furlongs in 1:52 4-5, second slowest time in the history of the stakes first won by Sir Barton in 1919.

$605.40 Daily Double

The victory, the third of the year for Seven League, brought his 1948 earnings to $13,690.

Favorite players had other reasons in addition to the feature to be sad. The big monetary splurge of the card came in the first race. G. E. Murphy's Margaret E. making her first Maryland appearance, jolted the talent to the tune of a $77.80 mutuel. Jockey Joe Matral, a virtual stranger to the winners' circle on big tracks these days, was aboard.

The 4-year-old bounced through the gooey going to get home in front of Mrs. Ray Archer's Flash Anna and J. Mohr's Foneda.

There was a $605.40 pay-off on the daily double combination of 5 and 9 when Mrs. A. Mazzeo's Sissie G caused a mild upset in the second event, at a $15.40 mutuel. Apprentice R. Williams did the riding this time and brought joy to 48 holders of the right double ticket.

Soviet Blocks Palestine Plan

mediation. Russia moved to strike out all these sections.

Gromyko accepted the sections of the resolution calling for a Council order to the Jews and Arabs to stop fighting within three days.

Basing his argument on the contention that the U. N. Assembly's decision to partition the Holy Land into independent Jewish and Arab nations is in full effect, Gromyko said Bernadotte's mediation efforts had ignored this verdict and there was no need for further attempts at mediation.

United States Deputy Delegate Philip C. Jessup told reporters the United States might make some changes in wording but would not agree to dropping Bernadotte. It was Jessup's view that the Swedish count was named by the General Assembly and that the Council, even if it wanted to, could not eliminate him from the picture.

Gromyko objected strongly to the American idea that the new truce should continue indefinitely until a peaceful solution is found. He maintained such a step would virtually rule out the possibility of an independent and sovereign state of Israel since there are no apparent prospects that a settlement ever would be reached

Key Battle Looms Over Jerusalem

Cairo, July 14 (AP).—A decisive battle for Jerusalem appeared to be shapingup today around Laturn, where the Arabs have plugged Jewish supply roads to the Holy City.

The Jews are pressing an offensive from the coastal plain in an effort to pry loose the Trans-Jordan Arab Legion's grip on the Latrun bottleneck. But Legion artillery still dominates this area.

The main Jerusalem-Tel Aviv highway meanders through Bab el Wad gorge at this point. It is 14 miles from Jerusalem and 18 from Tel Aviv.

A victory here would decide the success or failure of the siege of Jerusalem.

In the Holy City itself, Arab Legion and Trans-Jordan tribal riflemen, supported by the Legion's heavy artillery, began a fight for Jewish-held Mount Zion, which is a threat to the Arab left flank.

Jewish sources said 120 of the enemy were killed when Arabs attacked Jewish positions near the Sejera settlement between Tiberias and Nazareth but were repulsed.

Tel Aviv had four air raid alarms. A number of bombs were dropped. Two settlements south of Tel Aviv also were bombed.

Elsewhere in the Holy Land fighting, the Jews claimed military successes in the north, center and south.

At Lake Success, the United States gained support for its demand for a cease-fire order which the United Nations would enforce, if necessary. It also calls for efforts to demilitarize Jerusalem. Canada and Beligum backed it in the U. N. Security Council.

Britain is supporting the United States demand for forceful action. When this became known in Trans-Jordan, mass demonstrations occurred in Amman, the capital. Thousands of angry Arabs hurled definance at the British and at President Truman.

For the second time twin-engined Syrian bombers struck Haifa. They caused no serious damage.

The British Foreign Office disclosed that Britain has proposed proclaiming Haifa a free port to help insure the success of the European recovery program.

A spokesman said the purpose would be to allow resumption of the flow of crude oil from the Middle East oil fields through Palestine's largest port on its way to western Europe.

A new wave of homeless Arab refugees reached the Judean hills from the Er Ramle and Lydda areas, now in Jewish hands. Observers estimate 250,000 Palestine Arabs have scurried from their homes since Jewish-Arab fighting began last December.

Holiday Halts French Strike

Paris, July 14 (U.P.).—The government and its civil servants declared an unofficial truce in their wage war and all France took a holiday today to celebrate the 159th anniversary of the birth of the Revolution.

Bastille Day brought music, parades, fireworks, free matinees and dancing in the streets. But some 1,500,000 employes of six government departments were technically on strike and Thursday they were to be joined by workers in government-owned radio information services and other administrative offices. Postal, telephone and telegraph workers had been alerted to walk out at a moment's notice.

The government told strikers last night to return to work Thursday if they want an immediate advance on raises now being discussed.

Markos Makes New Peace Bid

Athens, July 14 (AP).—Gen. Vafiades Markos, guerilla leader, made today what appeared to be a new bid for settlement of the fighting with Greek government troops.

A broadcast intercepted by the Greek general staff said:

"At this critical moment the provisional democratic government (Markos government) declares again that it is ready to accept any honorable democratic agreement which would bring back to Greece and its troubled people peace and tranquillity. With this in view we invite all Greek people to help toward this end."

Top Greek officials, including Premier Sophoulis, rejected anything less than unconditional surrender of the Markos forces.

In a broadcast last June 1 Markos imposed a condition for peace negotiations, saying "foreign interference" would have to end. Since then the Greek army, aided by American arms and supplies, have launched an offensive aimed at crushing the guerillas in their mountain strongholds.

Loy Henderson, Zionist Target, Named Envoy to India, Nepal

Loy W. Henderson, target of Zionist criticism for his handling of Near East affairs for the State Department, yesterday was named Ambassador to India and Minister to Nepal.

Henderson

Henderson's transfer from his present critical post as director of Near Eastern and African Affairs at the department has no connection with the criticism from Jewish circles, Secretary of State Marshall told a news conference. Marshall added that Henderson had been under consideration for Ambassador to India for several weeks.

He will succeed Henry F. Grady, recently named Ambassador to Greece.

Henderson is a career diplomat. He has been director of Near East Affairs for more than three years. In that post he has been charged with directing American policy in the partition of Palestine. Zionist leaders have charged that his policies favored the Arabs. During the war he was Minister to Iraq and counselor to the American Embassy in Moscow.

His successor in the State Department post has not yet been named. His new appointment will be subject to Senate confirmation at the next congressional session.

Henderson is a native of Arkansas and a graduate of Northwestern University.

Wallace Says Truman Failed to Follow Heart

New York, July 14 (U.P.).—Henry A. Wallace said today that if President Truman had "followed his heart" the Democratic Party could have led the peace forces of the world.

Wallace, in his last article for the magazine New Republic, said that Truman "really believed in my Madison Square Garden speech of September, 1946, but unfortunately, and almost unwittingly, he had already fallen under the control of the big brass and the big gold . . ."

This was the speech, first approved by President Truman and later repudiated, in which Wallace lashed out at this Nation's "get-tough" policy with Russia and warned it could lead only to disaster.

Tax Rolls Bargain Voided by Judge

Detroit, July 14 (AP).—Michael Muller, Makari Sinchuk and Dimitri Bayenski planned court action today to retain the $150,000 Clarenceville High School they bought at a bargain rate of $1040.

Three years ago the trio, planning to start a small business, purchased a piece of land for delinquent taxes. When they examined the property, they found School District No. 5 had built a two-story school there in 1941. The property never had been removed from the tax rolls.

Circuit Judge Theodore Richter vacated the sale yesterday and ordered the $1040 returned. But the trio, preferring to keep the school, announcd they would appeal.

Armed Forces Seek Additional Space for 4000 New Employes

EXPANSION: The three military agencies—Army, Navy and Air Force—has requested office space here for 4000 additional employes in its departmental services. The figure includes both civilian and military personnel. However, the bulk of it will be new civilian employes.

In addition, perhaps up to 2000 additional civilians—if not more—will be hired in the Washington area in the so-called "field" offices of the military agencies—the airfields, camps, laboratories, etc.

Roughly, Army and Air Force plan to add about 1500 each, and the Navy about 1000 in the departmental services. Most of the expansion in field offices here will be in those of the Navy. Navy has about 20,000 field workers in and nearby this city.

Recruiting will be slow. New employes who are qualified for the openings are hard to find. It's expected that the military agencies won't be up to full strength here for another six months. Furthermore, the Government is finding it difficult to find the office space in which to put the new workers.

As explained here yesterday, the Budget Bureau asked the services to make what savings they could in their "stabilized activities" and to apply them to the cost of recent pay raises. And most military operations here are in that category of "stabilized activities."

The budget suggestion definitely doesn't mean that the military agencies will be forced to absorb the entire cost of the pay act. Theirs was a recommendation rather than an order. Budget did propose that the services spend their money to prevent supplemental appropriations to meet pay raises on "highly flexible programs." In other words, on projects that can be postponed.

It's taken for granted that Army, Navy and Air Force will all ask for new funds to pay part of the pay raise cost.

PHA: Public Housing Authority also is having space problems. It has a request in for office space here to put 500 workers.

PHA is going through the process of recentralizing its operations in this city. Its field offices are being closed and many of the employes in them are being given the opportunity of transfering to headquarters here.

However, it's a good bet that not more than 50 per cent will come here and that PHA will be forced to recruit typists, stenographers, and other low-paid clerical people in this city. But first, it must get the space to put its people.

NLRB: The National Labor Relations Board also is expanding. It has employes working in the corridors and desks jammed up against one another in some of its offices.

Tentatively, the labor board is scheduled to move to the South Federal Security Building on September 1. However, the employe overflow may be moved there before that time. Most of the NLRB expansion will be in its field offices.

MOVES: The RFC will move all of its offices out of the new building at 800 Connecticut ave. to make way for the expanding Economic Cooperation Administration . . . Selective Service is expanding a bit at its headquarters at 1712 G st. nw. Budget Bureau offices are being moved to the old State Building and vacant space there will be turned over to the military agencies . . . The National Security Resources Board is completing its move from the Pentagon to the old State Building.

ECA: Economic Cooperation is having those inevitable growing pains. Its Paris office was set up for weeks before some of the red tape boys in its budget office here got around to allocating it funds. The employes there had missed two paydays in the process. But the office got the money—and quick—after Averell Harriman, the roving ambassador, sent a blistering cable on the intolerable and senseless delay in approving funds.

PATENT OFFICE: The employe member of the Patent Office efficiency rating board is Samuel Spintman. Alternates are Carl W. Tomlin and Ethel E. Lund. Clarence W. Moore is the agency representative on the appeals board. Employe members on the agency's board of appeals on employe grievances are: Hubert Lidoff, chairman, and Clare Rains and Karl Albrecht. Alternates are: Carl Levy, Fairland Wetherbee, and William Merrimur, respectively.

Transit Fare Hearings Recessed to Study Books

Citizens Federation, ADA and AVC Given Until Aug. 4 To Check Exhibits

Preliminary hearings in the Capital Transit's petition for higher fares were completed yesterday before the Public Utilities Commission.

After two days devoted principally to the transit line's arguments that it must hike fares or go into the red, the PUC recessed the public hearings for three weeks, until Aug 4, so that the company's case and books may be studied.

Nine representatives of the public testified at the session held in the District Building yesterday. Nineteen organizations and spokesmen had indicated a desire to be witnesses.

"Interveners" Recognized

However, the three major public groups opposing the requested fare boost withheld their fire until they can examine the company's testimony. The three organizations, Federation of Citizens Association, and the local affiliates of Americans for Democratic Action and the American Veterans Committee, have been recognized by the PUC as "interveners" and will be permitted to cross-examine company experts and call up their own witnesses at later sessions.

John O'Dea, People's Counsel for the District, and Ben Sigal, representing ADA, voiced objections against resumption of the hearings in three weeks. Both insisted a longer period was needed for proper examination of the company's case and exhibits. PUC Chairman James Flanagan, however, turned down the pleas.

Wallaceite Cleric Speaks

The Rev. T. Ewell Hopkins of the First Baptist Church of West Washington, speaking for the Progressive (Wallace) Party of the District, called for PUC to make a "rigorous examination" of CTC's accounting system "to determine whether the company is . . . giving a true picture of its stewardship of the monopoly. . . ."

In effect, the rate increase would be a "cruelly regressive tax" upon thousands of low-income workers, he said.

Opposition to the proposed higher fares—to 15 cents for a single ride, two tokens for a quarter, and a weekly pass for $1.85—was also voiced by Miss Gertrude Evans, speaking for the Washington Industrial Union Council (CIO); Mrs. Helen Shonick, Kitchen and Pastry Workers Union; Mrs. A. Crain, League of Women Shoppers; Mrs. Frances Klafter, Washington Committee for Consumer Protection, and Orville Dick, Columbia Lodge of International Association of Machinists.

Two Support Increases

Two witnesses supported the increased fare, and one urged only limited approval.

Mrs. Grace Van Casteel of 1418 33d st. nw., praised CTC service. "I don't want the system so beaten down so it can't provide good service," she said.

John V. Case, who said he is an economist, charged it was discriminatory to refuse CTC a fare boost, when many other industries have been permitted to increase prices."

The North Washington Council of Citizens Associations, represented by Leverett A. Meadows, president, of the Manor Park Citizens Association, urged that the fares be raised to 12 cents for a single ride, 5 tokens for 55 cents, and the weekly pass for $1.65.

Merrill Appears for CTC

Mrs. Edward B. Morris, speaking for the Randle Highlands Citizens Association, urged the PUC to permit a rise in the fare rates only enough to permit adequate service in the face of the rising cost of running the city's transportation system.

Earlier, E. D. Merrill, president of CTC, completed the company's case. He said that if the raise in rates is not granted, CTC will not even earn the interest required to be paid on its outstanding bonds.

Under consideration are the following projects, according to Merrill: a new main repair shop for buses, "urgently needed," to cost between two and three million dollars; the Dupont Circle underpass, costing $500,000; rearrangement of track facilities at 4th st. and Pennsylvania ave. nw., and in the vicinity of Barney Circle, to cost around $1,500,000.

Others elected Monday night at the meeting at the Arlington Inn, 1704 N. Rhodes st., are:

Sidney H. Johnston, first vice president; Charles A. Toone, second vice president; Mrs. Mabel Davis, treasurer, and Colin F. Hamilton, secretary. William C. Ayres, Paul B. Rosenberger, E. D. Morrison and Edwin H. Enzor were named directors.

One Day's Groceries Cost This Housewife $4.08 for Her 'Average' D. C. Family of 4

Same Foods Took 20 Cents Less of Machinist's $52 Pay 6 Months Ago

By Jean Reiff
Post Reporter

A day's groceries, with only one small splurge on a luxury, cost Mrs. Mary Keehan, 5715 13th st. nw., exactly $4.08 yesterday.

Her bill was typical of the amount she spends daily to feed herself, her husband, John, a machinist at the Naval G un Factory and their two children, 4-year-old Johnny and 1-year-old Mary.

Just six months ago, her bill for the same foods would have been $3.88, or 20 cents less.

The daily staples alone, 3 quarts of milk, a loaf of bread, a dozen eggs and a half dozen oranges yesterday cost Mary Keehan $1.69. Six months ago, they would have cost her $1.49.

Last night, the Keehans had a hearty but simple supper of baked beans and frankfurters, tomato and lettuce salad, bread and butter, jello and milk. Baby Mary, of course, had her own special strained baby food.

Through the week, they dine on dishes like these or on dishes made from whatever is left of the roast ham or chickens that Mary fixes each weekend.

"We've had roast ham for the last two weeks and we're tired of it, but a roast of beef is just too expensive now," Mary mused as she tried to think of what she might serve this coming weekend for a change.

"Once a week we treat ourselves to a steak or lamb chops or veal cutlets. My husband was a prisoner of war and came back in poor health. He needs good nourishing meats as much as possible," she explained.

Accompanying Mary Keehan on her marketing trip in a large chain store yesterday, we found she bought the following foods at these prices:

First she purchased a half dozen oranges for 22 cents.

"My husband and both the children start out each day with a big glass of orange juice, so I buy a half dozen oranges every day. When I can get them, I buy a large bag of a dozen and a half because it is cheaper," she explained. Six months ago, a half dozen oranges, which is a seasonal fruit, cost her 12 cents.

Next she purchased a head of lettuce for 19 cents and 4 tomatoes for 17 to make the evening meal's salad. Lettuce was the same price six months ago, but tomatoes were 10 cents higher because they, too, are a seasonal food.

Then Mary Keehan splurged on five bananas at 28 cents and three fourths of a pound of cherries at 30 cents.

"Johnny loves fruit, and I get him some every day," she said. "Yesterday it was peaches. But fruit is good for him, so it's not really a luxury."

Next she bought a quart of Clorox for 17 cents. All three items were the same price six months ago.

Then, Mary headed to the luncheon meat counter, going right past the round steak at $1 a pound and the lamb chops at 87 cents a pound. She purchased eight frankfurters for 45 cents and a half pound of bologna for 29 cents. Six months ago they cost 40 cents and 28 cents.

"We're not very fond of frankfurters, but what else can I do?" she queried. She and Johnny had part of the bologna for lunch and the rest went into John's lunchbox today.

Three quarts of milk at 64 cents came next. This is a must on her daily shopping list, for her husband and children drink plenty of milk. Six months ago the three quarts cost 60 cents.

She bought a dozen eggs at 71 cents. Six months ago they were 63 cents. They will last about three days. A loaf of bread cost 12 cents, 2 cents less than six months ago. It will last two days.

The final item was three cans of strained vegetables and three of strained fruits, Baby Mary's quota and a necessity. They cost 54 cents as compared to 50 cents six months ago.

Mrs. Keehan figures she spends between $35 and $40 a week on food for her family. Her husband draws a take-home pay of about $52 a week. A small disability pension he receives helps them to keep up their modest two-room, kitchen and bath apartment.

"Sometimes, I don't buy as carefully as I should. I come from a very large family, and I think I buy too much at times. But we never waste a thing. I do the best I can," Mary declared.

The news that soaring meat prices are leading the high cost of eating to the highest levels in the Nation's history is discouraging to the Keehans, an average Washington family. Mary just sighs, but she'll keep on trying to feed her family well with the money she has. Her plucky remark is: "Marketing is certainly no longer a pleasure."

Franks—Mrs. Mary Keehan buys eight frankfurters from R. J. Chaney, 1811 Q st. se. Occasionally she buys "hot dogs" as an economical main meat course for dinner

Too Much—Honeydew melons at 43 cents are too highly priced to suit Mrs. Keehan. She decided not to purchase them. She must shop for family of four

By Tom Kelley—The Washington Post

This for $4.08—With the "help of Mary, 1, and Johnny, 4, the groceries are unpacked after returning home. She spent $4.08 for six oranges, five bananas, four tomatoes, three-quarters of a pound of cherries, three quarts of milk, a bottle of bleaching liquid, the eight franks, half-pound of baloney, one loaf of bread, a head of lettuce, one dozen eggs and six small cans of baby food

Brentwood Village Rent Hearing to Start

Rent Control Examiner William F. Mansfield will begin public hearings today of requests for 10 to 20 per cent rent boosts for 748 Brentwood Village apartments in Northeast Washington.

The hearing will begin at 9:30 a. m. in the District Building board room, William A. Richardson, rent control secretary-docket clerk, announced.

Apartments of the Brentwood development are located in the 1300 and 1400 blocks of Saratoga ave.; 1200 block of Brentwood rd.; 2500 block of 14th st.; and the 1400 block of Montana ave. and Downing st., he said.

Richardson also revealed yesterday that owners have filed a petition asking rent hikes for 217 units at Conard Apartments, 1228 I st. nw. They asked that monthly rents for 1½-room apartments be increased from $35 to $39.50, for 2½-room units from $35 to $62, he said.

Jury to Hear Case Against James Today

Evidence to Include Witnesses' Claim of Seeing Suspect in Rock Creek Park

Strong evidence linking a Baltimore janitor to the sex slaying of Carol Bardwell, 11, in Rock Creek Park, June 27 will be presented to the grand jury here today.

The janitor is Eugene H. James, 31, now being held for trial in Baltimore in connection with the murder there July 6 of Marsha Brill, also 11.

The case against James to be presented to the grand jury by the United States Attorney's office will include:

1. A confession local police say was obtained from James in Baltimore.

2. The testimony of two witnesses, a man and woman, who claim to have seen the janitor in Rock Creek Park the day Carol Bardwell was slain.

3. Confirmation of the validity of the confession by Baltimore Police Inspector Joseph H. Itzel, who was present when Washington detectives questioned the suspect in Baltimore last week.

Diagram Incriminates James

Although James, through his attorney, repudiated the confession of the Carol Bardwell murder during his arraignment Tuesday in Baltimore for the Marsha Brill killing, developments since then have apparently strengthened the case against him.

Police here have disclosed they have discovered a couple who positively identified a picture of James as that of a man they glimpsed in the park June 27 near the spot where the Bardwell girl was murdered.

One of the strongest pieces of evidence against the Baltimore janitor and handyman may be a diagram which he drew for Washington authorities.

According to one police source, after James had described how he slashed the throat of Carol Bardwell on "an impulse," Washington detectives expressed some doubts as to the suspect's knowledge of Rock Creek Park.

Marks Important Spots

"Give me a paper and pencil," James said.

Then, according to one person present, James drew a perfect diagram of the park area where Carol was murdered, marking the exact spots where her body and bicycle were found and the location of adjacent paths.

James, police say signed his name to the diagram.

First information about the existence of the diagram was obtained by The Washington Post after one of its reporters learned of it from a Baltimore police officer who was in the room when James drew it.

The testimony of Baltimore's Inspector Itzel is expected to refute the statement of James' attorney that Washington detectives "put words in his mouth" and induced him to sign a statement, the contents of which he was ignorant.

A gray suit found in James' home in Baltimore also may figure in the evidence to be presented to the District grand jury, police hinted. The suit, which may have been worn by James the day of his reported visit to Washington and the day Carol Bardwell was slain, has been examined by Baltimore police chemists for bloodstains.

United States Attorney George Morris Fay has declined to comment on the Bardwell case other than to state Tuesday that he would lay the evidence before the grand jury as soon as possible.

Indictment Here a Formality

If an indictment is returned here against James, it may amount to little more than a formality.

Baltimore has first claim on the man, having obtained from him a confession that he fatally stabbed Marsha Brill while she was bicycling with two companions in a wooded Baltimore area.

Baltimore police have also charged him with the rape and robbery of a 38-year-old housewife on June 15.

No Tax Lien Filed Says New Orleans Restaurant Owner

No tax lien has been filed against the present operators of Old New Orleans Restaurant at 1214 Connecticut ave. nw., according to Nicholas J. Gaston, president of the concern which operates the restaurant.

A tax lien filed in District Court covered the 1944 to 1946 period before the present owners purchased the restaurant, Gaston pointed out. Previous owners who sold the restaurant to Cardinal Cafe, Inc., doing business as the Old New Orleans Restaurant, agreed to pay any and all taxes, Gaston, president of the Cardinal firm, said.

Gaston, who explained that he was not an officer of Old New Orleans, Inc., the previous owner, stressed that there are no taxes outstanding against the present owner.

The Washington Post regrets that its story on the tax lien erroneously gave the impression that the tax lien was against the present owner of the restaurant.

Judge Here Gets Lesson In Swindling

By Joseph Paull
Post Reporter

Two confidence men proved in Municipal Court yesterday that the hand is quicker than the eye.

At the trial of Lewis S. Pattani, 54, of Philadelphia, and Oliver C. Maston, 34, of 725 Hobart pl. nw., Judge John P. McMahon learned several ways to swindle, but he never did find out how they made a ring disappear in front of him.

Police Lieut. Richard J. Cox arrested the two men Saturday at the Union Station.

He showed the court the contents of Maston's pockets. There was an aspirin tin containing gummed sandpaper for marking cards, a card shark's mirror, two sets of pasteboards for three-card monte, a black book containing names of members of the confidence fraternity, and a Michigan Bankroll—a roll of green paper to impress suckers with the swindler's affluence.

"What do you do with that green stuff?" asked Assistant Corporation Counsel Clark F. King.

"That's show money. I've been in lots of shows like carnivals and circuses," replied Maston. "But I'm mostly dependent on my father."

While King had his back turned Maston slipped the black book into his wallet. Lieutenant Cox, who did not take his eye off Maston, caught him at it.

Pattani's pockets yielded five rings, with big phony diamonds.

Lieutenant Cox said this was for the hoop game. The swindler would tell his prospect that the ring was an heirloom and for a promise of a good home for the jewelry and say about $300, a sale could be arranged, he said.

Judge McMahon sent both men to jail for 90 days for vagrancy.

Then King noted that on the bench in front of him there were but four of the five rings. He ordered the jailers to "search those men," but the fifth ring was not to be found.

"I guess we've been hooped ourselves," King said to Lieutenant Cox.

Mrs. Sands, Va. Socialite, Killed in Crash

Mrs. Daniel C. Sands, wife of a Loudoun County supervisor and prominent social leader in the Middleburg, Va., hunt country, was killed yesterday in a three-car automobile accident near Paris, Va., in which four other persons were injured.

The accident occurred at about 1:30 p. m., according to Virginia State Police. The injured, all of whom were taken to Winchester Hospital, were:

Theodore Winthrall, San Francisco, Calif., driver of the car which collided with Mrs. Sands' car.

Mrs. Alpha Winthrall, Winthrall's mother, and Miss Idalene Herbener Winthrall, his daughter, passengers in the car.

Patrick Anderson, Mrs. Sands' chauffeur, who was driving the Sands car.

William S. Hart of Stephens City, Va., driver of a third car involved in the accident, was not injured.

According to the story which Hart told police, the Winthrall car, traveling east on Route 50 about half mile east of Paris, skidded on wet pavement and straddled the middle of the two-lane roadway. The Sands car was traveling west on the highway.

Police said the resulting collision was "almost head-on." They said Hart, who was following the Winthrall car, swerved sharply to the right to avoid plunging into the wreck, and damaged the front of his car when he ran into a tree.

Winchester Hospital attaches said Winthrall and his daughter suffered facial injuries and Mrs. Winthrall suffered a fractured nose.

Mrs. Sands was a prominent breeder of thoroughbred horses and was actively interested in welfare and charitable organizations.

The Sands had been residents of Middleburg for about 40 years. Sands has been a member of the Loudoun County board of supervisors for the past 12 years.

Policeman's Auto Strikes 4 at Street Intersection

He Has Possible Spinal Fracture; Another Bluecoat Hits Pedestrian

Ten persons were injured, six seriously, yesterday in traffic accidents, two of which involved District policemen.

Pvt. William H. Bell, 44, of 4460 Alabama ave. se., attached to the Corporation Counsel's office at police headquarters, struck four pedestrians, while driving his car at Benning rd. and 24th st. ne. He told investigating officers he had "blacked out."

Police said Bell, who is in serious condition at Casualty Hospital, veered off Benning rd. ne., struck a trashcan and mailbox, before hitting the pedestrians. Witnesses said the sound of the crashing car attracted their attention so that they began to scatter as the policeman's car approached them.

Bell was admitted to Casualty following treatment for a possible fractured spine and cuts over his right eye. The pedestrians were treated at Casualty Hospital for minor injuries and released, hospital officials reported.

In another accident involving a policeman, Pvt. James E. Waters, 25, of 348 55th st. ne., attached to the Third Precinct, swerved his car to avoid hitting another car that pulled out in front of him and hit a pedestrian. The accident occurred at 7 a. m. at 47th and East Capitol sts.

The pedestrian, Alvin Jones, 31, of 64 7th st. se., was admitted to Gallinger Hospital with a possible skull fracture.

Two persons were injured when a motorcycle collided with an auto on the Sousa Bridge about 2 a. m. Driver of the motorcycle, John E. Hall, 24, of 1309 Alabama ave. se., was treated at Casualty Hospital and later admitted to Walter Reed with a fractured leg and multiple cuts.

Cycle Passenger Hurt

A passenger on the motorcycle, Geraldine Johnson, 18, of 638 I st. ne., was admitted to Casualty Hospital with leg and body injuries. Police said the auto driver was Edward H. Cole, 33, Charlottesville, Va.

Leon S. Jackson, 19, of 1015 Euclid st. nw., received head injuries when the jeep he was driving collided with a streetcar at 16th st. and Columbia rd. nw. about 12:15 p. m. Jackson was admitted to George Washington Hospital. The streetcar was operated by William A. Wheeler, 42, of 105 6th st. se., according to police.

Willard Howard, 66, of 3516 Cheverly ave., Cheverly, Md., was admitted to Casualty Hospital suffering a fractured right leg and multiple head lacerations. Police said he was struck in the 700 block of Kenilworth ave. ne. about 2:45 p. m by an auto operated by William L. McCoy, 21, of 4408 Land pl. ne.

Police Car, Cab Collide

A police vice squad cruiser driven by Pvt. George A. Williams, 22, of 4427 Quarles st. ne., collided at 3d and Q sts. nw. about 2 p. m. with a cab operated by Norval G. Smith, 27, of 2118 10th st. nw, police reported.

Meanwhile, a coroner's jury decided that Roy J. Mickey, 75, of 5112 Connecticut ave. nw., died July 9 of a heart condition and not of injuries he received June 19 when he was struck by an auto.

The accident had occurred at Connecticut and Nebraska aves. nw. Mickey was admitted to Suburban Hospital for left leg and forehead injuries and nasal hemorrhage at the time of the accident and released July 1. He collapsed and died July 9, while walking in the 5100 block of Chevy Chase prkwy. nw.

The jury's verdict exonerated Robert E. Leonard, 25, of 1351 North Carolina ave. ne., driver of the car which struck Mickey.

Telling Off Grocer Costs Customer $20

Telling off his grocer cost John C. Hansborough, 27, a $20 fine in Municipal Court yesterday.

Hansborough, who lives at 620 4th st. ne., was charged with disorderly conduct by the use of loud and abusive language. He denied it.

Harry Bratt, owner of the grocery store at 626 4th st. ne., testified that the trouble started in his store Tuesday when Hansborough's 4-year-old son toddled up to his own 4-year-old tot and punched him in the stomach. Bratt said he reprimanded the Hansborough boy, who ran out of the store in a huff.

Hansborough rushed in a few seconds later and used "all sorts of foul language," Bratt said. He was backed up in this by police who said Hansborough extended his name-calling to them.

Judge John P. McMahon fined Hansborough and lectured him on temper-control and law-respect.

Two Held in Forgery

Two men charged with forging official Virginia State auto inspection stickers were held for grand jury action in Arlington County Court yesterday. The men, Charles S. Barbour, 35, of 1611 S. 13th st., and Booker T. Henderson, 26, of 3446 S. 22d st., both of Arlington, waived preliminary hearing before Judge Harry Thomas.

Chaperons Urged

The District Recreation Board has taken steps to keep groups 18 years of age or under from having after-dark picnics in the parks here unless accompanied by adult sponsors.

The board voted to recommend that no permits for after-dark picnics be issued to the young groups unless they are chaperoned by adults.

Harry Wender, board chairman, pointed out that the vast area of the parks does not allow for proper police protection of children. The recommendation will be forwarded immediately to the Interior Department for action, he said.

$10,000 Sex Charge Bond

Harold D. Meekins, 32, of 2800 13th st. nw., was held under $10,000 bond yesterday for grand jury action on a charge of having carnal relations with an 8-year-old cousin. The girl was injured internally, said Assistant United States Attorney Robert E. Short in asking the high bond in Municipal Court.

976 Marriage Licenses

There were 976 marriage licenses issued in the District in May, the National Office of Vital Statistics reported yesterday. The figure represents a 7.8 per cent drop over May, 1947.

Over the Nation, however, the 85,829 licenses issued during May in cities of 100,000 or more were 13.5 per cent less than the number issued in May a year ago. And May was the best month so far this year, the office said.

All-French Program Is a 'Wow'

By Paul Hume

Bastille Day was celebrated in fine fashion last night, and departed in a blaze of glory.

Howard Mitchell gave a good-sized audience at the Watergate some of his finest conducting and an all-French program turned into a public success of "wow" proportions. The concert opened with the Star-Spangled Banner. Then, while a lady behind me said, "What's that they're playing?", the Marseillaise polished off the ceremonials.

The real excitement came in the second half of the evening, when Mitchell and the orchestra turned out one thriller after another. The Roman Carnival Overture of Berlioz showed off the brass choirs in stunning style. Any all-French program calls for virtuoso brass playing, and the men of the National Symphony delivered throughout the evening.

Ravel's Pavane in the composer's own orchestration is a rich elegy which the solo horn set forth nobly. Mitchell's fine sense of sound and rhythm, clearly evident at all times, produced a rare hearing of Debussy's Festivals. Muted trumpets played at their softest, and the swirls from there to the close were majestic in their pomp.

Swoon music had its turn in Debussy's Clair de lune. While it is still better as a piano piece, it has a valid place on lighter programs.

But you should have heard Jacques Ibert's Divertissement. Here was light-hearted nose-thumbing at Mendelssohn's Wedding March, and burlesques on Viennese waltzes, military marches, winding up with a can-can to end can-cans. The players were at their best every moment, and added Carmen excerpts for the enthusiastic crowd.

Albert Spalding was soloist earlier in the evening, giving a svelte reading of Lalo's Symphonie espagnole. High humidity makes trouble for string players, and Spalding had his difficulties in pitch, particularly in leaping intervals. But the familiar sheen, and the elegance of style were there as of old.

It was amazing to consider during the program how anyone could prepare so subtle and taxing a program in just one rehearsal. Mitchell, for his sensitive accompaniment, as well as for his solo conducting, deserves plenty of cheering for his Bastille Day, 1948, concert.

Alert Inspector Starts, Wins War of Roses With Teacher Who Beautified City Land

MRS. ALMA MARSHALL'S RANGEY ROSE TRELLIS, OBJECTIVE IN BATTLE OF ROSES

By John London
Post Reporter

A new War of the Roses yesterday flared up around a picturesque little garden fronting South Dakota ave. and Allison st. ne.

Embattled principal in the garden drama, which was raked over Wednesday in the corporation counsel's office, is a bespectacled school teacher, slight, graying Mrs. Alma E. Marshall of 1326 Allison st. ne.

Mrs. Marshall

A rose fancier from way back, Mrs. Marshall is accused of carrying her hobby too far, about 29 feet too far.

Her beloved roses—175 bushes blushing with the beauty of 116 varieties—must be removed. The flower of 17 years of loving labor, the roses, it turns out, are on District property, and not, as Mrs. Marshall took for granted, on her land.

The first trouble bloomed unprettily, it seems, when a District inspector for the trees and parking division discovered Mrs. Marshall's rose trellis on Allison st. ranges from 7 to 9 feet above the sidewalk. This, he reported, violated an ordinance limiting fencing to 42 inches in height above the sidewalk.

In checking land plot records, the inspector further noticed the garden land adjacent to Mrs. Marshall's two-story, tapestry brick home belongs not to the owner of the house but to the District. And so the Montgomery Blair High School teacher was told she must remove her trellis, a lily pond and some 2300 bulbs and various other blooms.

Mrs. Marshall bitterly insists this is all the doing of some nasty neighbor, jealous of her flower kingdom, or covetous of the land, "who has gone all the way up to the Commissioners."

Further, she maintains that her roses, the pride of the neighborhood and frequent winners of prizes, will surely perish if removed during the warm weather.

Wearily, Assistant Corporation Counsel Clark F. King, after yesterday's hearing, the second in as many weeks, advised Mrs. Marshall to work out with John W. Batson, trees and parking division superintendent, an arragement whereby the law may be honored "without unduly jeopardizing" the frail lives of the fair flowers.

Loan Company Threatened With Loss of License

Operators of a District auto loan company have been ordered by the Commissioners to show cause why their business license should not be revoked, License Superintendent Chatham T. Nottingham revealed yesterday.

The company is Auto Loan Service, Inc., with offices at 638 Pennsylvania ave. se., he said. Company officers are scheduled to appear before the Board for the Revocation of Business Licenses at District Building, Friday, July 23, at 10 a. m.

The Commissioners took the action on the recommendation of Nottingham, who said he had difficulty in obtaining access to the company's books and found them incomplete when they finally were produced upon demand.

Alexandria Going in Red, Gets Warning

The Alexandria City Council yesterday was warned that it has been spending money it doesn't have.

The auditing firm of Ernst & Ernst, which went over the city's finances, reported the city must keep its expenditures within revenues or "in time seriously impair the provision of funds to meet the necessary demands of the city's operations."

The criticism arose when the auditing firm discovered that the deficit in the general fund increased by $130,983.91 during the 1947 calendar year. This increase occurred despite the fact that most capital expenditure items were charged to the bond fund surplus.

The auditing firm pointed out that because of this system of bookkeeping, the current deficit in the general fund "cannot properly be refunded by a future bond issue, but must be provided out of revenue in future years."

Another deficit, in the categories of playgrounds and sewers, totaling $80,790.33, "may eventually have to be absorbed by the general fund" also, the firm said.

Continuing in gloomy tone, Ernst & Ernst warned the council also that the bond fund surplus is now so small "that any future capital items allotted thereto and not already provided for will result in a deficit for this fund" if the items exceed $1595.55.

The auditors went on: "In the past we have commented on the dangers of the practice followed by city council in making special appropriations in excess of current revenue available to the general fund and the current deficit is a result of this practice."

The firm commented favorably, however, on the fact that earlier this year the council passed a resolution requiring a three-fourths vote of the entire council membership to authorize any further special appropriations.

Takoma Park Boy Found With Polio

The first case of infantile paralysis recorded in nearby Maryland this year was admitted yesterday to Children's Hospital here.

The victim was identified as a 7-year-old boy who lives in the 200 block of Spruce ave., Takoma Park. Physicians said he probably contracted the disease in Chicago, where the family lived until two weeks ago.

His admittance to the hospital on Monday on diagnsos of poliomyelitis brings to seven the number of polio cases under care here from the Greater Washington area. Three are District children and three are from nearby Virginia.

"The trend is about the same as last year, and certainly nothing to be apprehensive about," declared Dr. James G. Cumming, chief of the District Health Department's bureau of communicable diseases.

Dr. Cumming pointed out that at this same time last year, District hospitals had admitted seven polio patients in the same proportion, three from the District and four from nearby.

Experts attending the First International Conference on Poliomyelitis, in current sessions in New York, agreed in panel discussions Tuesday that swimming pools may contribute to the spread of polio, and should be closed during epidemics.

From North Carolina came reports yesterday that State health officials are planning on providing 1000 additional beds for polio patients they fear may be needed in the present outbreak of infantile paralysis in that State. Dr. Ray Norton, State health officer, said wartime hospital facilities at Camps Sutton, Butner and Mackall may be used.

Dr. Hart E. Van Riper, medical director of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, reported that North Carolina polio cases this year total 544 and may reach 900 before the present epidemic ends. He said it is "definitely" the worst polio epidemic in the Nation since the Minneapolis outbreak of 1946, when 3183 cases were recorded.

840,000 Pounds of Explosives Are Set Off in Record Blast

The largest quarry blast in history was set off near Bristol, Tenn., yesterday afternoon—840,000 pounds of explosives—but it didn't raise a ripple on Georgetown University's seismograph.

The Rev. Frederick W. Sohon, university seismologist, reported a "slight deflection of the trace," but said it was "so slight" that it could easily have been caused by another source, such as a heavy wind somewhere.

Engineers set off the blast at 2:30 p.m. yesterday at the site of TVA's South Holston dam to obtain rock for construction of the dam. Besides Georgetown scientists, seismologists at Lafayette, Easton, Pa.; Washington at St. Louis, and Loyola at New Orleans also were alerted for the explosion.

The blast, tagged the "biggest in construction history" by Project Manager George K. Leonard, was expected to dislodge a million cubic yards of rock.

Father Sohon said he hadn't expected the Georgetown University seismograph to record the explosion. The university's instruments, he said, are set for "something that lasts over a longer period and is farther away." Bristol, Tenn., is a little less than 400 miles from Washington.

The dam, located some 7 miles from Bristol, will add about 35,000 kilowatts of power to the authority's output.

Rites Today For 6 Area Servicemen

Six Greater Washington servicemen are among 20 Air Force and Army war dead who will be reburied today at 2 p. m., in Arlington Cemetery.

They are: Flight Officer Statten H. Gooden, jr., 27, whose wife, Mrs. Helen Keegan Gooden, lives at 917 18th st. nw., was a navigator on an Eighth Air Force B-17 when he was killed over England on January 29, 1945.

A native of Elkton, Va., F/O Gooden was an employe in the Procurement Division of the Treasury Department here before his enlistment in 1942. Besides his wife, he leaves his mother, Mrs. Lettie Gooden, of Elkton, and a daughter, Kathleen.

At the same time today, his brother, Staff Sergt. Roy C. Gooden, 20, who was an Air Force gunner when he was killed in France, January 21, 1944, will be reburied.

Killed on Night Flight

Second Lieut. Arthur W. Hagesteary, 24, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Hagesteary of 4002 New Hampshire ave. nw. He was a B-24 navigator in the Eighth Air Force when he was killed April 26, 1945, on a night flight in Cambridge, England. He had completed 28 combat missions.

A native of Scranton, Pa., he was graduated from Roosevelt High School here. Surviving him, in addition to his parents, is one brother, Stephen Hagesteary, and a sister Miss Anne Hagesteary, both of Washington.

Sergt. Ashton Ward Hewitt, 20, a radio operator on an Eighth Air Force bomber, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. N. Hewitt of 1627 E st. se. He was killed over England as his squadron was returning from a bombing mission to Hanover, Germany, on October 22, 1944.

A native of Washington, Sergeant Hewitt attended Hine Junior High School and the Chamberlin Vocational School. He was employed as a machinist at the Navy Yard here prior to entering service in June, 1943. Besides his parents, Sergeant Hewitt is survived by three sisters, Mrs. Elva Alspach, Mrs. Madge Courchen and Mrs. Ruth Vaughn, all of Washington, and a brother, Staff Sergt. Herman H. Hewitt, who is stationed with the American occupation forces in Stuttgart, Germany.

Liaison Officer John T. McArthur, jr., 22, an Eighth Air Force B-24 crew member, based at Norfolk, England, had completed 34 combat missions and had one more to go before he was to receive rest leave, when he was reported dead January 22, 1945.

A native of Atlanta, Ga., he was graduated from Central High School here. He entered service in November, 1942. Officer McArthur is survived by his mother, Mrs. Ethel McArthur of 2830 6th st. ne.; his father, John T. McArthur of 1027 N. Frederick st., Arlington, and a sister, Miss Ann McArthur of Washington.

Pvt. John Chester Caldwell, 21, whose parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Caldwell, live at 1227 G st. se., was fatally injured in France on November 8, 1944.

A native of Washington, Private Caldwell attended the Chamberlin Vocational School and worked as a mechanic for the Atcher Motor Co. here before he entered the Army in 1942. Besides his parents, he is survived by a brother, Charles Marshall Caldwell of Washington.

Native of Carolina

Technician Fifth Grade James P. Keesee, 35, was on duty with Company B of the 827th Engineering Battalion when he was killed September 10, 1945, in England.

A native of Reidsville, N. C., Corporal Keesee entered the Army here in 1941. He is survived by his father, William Keesee; a sister, Miss Hazel Keesee, and a brother, Grover, all of 1509 5th st. nw.

Other Maryland and Virginia servicemen to be reburied today at Arlington Cemetery include:

Pvt. Joseph M. Coates, whose mother, Mrs. Nettie Coates, lives at Chesapeake Beach, Md.; Pvt. Thomas W. Elliott, son of Thomas W. Elliott of Burtonsville, Md., and Pvt. James D. Jefferson, son of William T. Jefferson of Sandy Level, Va.

Funeral services for Mrs. Laura V. Cox, 90, who died Tuesday, will be held at her home, 4418 MacArthur blvd. nw., at 2 p. m. today. Burial will be in Cedar Hill Cemetery.

Mrs. Cox, a native of southern Maryland, died at home after an illness of four months.

She was the widow of James L. Cox, who farmed in Maryland for many years and was engaged in the hauling business in Clarendon, Va., at the time of his death 32 years ago.

Mrs. Cox leaves two daughters, Mrs. Birdie Birch and Mrs. Charles A. Harrington of Washington; three grandchildren and three great-grandsons.

S. S. Symons Rites Are Set For Friday

Funeral services will be held Friday at 2 p. m. for Schuyler S. Symons, 79, president of the Northeast Building Association, who died Tuesday. Services will be at the residence, 3118 18th st. ne. Burial will be in Glenwood Cemetery.

Mr. Symons

Mr. Symons, who had been a resident here for more than half a century, suffered a heart attack at his office, 2010 Rhode Island ave. ne., Tuesday. He died at his home.

Long active in civic affairs here, he was president of the Rhode Island Avenue Citizens Association from 1908 to 1912 and from 1916 to 1920. He was a past master of Takoma Lodge No. 29, FAAM, and a member of the board of trustees of the McKendree Methodist Church, South Dakota and Rhode Island aves. ne.

Born in Cedar Creek, on March 12, 1869, Mr. Symons moved here in 1891 to work for the Veterans' Administration, then known as the Pensions Office. He retired from VA in April 1937.

Mr. Symons received bachelor of law and master of law degrees from National University Law School, but did not practice law here. He had been with the Northeast Building Association since it was founded in 1916, as treasurer, then secretary, and, since 1945, as president. He was also a member of the board of directors of the Firemens Insurance Co. of Washington and Georgetown.

He is survived by his wife, the former Jennie E. Mendel of Albia; a son, S. Sydney Symons, Interstate Commerce Commission accountant, of 3196 18th st. ne.; two daughters, Mrs. Mary Porter of the 18th st. address and Mrs. Mildred Bottimer of Kerrville, Tex., and three grandchildren.

More Zoning Held Needed in Arlington Area

A definite need for increased commercial zoning in Section 4 of the Arlington County Master Plan was set out yesterday by C. L. Kinnier, county planning engineer.

Under the proposal, two local commercial districts are suggested for Section 4, which includes Bellevue Forest, Country Club Hills, Crystal Spring Knolls, and the vicinity of Fort Ethan Allen and Woodmont.

The two shopping centers proposed under local commercial zoning are at the Chain Bridge entrance to Arlington County, covering existing commercial zoning, and at the intersection of Williamsburg blvd. and Old Dominion dr.

The plan is to expand the commercial zoning at Williamsburg blvd. because the neighborhood shopping area is located at an intersection which is expected to become increasingly busy, making the adjoining corner lots undesirable for residential use.

The expansion of commercial zoning now "will eliminate the justification for further commercial rezonings in this area . . . and will also avoid a commercial enterprise from encroaching upon established home owners . . ."

Kinnier said the existing population served by the neighborhood shopping district is 890 people. However, he pointed out, the expected ultimate population for the area is 10,500.

A. D. Bailey, Bladensburg Leader, Dies

Funeral services for Alfred D. Bailey, 87, for 15 years president of the Prince Georges County Federation of Citizens Associations, who died Wednesday, will be held at St. Luke's Episcopal Church, Bladensburg on Friday at 10 a. m. Burial will be in Fort Lincoln Cemetery.

Mr. Bailey, a native of New Jersey, had lived in Prince Georges for 50 years. He was called judge because he was justice of the peace in Bladensburg for several years up to the outbreak of the first World War. He then joined the Treasury Department, retiring in 1932 as a section chief in a bond division.

One of the founders of the citizens associations federation, Mr. Bailey was noted for his work in behalf of flood control programs and other community enterprises. He was also active in church work and was a vestryman at St. Luke's Church.

Mr. Bailey's wife, Mary, died in 1930. Surviving him are two sons, Col. C. Y. Bailey, USMC, Cherry Point, N. C., and C. G. Bailey, Silver Spring, and a daughter, Mrs. W. B. Hargett, 4325 Clagett rd., University Park, Md.

Joseph Kaminsky

Funeral services were held yesterday at 2 p. m. at the Danzansky funeral home, 3501 14th st. nw., for Joseph Kaminsky, retired commission merchant of 1435 Perry pl. nw., who died Monday. Burial was in Adas Israel Cemetery.

Mr. Kaminsky, 73, a District resident for more than 45 years, died at George Washington Hospital after a week's illness. He retired from business nine months ago.

A member and founder of the Adas Israel Congregation, he was also associated with the Knights of Pythias. He was an active Zionist and a member of the board of trustees of the Hebrew Home for the Aged.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Anna Kaminsky; a brother, Mayer Kaminsky of Pittsburgh, Pa.; four daughters, Miss Rosalie Kaminsky, Mrs. Samuel Dessoff, Mrs. Reuben Shanker and Mrs. Julius Eanet, all of this city, and three grandchildren.

Bastille Day Celebrated by French Colony in District . . .

France in Washington yesterday celebrated Bastille Day.

Thirty-five hundred miles from la Patrie, and 159 years after the fall of the fortress-prison nearly a thousand persons attended the reception at the French Embassy.

They represented a part of Washington's "French colony," and ranged from French diplomatic, naval and military officials to two who speak neither French nor English yet—Suzanne and Annelise, 1-year-old twin daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Ware of 706 Beverly dr., Alexandria.

"It includes about 2000 French citizens—some attached to the various missions here, some representatives of French commercial organizations, some students, and others."

It also includes others of French descent or origin—like Mrs. Ware, who met her husband while he was serving with the American Army and came to the States with him following their marriage in 1945.

"Altogether, there are only a few thousand of French descent here in Washington," Strauss said, "not a large number.

"There are more than before the war, though, because France is trying to rebuild her trade and because of the popularity of American schools."

Earlier, in the forenoon, a Bastille Day service was held at St. John's Church, 16th and H sts. nw., at which the Rev. Pierre Toureille, pastor of the French Protestant Church in Washington, preached.

To those at the reception yesterday Ambassador Henri Bonnet, speaking from the steps in the embassy foyer, spoke soberly of France's postwar recovery.

Great progress has been made in the last year, he said. Conditions are much better, France is advancing.

"Bastille Day is a symbol of liberty, not only for the French," he said, "but for people everywhere."

Above him on the wall hung a tapestry, "Liberty," by Lurcat. On a console across the room was a white bust of Lafayette, America's friend.

When he had finished there was a moment's pause, then the "Marseillaise."

D. C. Woman Named to Head Rainbow Division Auxiliary

(Special to The Washington Post)

Pittsburgh, July 14.—A Washington woman, Mrs. Irene W. Colston, 1317 Iris st. nw., was elected president of the women's auxiliary, National Association of Rainbow Division Veterans, today.

Another Washingtonian, Romeo J. Fagiolo, 1817 Ingleside ter. nw., was elected a national vice president at the association's thirtieth annual reunion.

Mrs. Colston is the wife of Walker H. Colston of the District's 165th Field Hospital in the Forty-second (Rainbow) Division in World War I and a past national president of the association.

Fagiolo was a member of the 222d Infantry Regiment in the division during World War II and is retiring president of the District chapter of the association.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur was congratulated on the conduct of the war in the Pacific and the occupation and military government of Japan in a resolution. The veterans assured him of their "affection for him and their faith in his judgment and courage."

MacArthur was the division's first chief of staff in World War I and subsequently commanded an infantry brigade and the division itself.

The veterans selected New York as the 1949 reunion city and elected Edward G. Riekert of New York national president. He succeeds John D. Brenner of Lancaster, Pa.

Col. J. Monroe Johnson of Washington, head of the Office of Defense Transportation, gave the chief address at the 11:45 p. m. "Champagne Pour" ceremony commemorating the hour when the barrage preceding the German offensive in the Champagne sector fell on the division's lines.

RAF Jet Planes In Greenland On Atlantic Flight

Halifax, July 14 (AP).—Six RAF jet-propelled planes landed in Greenland today, completing the second leg of their hop across the Atlantic.

The Navy reported one had blown a tire on landing. All six will remain in Greenland overnight.

Earlier it was erroneously reported the British planes had reached Goose Bay, Labrador.

Meanwhile, 14 United States jet planes waited at Goose Bay to attempt the west-east ocean crossing. The British planes already had completed two legs—Scotland to Iceland to Greenland—while the United States Shooting Stars have not yet made the first hop to Greenland. It was possible the pilots might meet in Greenland.

License of Firm Convicted on 13 Counts Suspended

The Alcoholic Beverage Control Board yesterday imposed a 14-day license suspension penalty on the Gold Label Distributing Co., Inc., 121 L st. ne., after finding the company guilty on 13 counts of alleged violation of ABC regulations.

The company's Class "B" wholesale ABC license will be suspended from July 16 to July 29, inclusive, ABC officials announced.

Included in the 13 counts were failure to make books and records available to ABC inspectors, failure to superintendend the business properly through a manager, failure to surrender the license while business was discontinued from April 4 to 26.

At a hearing June 3, four ABC inspectors testified they failed to find officers or employes present when they went to inspect the company's books last April.

Week's Social Highlight

Democratic Party's Party Moves Around Crowded Bar, Buffet and Dance Floor

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

PHILADELPHIA — HIGHLIGHTS of the Democratic Party's party of the week given by Washington hostess, Mrs. George Mesta, who is also a Rhode Island delegate to the convention:

Before her party Perle Mesta broadcast on air and screen a list of those she hadn't invited. With Jimmy Roosevelt as leadoff man it included most publicly recorded anti-Trumanites. It would be far easier to print Perle's list and add merely "the rest" were there.

In a nutshell the party swung and swayed over a dance floor, around bar and buffet, through three rooms. The outer room ringed with banquettes, a few small tables were ablaze with the gruelling light necessary for television. A clumsy television machine was wheeled with devastating slowness from one smiling, sweaty face to another. Beside the machine was Betty Tyson Leith, the hostess' niece, who manages and produces her own television program. Light around the dance floor was more merciful but cameramen in squads, like invading locusts, popped their bulbs under usually only too willing noses. They crawled on chairs and when the wife of a Cabinet member fell on the dance floor they swarmed like hornets—trying to find some comic or undignified pose. Added to the usual variety of Lensalads were several women camera artists —Washington's Jackie Martin in a red trimmed white pique evening dress—an unidentified woman who trailed an assistant carrying a flashbulb attached to her camera by wire.

The Starved Guests

THE starved delegates, press, politicos, wives and assorted socialites fell on mounds of sandwiches, seafood on rice, ices in pretty paper cups. Waiters wiggled through the crowd with trays of whisky sodas, champagne, some of it good, some of it awful, and an occasional soft drink.

Mrs. Mesta circulated among her tight-packed guests with uncanny skill getting people together who should have been gotten together. She wore a ballerina, sapphire blue lace gown, gold bead necklace and earrings. Women who had seen each other an hour before fell on each other's necks with squeals of pleased surprise.

There were scads of pretty women—Mrs. Millard Tydings in a wondrous black ostrich-trimmed bonnet, self-striped black net dress with tiny puffed sleeves and matchingly demure Mrs. Chip Robert in a pale gold hand-knit silk suit, Mrs. William Fulbright in green and white print, Mrs. John Nicholas Brown with a white tulle creation cocked over right ear, Mrs. Kenneth Royall in sheer black with a delectable gob of lilacs, roses and whatnot cocked over left ear.

Miss Frances Perkins dropped in with her Philadelphia hostess, Gertrude Ely, after her convention speech, as did India Edwards, still with television makeup—she meant to be hatless for her convention speech but didn't have time for a hairdo so clapped on a white tulle turban with a dangling waterlily—Senator Green, littered with badges, skipped about as did his political protege, Senator Harold McGrath.

Admiral and Mrs. Kauffman added the sole touch of Navy scrambled eggs, Army brass was missing—Clinton Anderson tablehopped, telling everyone about his irrigating schemes out New Mexico way—Mrs. Leslie Biffle, who has taken in every event, was at a table with Mrs. George Holmes, who incidentally was tickled some color because she's just become a grandmother—Glade Biffle's thumbnail sketch of Sergeant-at-Arms Biffle's convention life was staggering—Leslie sleeps around three hours even less, eats only one meal—breakfast. When this clambake is over she'll sweep up the remains, cart them to some purposefully unidentified Shangri-la. Most attractive family twosome was Columnist Doris Fleeson and her teen-age daughter—look alikes, they dressed alike in white pique. Bowling over the gents was smart Martha Roundtree, the radio gal, who's slim and blonde.

Governor Is a Hit

POSITIVELY nicest man in the room was Oklahoma's Gov. Roy Turner. Sandy-haired, serious engaging it is his first political job and he's crazy about both it and Oklahoma. Mrs. T. Young, too, was svelte, girlish in a simple cocoa brown dress.

Much, much later, Senators Tydings and Fulbright dropped in to pick up their wives. They'd been to an all-male reception for Senator Barkley. They'd had to wait for the guest of honor who after his long, handsomely delivered keynote speech returned to his room showered, came out fresh as that old daisy in another white linen suit.

The Leon Hendersons for once were too tired to rhumba, but obliged with photographic poses. Ringside table was held down by New York Evening Post owner Dolly Schiff Thackery, who wears her becoming blued hair tied at a la George Washington. With her was Mrs. Earl Wilson and her funny man columnist husband who is always very serious indeed.

Summed up into another nutshell the Mesta party, noisy, overcrowded and photographed, undoubtedly over written—but that's why people come to conventions and who but Perle Mesta would have the dough, the gitupandgo to give so many so much fun.

'Two Party Perle' Confesses

Liberalism of the Democrats Converted Her, Says Mrs. Mesta

By Cynthia Lowry

PHILADELPHIA, July 14 (AP).—The Democratic women's campaign school ended today as prominent feminine members of the party discussed issues, and a popular Washington hostess explained why she is a "converted Democrat."

Mrs. George Mesta, Wealthy Newport and Capital Society hostess, acknowledged her nickname is "Two Party Perle," because she once was a Republican.

"But I love it," she said enthusiastically to the 100 or so women attending the two-hour morning session. "If you're in politics you have to be a good sport. I don't mind it. I love everything about politics."

Mrs. Mesta said she was a Republican for a great many years.

"The reason I turned is because (the Democrats) stand for liberalism and progress," she said. "I always believed in the Democratic Party although I was a Republican, because I believe in liberal principales."

Speaking as a "very close friend" of the Truman family, she praised the President as a "courageous, honest and sincere man whose record speaks for itself."

Other speakers, infinitely less personal in their approach, discussed such matters as minimum wages, social security, Federal aid to education, and the reciprocal trade agreement situation. They called for an all-out effort to pick up the women's vote.

Mrs. Clark Clifford, attractive blonde wife of the President's special counsel, said the letter G. O. P. today mean "greatly overpriced."

Deep in Virginia Hills

Hoover's Rapidan Camp Still Tourists' Mecca

By Marie McNair

RAPIDAN, summer White House of "the forgotten man" is still remembered by almost a thousand Hoover fans every month. Former President Herbert Hoover's private camp, deep in the quiet Virginia hills, is a mecca for tourists, who come mostly from curiosity to see how and where America's First Family lived. Prime Ministers and other notables were entertained there in the simple manner in which the Hoovers lived. They fished the lively trout streams, climbed the hills, walked shaded paths along the water's edge. They came together at mealtime at brookside tables were Hemlock Run, Laurel Prong and Mill Prong join the Rapidan to rush merrily over the rocks.

Built by Herbert Hoover with private funds, later turned over to the Government, Rapidan is beginning to show signs of neglect. The 13 separate cabins with names such as the Prime Minister, the Ishbel—for Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald's daughter, who visited there; the Creel, the Owl, Town Hall and the Slums, look quite shabby. A recent visitor there found some of the furnishings being removed, but the guard and caretaker couldn't or wouldn't say why. Looking over the sole remaining list of one of the Hoovers' summer house parties, the visitor read: "Mrs. Hoover's Cabin: guest, Mrs. Rickart. Ishbel Cabin: Mrs. Hoffmann, Mrs. Whiting. The Slums: Mrs. Shane, Miss Barnes, Mrs. Miller, Trails End: Mrs. Choate. The Owl, Mrs. Parsons, Mrs. Chester. All names now long since forgotten.

The late President Roosevelt looked it over with the possibility of making it a summer retreat, decided in favor of Shangri-la, Maryland's Catoctin Mountain area.

Meanwhile, polite and patient guards answer questions by the thousands, guide visitors up hill, down stream for a look-see at a former presidential fastness.

"YOUNG KING DAVID," ready for bookshop shelves on August 25, is Marian King's first book since the war, her eighteenth since she started writing a number of years ago. The war years for Washington's well-known author were taken up with war jobs—stints with the Food, Petroleum and British secretariat, all under the British Ministry of Supply.

Tennis, too—and Miss King was once junior champion of the District—was displaced by work during that period and it's only now that she's getting her hand in again on the game.

Marian King has written innumerable short stories for children, historical novels based on England's Tudor Princess, Elizabeth, and a charming book, "It Happened in England" which concerns the adventures of the British children living on a farm in Cotswold.

Her latest book tells the story of David in dramatic style, sticking closely to the King James version, and written in a way that will appeal to teen-agers as well as those not so young.

MISS Julia Cuniberti, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fernando Cuniberti, will sail on Thursday on board the Polish liner, Sobieski, for Europe. She will land in Genoa, Italy and will spend the summer with her uncle and aunt.

Miss Cuniberti who has been studying painting at the Corcoran School of Art, expects to be in Italy next winter to continue her art studies. She was among the Corcoran students exhibiting at the recent show held at historic Center Market. Her contribution was "Dance Macabre."

ITALIAN Ambassador Alberto Tarchiani decorated Fleet Admiral Ernest J. King, Chief of Naval Operations in World War II, with the Grand Cross of the Military Order of Italy at ceremonies yesterday

Italian Decorations Awarded To Admirals Leahy and King

By Elizabeth Maguire

HIGH officials of the Government and Navy attended a ceremony at the Italian Embassy yesterday, when Fleet Admiral William D. Leahy, USN, and Fleet Admiral Ernest J. King, USN, were awarded the Grand Cross of the Military Order of Italy. The honor was conferred on them by the Italian Ambassador, Alberto Tarchiani, on behalf of the former President of the Italian Republic, Enrico de Nicola.

Guests arriving at the embassy found the colorful formality of the ceremony a sharp contrast to the gray, limp day without. Cameras whirred and lights played on a group of distinguished men in beribboned uniforms heavy with decorations.

The high-ceilinged drawing room with its portraits and red damask provided a suitable setting. Long French windows opened onto the cool courtyard of the embassy, and after the awards, champagne and iced tea were passed around.

Capt. di Vascello Franco Baslini, Naval Attache, in dashing white uniform with blue riband and numerous decorations read the following citation for Admiral Leahy:

"As military expert of profound knowledge, highest capacity, and vast experience, he contributed in posts of supreme responsibility to the success of the operations that the American armed forces carried out during the Second World War, so that the torch of freedom could shine bright all over the world.

"For his exceptional and decisive contribution to the Allied victory he has acquired great merit in the cause of civilization."

And for Admiral King, Capt. Baslini cited:

"The United States Navy Chief of Naval Operations with his brilliant action as organizer and commander, rendered an outstanding contribution to the victory of the Allied nations and to the liberator of the Italian territory invaded by the enemy.

"In his victorious work, he sustained with authoritative firmness the active cooperation of the Italian navy in the Allied military operations. He thus made possible the efficacious participation of the Italian naval forces for the triumph of the ideals of democracy and liberty."

A similar honor was conferred on Gen. Henry H. Arnold, who was on the West Coast and unable to be present.

For the first time since the war, all three of the Italian armed forces were represented at the Embassy. Captain Baslini had his picture snapped along with Col. Carlo Unia, Air Attache, and Lieut. Col. Umberto de Martino, Military Attache.

The Ambassadress, Signora Tarchiani, is in Rome, so Countess di Stefano acted as hostess in her absence. Count di Stefano, who is soon going to Canada as Ambassador, was among the guests. Pretty Miss Louise Leahy, the admiral's only granddaughter, and Mrs. Albert Parker Niblack, his sister-in-law, were also guests.

How to Tell When Jelly Is Done

Before starting on the season's jelly-making it might be well to bring to mind how to know when jelly is done. Some jellies will suddenly boil up to the top of the kettle when they have reached this point, but as this cannot be counted on it is better to use the saucer test. Put a tablespoon of hot sirup on a small dish and place the dish directly on the ice. If in five minutes the sirup is firm and jellied, the jelly is done.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Girl, 30, Assistant Buyer, Has Been Seeing Prominent Lawyer, 45, for Late-Dinner Dates, Which He Insists on Concealing From Friends

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am 30, look much younger, am considered attractive and dress well. I have a job as assistant buyer.

About a year ago I met Tom, a prominent lawyer, 45, via office consultation. On the heels of a chance encounter a few months later he invited me to lunch and on this first date asked to see me again.

However, his parting words were, "This is off the record," which amazed me, and when I asked if he had a wife, he said no, but he didn't want his staff to know his business!—another remark I thought uncalled-for.

Since then we've dated on an average of twice a month and the routine is always the same: late dinner at some hotel, club or inn, a drive in his car and then parking in some secluded spot for what (in my estimation) is rather passionate lovemaking.

She Never Before
Permitted Petting

I HAD NEVER before indulged in petting, which I believe to be morally wrong and psychologically harmful; and though I am lonely and enjoy these interludes of "affection," if you can call them that, they bother me. Other things bother me, too.

Tom never calls for me at home; I meet him after work in town. He never sees me on weekends or holidays, never suggests "another time" at parting, but telephones again in a week or two; never asks me to meet any of his family or friends; and when I suggest his meeting mine—all very nice people—he always says, "Some other time."

He is always saying how sweet or lovely or attractive I am, that I have an excellent mind, etc.; so why, if he thinks so highly of me, does he persist in keeping our friendship such a deep secret?

He is of the same religious and racial background as myself, his success is due to hard work and natural brilliance, and he is very modest about his accomplishments, so I don't think he is a snob; but I am beginning to resent being treated as "the other woman" for no reason. My life has always been above reproach and I am afraid that I may get hurt by falling deeply in love with him. Please advise me. K. D.

Man Patronizes
Her as Declasse

DEAR K. D.: In condensing your long letter, I've omitted much that is relevant to a clarifying discussion, including statements to show that you aren't sure Tom is a bachelor.

For instance, you say, "If he isn't married, then he is extremely marriage-shy and afraid that his name will be linked with any woman's." Also, "As he speaks of taking his mother various places, perhaps he is a victim of too much Mom."

As to that, he could have a wife and a vampire-Mom, too, and yet treat you as a lady if he felt that way about you and were strongly attracted to compatible qualities of your personality.

The fact is that, married or not, he bluntly labeled you declasse by his reckoning, disqualified to figure openly as a friend or heart-interest of his, right from the start of this sneak-flirtation, and he has been treating you as a pick-up ever since, vulnerable and tempting as a passing fancy.

Girl's Ingenue
Pose Dishonest

YOU know that. At your age, in your line of work, you can't be an ingenue. You swallowed his insolence and followed his lead not so much because you were lonely or thought he was Lochinvar, as because you were dazzled by his status, flattered by his notice, and willing to gamble that given opportunity to sell yourself, you might make a real conquest of him.

Tom is a snob in relation to you, also a wolf, who discreetly covers his tracks to make a tight case for the record that you've never been more than an inconsequential acquaintance and offhand dinner companion when he works late. Alas for your hopes of conquest, you are trembling resentfully on the verge of losing both head and self-respect in the deal; and the only defense against total defeat is to ring down the curtain on Tom's monkeybusiness. Zonta Club Hears Appeal For Starving

"Do not waste food. The children of Europe still are suffering from war starvation and malnutrition," admonished John A. Margret de Lascases, who recentdy returned from a trip to France.

Speaking at a luncheon meeting of the Washington Zonta Club held yesterday in the Dodge Hotel, the former language instructor at the United States Naval Academy told how 8 and 9 year old children who were born during the war are unable to stand or walk because of malnutrition.

Born in France, De Lascases came to this country in 1909. At the outbreak of World War I, he joined a Canadian platoon to fight in the trenches. Later he was transferred to the French army where he taught aviation. He also participated in World War II.

Pointing out that the "children of today make the decisions of tomorrow," he said that "food could be a means of building future friendships."

Following Mr. De Lascases' appeal for the orphaned children, Zontians responded with an on-spot donation of $45, which was presented to Mme. Bonnet, wife of the French Ambassador, by the speaker.

Included on the Bastile Day program was group singing of the "Marseillaise."

Mrs. Alice Sheldon, newly installed president, presided, and Dr. Inez Wilber, program chairman, introduced the speaker.

Sleek, Simple and Modern

Indoors or in the garden, functional, beautiful furniture is the key to gracious living, says Charm, the Magazine for the Business Girl. In its July issue, the magazine presents a pattern for a lounging chair designed especially for the business girl by Klaus Grabe, architect. Suitable for use in living room, bedroom or on the terrace, the chair is made of inexpensive, sturdy plywood, and upholstered with strips of webbing. Its lines are sleek, simple and modern.

A carpenter or lumber dealer can cut the wood to size for you, according to the pattern's specifications, and you can assemble the chair at home in a few short hours. Only the ability to handle a few simple tools is required.

To the Defense of Potatoes

The average-sized white potato contains only 100 calories, the same as can be found in a slice of bread and butter, an orange, a glass of milk or 1 tablespoon of gravy. So much for the fattening qualities. Against this lies the fact that the potato is rich in vitamins C and B, iron, phosphorous and other minerals, as well as good quality protein and starch; fuel foods. Eat the potato and cut down the hundred calories in some less valuable food.

News From Embassy Row

The Ambassador of Australia and Mrs. Makin are expected in town this weekend. The Ambassadress has been gone since last February when she flew to Australia for a visit. She and the Ambassador are coming on from San Francisco, where the latter has been attending the International Labor Conference.

SENORA DE ESPINOSA DE LOS MONTEROS, wife of the retiring Mexican Ambassador, is convalescing from illness at Doctors Hospital and is expected to return to the embassy in a few days.

Owing to her sudden illness her departure with the Ambassador and their family for Mexico City has been necessarily delayed. They were also obliged to cancel several farewell parties to be given in their honor.

EAST and West—met, mingled and had a congenial time at the American Newspaper Women's Club's tea yesterday honoring the elegant Maharani of Nabha and her family in the organization's headquarters, 1604 20th st. nw. Chatting amiably are (left to right) The Maharani of Nabha, India; Miss Grace McGerr, president of the ANWC. Prince Kharagh Singh, who recently graduated from Cambridge University in England; Princess Vilma, student at Mount Holyoke College, and Capt. Prince Baksh Singh, who has just finished a year at Cornell University

Maharani of Nabha Is Feted At Newspaper Women's Tea

By Genevieve Reynolds

MENTION Maharajah and most folk immediately invoke visions of fabulous wealth—gleaming silks and priceless jewels. Those expecting to find diamond earrings implanted in the nose or ruby bracelets encircling the ankles of the Maharani of Nabha, India, were doomed to disappointment when they turned out to meet or greet her Highness yesterday. Occasion was the American Newspaper Women's Club honoring the royal visitor and her three children, Princess Vilma, Prince Kharagh Singh and Capt. Prince Guru Baksh Singh.

Diplomatic, official and residential society plus women journalists found the royal quartet minus any exotic furbelows they might have conjured up. In fact, the Maharani confessed that she was rather surprised to see girls on the streets here wearing ankle bracelets. "We've thrown them away in India. There we considered it a form of slavery," she remarked laughingly.

'Tis true the Maharani is the only daughter of one of India's noblest ruling houses . . . the widow of the Maharajah of one of the richest principalities of the Punjab, which is known as India's Garden of Eden.

But what the fourth estate and society met were a group of elegant cosmopolites who are interested in world affairs.

For example, since coming to the States, the Maharani has managed to sandwich in two political conventions. She went to both the Democratic and Republican conclaves on the second day of their respective openings . . . "so as not to show favoritism," she mused aloud at the tea.

Queried about her home in India, Her Highness said that she had air conditioning and modern equipped kitchen. Then she quickly added, "All the embassies in New Delhi, also have air conditioning."

Mrs. Robert Freer was in charge of the tea and cocktail dispensers. Taking turns at the punch bowl were Mrs. Morris Cafritz, who will be off in a few days with her husband for a three weeks' cruise to Europe; Mrs. Irene Caldwell, Senora de Caceres, wife of the Honduran Ambassador; Mrs. William Pope Anderson 3d, Mrs. Alva Brewer, Mrs. Anthony McAuliffe, Mrs. Clark Howell Woodward, and Mrs. Gordon Young.

Sans ostentatious gems, the Maharani and her willowy, handsome daughter, Princess Vilma, made a colorful pair in their silk saris as they stood in the receiving line with the club's president, Miss Grace McGerr, and Mrs. Tomas Cajigas, who hostessed the event.

Miss Kathleen Quinn and George O'Neill were married yesterday at St. Matthew's Cathedral. The Rev. Milton Schellenberg officiated at the nuptial Mass and a wedding breakfast followed at the Carlton Hotel.

Mrs. O'Neill is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Quinn of New York City, and her husband is the son of Mrs. William O'Neill of New York and the late Mr. O'Neill.

The bride wore an ankle-length gown of cinnamon-color Chantilly lace. Her sister, Mrs. Eugenia Desmond, was matron of honor, and Jack Anderson of New York was best man.

Mrs. O'Neill attended the Blessed Sacrament School in New York, and during the war she entertained the troops in the European theater. Here recently she was a vocalist in the Metronome Room at the Wardman Park Hotel.

Mr. O'Neill, former lieutenant in the AAF, attended Rutgers College. During the war, he flew a P-47, with 55 missions and numerous decorations to his credit.

The couple will make their home in New York City.

Edmonds—Bew

Mrs. Marion Osborne Bew, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Julian Pleasants Osborne of Washington, was married yesterday to Caston Coles Edmonds of New York City.

The bride is the granddaughter of Mrs. Charles Henry Balfour of Norfolk, Va., and the sister of Julian Meade Osborne, who is now residing in Stockholm, Sweden.

Mr. Edmonds is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Owen Edmonds of New York, the brother of Mrs. Herbert Noble, also of New York, and of Stuart Coles Edmonds of Boston, Mass.

Klopman—Orlove

Miss Sylvia Orlove, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Israel Orlove, became the bride of Sidney B. Klopman on July 4. Rabbi Henry Segal officiated at the ceremony, which took place at the Hamilton Hotel.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of ivory satin fashioned with sweetheart neckline, edged in seed pearls, and a full skirt which fell into a long train. She carried a bouquet of white orchids.

Miss Shirley R. Gordon was maid of honor, and Elliott Klopman, brother of the bridegroom, was best man. The ushers were William S. Orlove, Henry Orlove, Paul Gordon and Sol Weisgal.

In Nova Scotia

Miss Carrie Hart and Mrs. Sara Levy have closed their apartment at Wardman Park, and are spending the summer at Digby Pines, Nova Scotia.

Guill—Demaree

Miss Doris Jane Demaree, daughter of Mrs. John Hudson Guill, became the bride of Charles Lee Guill, son of Mr. John Hudson Guill, July 10 in the Fairlington Methodist Church, the Rev. J. W. Leggett officiating.

The bride wore a gown of ivory satin trimmed with seed pearls. On her prayer book she carried a white orchid.

Betty Lewis attended the bride and William H. Schaefer served as best man. The ushers were John Hudson Guill, jr. and Edward Kainer.

Hearn—Bement

In a garden ceremony, Miss Madeline Bement and Thomas G. Hearn, jr., were married July 3 in Palto Alto, Calif. Mr. Hearn is the son of Maj. Gen. and Mrs. T. G. Hearn, and a grandson of the late Lieut. Gen. and Mrs. Edgar Jadwin. The couple will make their home in California.

Cohen—Frank

Miss Estelle Deborah Frank, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Abraham Frank of Washington, and Lester Philip Cohen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Julius Cohen also of Washington, were married July 11 in the Ohev Sholem Synagogue, the Rabbis Solomon Metz and Zemach Green officiating.

Given in marriage by her parents, the bride wore a candlelight satin gown. Her fingertip veil of illusion and lace was held by a beaded tiara.

Miss Shirley Posin was the maid of honor and the bridesmaids were Mrs. Gloria Yockelson, Mrs. Adele Saidman and Mrs. Sylvia Share. Harold Goodman served as best man and the ushers were Irving Share, Marvin Chernowsky and Archie Modlin.

Following a motor trip to New York State, the couple will reside in Washington.

Scott—Fisher

White flowers decorated Foundry Methodist Church yesterday for the wedding of Miss Margaret Louise Fisher and John Howard Scott. The Rev. Frederick Brown Harris officiated at the ceremony at 8 p. m. and a reception followed at Letts House adjoining the church.

Mrs. Scott is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Wellen Fisher, jr., of Chevy Chase, and her husband is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Willis Howard Scott of Glencoe, Ill. The bride was given in marriage by her father. Her gown was white satin with off-the-shoulder neckline, and her veil of illusion was held by a cap of Brittany lace. She carried a cascade bouquet of white gladioli and white orchids.

Miss Sally Chew Dessez was maid of honor, gowned in white organdy and carrying yellow gladioli and blue delphinium. The other attendants, Miss Cynthia Phillips and Miss Marian Scott, sister of the bridegroom, were dressed like the maid of honor, and carried peach gladioli with blue delphinium.

James A. Wech of Chicago was best man, and the ushers were John F. Wech, also of Chicago, and James L. Scott of Glencoe, Ill.

The bride and bridegroom attended Carleton College in Northfield, Minn. After a wedding trip through the Black Hills in South Dakota, they will make their home in Maryland.

Gott—Wright

Miss Barbara Jane Wright, daughter of Jacob T. L. Wright of Colesville, Md., was married July 9 to Richard F. Gott, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Gott of Forest Glen, Md. The ceremony took place in Forest Glen at St. John's Church with the Rev. Francis Lauriola officiating.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore white organdy over satin, trimmed with Irish lace. Her finger-tip length veil of illusion was held with an organdy coronet and her bouquet was of white roses and orchids. Mrs. Roland A. McManes was matron of honor and bridesmaids were Miss Anna Mary Cassedy and Miss Lois A. Simonton. Serving as best man for his brother was John Scholl Gott and ushering were Lockwood Wright and Terrence F. Gastelle.

Following the ceremony a reception took place at the bride's home. The newlyweds left later for a wedding trip to Rehoboth Beach, Del., and will make their home in Silver Spring.

Evans—Davis

Miss Glorous DeVeace Davis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William H. McCluskey, became the bride of William Joseph Evans, son of Mr. and Mrs. James B. Evans, on July 10 in Holy Trinity Church, the Rev. Laurence J. Kelly officiating.

The bride was attended by Mrs. John W. Huckert, and James B. Evans, jr., served his brother as best man.

After a two-week motor trip, the couple will reside in Brookside Manor, Md.

Ask Anne — About Removing Ink Stains

I spilled dark blue ink on a heavy white muslin bedspread. Soaking it in household bleach changed the spot to an orange color. How shall I proceed to remove the spot? H. P. A.

Since the chemicals in the bleach have changed the color of the ink, your chances of now removing it are really not good. The only possible way would be to use another bleach—perhaps sodium perborate or one of the dye removing agents sold where dyes are sold. Both come in powder form. Dampen the area and sprinkle powder on it, rubbing in well. When it has remained on the stain for 20 minutes, rinse very thoroughly. If the stain is lightened, but not completely removed, the treatment may be repeated.

Several months ago, I purchased several copper clad stainless steel pots. Recently, I have noticed that several pots have become slightly pitted on the inside. I've used mild soap at all times, as well as a metal cleaner. Do you think that fine steel wool would be easier on the pots or do you think there may be a defect in the pot? I always dry the pots well. C. C.

A dealer who sells this make of kitchen utensil tells me that your complaint is a most unusual one since these pots are of high quality. Because they so seldom receive complaints on them, he is sure yours were in some way defective and would be replaced by the dealer from whom they were purchased.

I have painted the doors and drawers of my kitchen cabinets blue, high gloss, to match my walls. I intend to paint Pennsylvania Dutch designs on them with colors-in-oil mixed with high gloss paint. I want to use some kind of protective coating over them. I had thought of varnish, but even clear varnish discolors light paint and shellac chips so with the hard wear the doors and drawers would get. There may be something else I don't know about. Please advise me. H. H. M. jr.

Spar would offer the most protection to the designs, but, as you suggest, some brands of varnish are slightly discolored. However, there are high grade spar varnishes on the market which are very light, almost colorless. If you are able to find a paint dealer in your town who is as accomodating as one with whom I have discussed your problem, he might open the can for you before purchasing and drop a drop or two of the varnish on glass. In this way you can determine the amount of pigment in the varnish and decide if it would noticeably affect the color of your design.

The tile (unglazed) bathroom floor in our new house has minute, barely visible scratches over the entire surface, apparently made by workmen tracking in sand during the building operations. The floor is difficult to wash and must be scrubbed with a stiff brush and scouring powder to remove the dirt in the scratches. Can you suggest some substance (plastic or other) that it can be coated with to give it a smooth surface? F. C. P.

Any of the clear coatings which are sold for linoleums could be applied to the tile to smooth it. Or, you could apply a coat of clear lacquer. Lacquers, you know, have some of the same ingredients as are found in plastics. Here's one observation which should be made in connection with the roughness of your bathroom floor: Most bathroom floor tiles are somewhat rough to lessen the chance of slipping. So, take care not to make the floor so slick that you might suffer a painful fall if you should walk on it with wet feet.

I have a bathing suit, the front of which is of a lightweight canvas-like material and the back is an elastic material—the front white with a red design and the back all red. When I washed it after the first wearing, most of the "body" or stiffness came out of the front. Is there some way I could bring it back in shape in front without hurting the elastic in the back? Bathing alone didn't seem to do the damage, I believe it was the soap I washed it with. I used a mild powder soap. E. B. W.

Any material which you could dip this suit in at home to restore stiffness would come out the minute the suit got wet. If you feel the suit is unusable in its present condition, I would suggest you write to the manufacturer at 443 South San Pedro, Los Angeles, Calif., and ask for suggestions for restoring the original stiffness to the front.

Will you help me about some very old "antique" furniture I have in storage? It is a very old sofa (the back and seat is upholstered) and is all right, but the broad arms which were veneered in mahogany (or walnut) have peeled off to some extent, leaving the base wood, which is not very pretty. Could I lacquer the whole wooden part, so as not to show too much where the veneer has been removed? I saw somewhere that black lacquer might be presentable and I liked the idea, but have never tried it, and I know nothing of lacquer. I do not wish to go to the expense of an antique finisher. F. R. S.

If the spots where the veneer has peeled are not too large, perhaps they can be filled in with stick shellac in a color to match the wood. (Shellac in wood colors can be purchased in paint and hardware stores.) To apply the shellac, heat a tool such as a cheap screwdriver, hold it to the stick of shellac and when it is softened carry it to the break on the screwdriver. Work it into the break with the fingers while soft. Apply enough to more than fill the breaks and when thoroughly hard sand away excess until the surface is completely smooth. If so much of the veneer is gone that you cannot hope to completely replace it with stick shellac, maybe you can add enough shellac to smooth the roughened edges at least. It would seem that these edges must be smoothed in some such manner before attempting to apply any sort of finish.

When you have achieved a smooth surface, or at least smoothed the edges, you can apply either varnish or, if you wish, lacquer or enamel. It would seem to me that your sofa would have a more pleasing appearance if you could refinish the arms in somewhat the same wood color they were originally.

Is there a firm in this area which does maintenance work on waxed floor? My hardwood floors floor me, and I'd like to turn over their care to a firm which can afford power equipment to clean, rewax, and buff them routinely, for a nominal fee? M. B. L.

Yes, there are a number of firms that offer such service listed under "Floors — Material — Laying and Refinishing" in the yellow section of the telephone book. Contact one of those that advertises waxing and talk over your problem with a firm representative.

Attention H. D. P.: Other readers have sent in several suggestions on where to buy sparklers to light gas stoves. They advise they are obtainable at: a large 5c and 10c store in the 1200 block of F st. nw.; in 10c stores at the corner of Albemarle and Wisconsin ave. nw., 7th and D nw., and 14th st. near Park rd. nw.; in the hardware section of a department store on 7th st. (telephone, National 5100), and through chemical supply houses, who sell them for use in lighting Bunsen burners in laboratories. Thanks to all of you for sending in this information.

'Joker' Wins a Championship

By Tom Kelley—The Washington Post

PRIDE OF THE TERRIERS: While Mrs. John H. Peak holds a piece of liver high as an inducement, Page Boy Grand-Sun takes the stance of the Boston Terrier Champion he is, while Mr. Peak looks on. "We're proud of our baby," says Mrs. Peak of the dog, which is Washington's second Boston Terrier champion.

Page Boy Grand-Sun (his everyday name is "Joker") is dark brindle with white markings, 21 months old and weighs less than 15 pounds. "Joker" won his last point at South Bend, Ind., overcoming the last hurdle in the champion race. A dog becomes a champion after he has accumulated 15 points in major dog shows of which there are at least two 3-point scorings under different judges. "Joker" won his required number in approximately three months.

The Washington champ has won points in St. Joseph, Mo.; Ottumwa, Iowa; Peoria, Ill.; Minneapolis, Minn.; Lincoln, Nebr.; Williamsport, Pa.; and South Bend, Ind. "Joker" has been confirmed by the American Kennel Club.

Keenly interested in Boston Terriers (they have three other dogs besides "Joker") Mr. Peak is president of the Boston Terrier Club of Washington and Mrs. Peak is the treasurer.

Separating Children Teaches Biting, Kicking Doesn't Pay

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

The small child has emotions and often unpleasant ways in which he expresses them. At about 2 years of age his desire to act may take the form of biting or kicking any hapless victim who is close to him.

Sometimes it is possible to see that this behavior is completely without malice. His emotion may be a welcoming one, and yet he takes a painful bite in the arm of the companion he is trying to greet.

Small children are not conscious of pain. They treat other children as they do their dolls, their toy animals or their blocks. They may fondle them, kiss them lovingly at one moment, and the next sink their teeth into them.

Children learn by experience that other humans are not as insensible as their toys. If the bitten child bites back, they learn that this act is accompanied by pain. If the child runs home crying, they learn discretion if they miss the small companion.

They learn nothing valuable if the parent attempts to show them how it feels to bite and puts her own teeth into their flesh. This is not only beneath the dignity of a kind parent, but it does not persuade the child that this is repre*hensible conduct and simply not done. If her arguments are to be* truly persuasive, then she mustn't be guilty of such conduct herself.

When this episode takes place the mother should be quick to separate her child from his companion. She should explain that, "We don't bite people. We don't kick people. We don't throw sand in their eyes. Any little boy, or girl, who doesn't know this, isn't old enough to play with other children."

This latter is the situation which gives him pause. He wants companionship. He is desoluate when separated from other children. So, if he must guard against biting and kicking, he will do so. He won't express his emotions in these particular ways, because the penalty falls hardest on him. It doesn't take long for him to learn there are some ways of acting of which no one approves.

Shopping for Corn

When you shop for fresh corn, remember that a slender ear may have just as much kernel as a large coarse ear, because of variation in the size of the cob.

If the husk is present, according to marketing experts of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, it should be fresh and green. Dry, yellowed, or straw-colored husks are an indication of age or damage. When corn is packed for shipment, the ear heats rapidly. Heating causes yellowing and drying out of the husk as well as toughening, discoloration, loss of flavor, and shriveling of the kernels.

If the corn you're considering shows worm injury, this is not serious if it is confined to the tips. Usualy the injured portion can be removed with little waste. Worm injury is more objectionable, however, if it occurs along the side of the ear.

In general, the best way to judge corn quality is to pull back the husk and take a look at the kernels. If the ears are well filled with bright, plump, milky kernels, just firm enough to offer slight resistance to pressure, the corn is probably good.

Who's that?
My friend Gus, the Ghost. I reversed the charges--
Gosh, has his haunted house got a phone?
He's at your house. Didn't I tell you, m'boy, I rented your room while you're up here at your grandmother's?
Mom and Pop won't want him there, Mr. O'Malley.
I don't see why not. However, he's leaving immediately. I have a perfect part for Gus in our summer play... Tell Grandma he's on his way here.

IT WAS THE ONLY WAY TO GET UNDER HIS SKIN, MICKEY! I KNEW I HAD TO GET HIM MAD!
WELL, YOU SURE GOT HIM MAD, TOM! HE'S GOING TO SHOW YOU, ALL RIGHT!
WELL, THAT'S WHAT WE WANT! SAY--WHY ARE YOU TAKING THIS STREET--AREN'T WE GOING HOME?
NOT YET, TOM! WE OUGHT TO HAVE A UNIFORM TO GIVE TO HIM--IT MIGHT HELP! SO I'M GOING TO STOP AT PINKIE'S--HE'S OPEN UNTIL TEN!
YES, MICKEY--I'VE GOT THOSE UNIFORMS RIGHT IN STOCK--ALL I'LL HAVE TO DO IS PUT ON THE LETTERING!
SWELL, PINKIE! AND CAN YOU HAVE IT READY TOMORROW NIGHT?
SURE--BUT WHY DON'T YOU JUST GIVE HIM THE UNIFORM OF THE BOY HE REPLACES? I WANT TO SELL STUFF, BUT I KNOW THAT PHIL IS LAYIN' OUT THE DOUGH AND-- UNCLE PHIL WON'T MIND PAYIN' FOR ONE MORE, PINKIE! THOSE UNIFORMS MEAN A LOT TO THOSE KIDS--WE DON'T WANT TO TAKE ANY OF 'EM AWAY!

MARK TRAIL

THE DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

Restaurant Prices Were Never That Low

The other day I mentioned that Mabel N. Wright of 4659 Benning rd. ne. was trying to remember the words to a song called "I Had But Fifty Cents."

Sixteen District Liners have dug down in their memories and come to Mabel's rescue.

No two of them agree on the exact wording of the entire song, but all are in general agreement on its salient points. And because of space limitations, we'll have to speak in terms of composite generalities.

Molly A. Feece of 1348 Euclid st. nw. was the only one who supplied the preamble. "She's a pretty little dear and she lives uptown; her daddy is a butcher and his name is Brown."

Miss Brown's appetite is described in the next passage, courtesy of George A. Jervis of 6631 East ave., Chevy Chase, Md.; Mrs. C. A. Sharpe, 136½ Mitchell st., 'way down in Greensboro, N. C.; L. K. D.; and Mrs. W. M. Furlow, jr., of 210 S. Cleveland st., Arlington, Va.:

"She said she wasn't hungry, but this is what she eat (don't make it 'ate' Mr. Printer, the song says 'eat'):

"A dozen raw, a plate of slaw, a chicken and a roast; some applesass and 'sparagrass, and soft-shelled crabs on toast; a big box stew and crackers, too; her appetite was immense! And when she called for pie, I thought I'd die, for I had but fifty cents."

Shirley Ebaugh of 3768 W st. nw, agrees that it's supposed to be "a big box stew," and cites published authority. But "an oyster stew" is considered authentic by several—among them Constance Steel of 1743 P st. nw.; Nellie C. Back of 123 Philo ave., Takoma Park, Md.; and Mrs. G. Robert Gray of Poolesville, Md. And just for good measure, Mrs. Lillian Gorman of 3951 Blaine st. ne., adds "a fancy Boston roast" to the menu, and recalls that the little lady washed her meal down with:

"A whiskey skin, a glass of gin, which made me shake with fear; a ginger pop, with rum on top, a schooner then of beer; a glass of ale, a gin cocktail, she should have had more sense; when she called for more, I fell on the floor, for I had but fifty cents."

At this point eight other District Liners remind us what happened when the waiter got the bad news. For this information we're indebted to W. H. (Top O' the Hill Apiary) Willard of Berwyn, Md.; Mrs. Mary E. Mack of 338 18th st. ne.; Bernard R. (FWA) Mullady; Anna Margulin of 938 Longfellow st. nw.; Mrs. Rodney M. Bliss of 3010 Wisconsin ave. nw.; Harold M. Wells of 4418 Greenwich pkwy. nw.; J. L. Jordan of Colonial Beach, Va., and Mrs. M. W. Federline of 7755 Georgetown rd., Bethesda, Md. They say the waiter became so unhappy:

"He tore my clothes, he smashed my nose, he hit me on the jaw. He gave me a prize of two black eyes, and with me swept the floor; he took me where my pants hung loose, and threw me over the fence; take my advice, don't try it twice, if you've got but fifty cents."

And at current prices, don't even try it if you have 10 times that much.

Several weeks ago Mary Burns of 2013 New Hampshire ave. nw. asked about another song. Twice as many District Liners recognized that one as "Old Folks"—and that's why it has taken me so long to carry the answer.

There's never enough space for this one—unless I throw out everything else and MAKE space for it.

Most of our respondents say that the song was recorded—by Bing Crosby, by Russ Morgan, by Arthur Godfrey, by Ozzie Nelson, by Larry Clinton and several others.

But as usual, there's no agreement as to the exact wording. The most frequently quoted passages are:

"I don't know about Old Folks did he fight for the Blue or the Gray? Seems I once heard him mention, he lived on a pension, he'd never come right out and say."

Also: "Some day there'll be no more Old Folks; what a lonely old world this will be; children's voices at play will be stilled for a day, the day they take Old Folks away."

Songs like that seem to inspire District Liners to write particularly nice letters, and I wish I could offer a personal word of thanks to these friends who helped to identify Old Folks for us:

W. Ralph Gray of 6510 20th ave., Hyattsville, Md.; Ensign Richard Tubbs, USNR, Naval Gun Factory; Elinor P. Griest of 1808 Connecticut ave. nw., Maureen Marlowe of 610 Shoreham Building, Sportscaster Jimmy Gibbons, George A. and Evelyn Reynolds of 2220 Bryan pl. se., Myrtle M. Wagner of 3323 Legation st. nw.

Roland Goulait of Andrews Field, Martha Cherry of 218 Elm st., Chevy Chase, Md.; Margaret C. Grambo of 8001 Blair Mill dr., Silver Spring, Md.; Walter J. McGibbon of 4884 MacArthur blvd. nw., Betty Reynolds, Shamus K. Barres of 603 South Carolina ave. se., Mrs. E. V. and Jean Whitney, Silver Spring, Md.

Ray E. Hill of 221 Florida ave. nw., Marty Greenberg of 4011 21st st. ne., Mrs. Warren Andrew, George R. Linhart of 4827 Chevy Chase dr., Chevy Chase, Md.; Robert W. White of 3811 S st. nw., M. B. Evans, Pauline McAllister of 1830 17th st. nw.

Mrs. W. Richard Glavin of 4105 S. 32d rd., Arlington, Va.; A. A. R. of 1834 K st. nw., Claudia J. Gauck of 1 Helm Green sw., D. T. Tichnell of West Lanham Hills, Md.; Sarah Gay Hicks of 610 Rock Creek Church rd. nw.

G. P. Granger of 6701 Barr rd., Fairway Hills, Md.; Samuel Taylor of 1117 Queen st., Alexandria, Va.; Arlyn G. Sweeney of 1443 Smith pl. se., Irma Coons of 5462 30th st. nw., Dot Prince of 1723 P st. nw. and John A. Spiess of 6114 Nevada ave. nw.

Leonard Lyons . . .

For the first time since the founding of the Esquire magazine enterprises, the name of Arnold Gingrich no longer appears on any of the mastheads. The contract he signed three years ago, when he left the editor's post and agreed not to work for any other magazine, now has expired . . . Gen. Eisenhower said last week: "All I want is to be a good president of Columbia University and to break 80 in golf" . . . Bill Perlberg, who once refused to sign Cornel Wilde, was a delegate to the 1944 Democratic convention. "My two greatest mistakes," Perlberg insists, "were Cornel Wilde and Harry S. Truman."

George Hackenschmidt, the former heavyweight wrestling champion of the world, who now is over 70, has embarked on a new career—writing. And the subject he chose to write about is philosophy in these changing times. Hackenschmidt wrote a long book about it and wanted some honest criticism. He, therefore, sent it to George Bernard Shaw and requested a frank opinion from him . . . In due time Hackenschmidt received a reply from the 92-year-old Shaw, and still is trying to determine whether it was encouraging or not. "This isn't bad," was Shaw's comment, "not bad at all—for all ex-wrestling champion."

Colonel McCormick, the Chicago publisher who is America's No. 1 Anglophobe, is flying to England in his own plane, a converted bomber. In London he'll be feted by Lord Rothermere, the British publisher . . . Mrs. Florence Hubbard, the Chicago widow who won a fortune in prizes by identifying Jack Benny as "The Walking Man" on the "Truth or Consequences" program, has received more than $1000 worth of additional gifts from well-wishers throughout the country. Her lawyer disposed of all the items she didn't want to keep . . . Mrs. George Z. Medalie, whose husband was responsible for the rise of Thomas E. Dewey, met Mrs. Shri Nehru, cousin of the Indian Premier. They were to meet at the Republican convention, but Carroll Reece pinned a "Taft" button on Mrs. Nehru, and Mrs. Medalie couldn't recognize her.

Philadelphia.—Thoughts on watching a Democratic Convention—The Exercycle girl in the store window on Chestnut st. is still pedaling her exercise machine up and down. She's been doing it ever since the Republican Convention and she doesn't get tired . . . Sam Rayburn, Senator Barkley et al are still extolling the virtues of Franklin Roosevelt. The Exercycle girl is mechanized, but Rayburn, Barkley et al aren't. However, they don't get tired either . . . Roosevelt is gone now. It's the first convention without him in 16 years, but they keep talking about him . . . Talking but not necessarily doing . . . Truman talks about him, but fires most of the old Roosevelt team . . . Oscar Ewing talks about him; Van Heflin talks about him, Congressman Mike Kerwin talks about him. But the real fact is that, despite the talk, the Roosevelt family isn't in tune with Truman and never will be. Jimmy Roosevelt did his best for Eisenhower. So did Elliott, and, for a time, so did Franklin, jr. Mrs. Roosevelt is sour on Truman, but has been too polite to say so . . . In brief, this is the end—the end of the Roosevelt era, the winning era for the Democrats. They still make speeches about him, and in their hearts they know they can't win without him.

Contrasts between 1944 and 1948—Most famous phrase of the 1944 campaign was "clear it with Sidney," which made Jimmy Byrnes so boiling mad. The phrase came from Roosevelt's alleged remark when Jimmy wanted to be his vice presidential running mate and FDR is supposed to have advised him to clear it with Sidney Hillman, then head of the CIO-PAC . . . Byrnes didn't clear it, and was not nominated, which was a tragedy because the country would have been immeasurably better off . . . Today Jimmy is down in South Carolina, where he has a new farm with a lot of trees to clear away; Sidney Hillman is dead, and labor, which once played such a role at Democratic conventions, doesn't seem to be around any more . . . Phil Murray is sitting it out at Pittsburgh, apparently waiting for divine guidance. Dan Tobin, who for years helped write Democratic platforms, this year refused to be a delegate . . . Long-range observers around the convention lobbies will tell you that labor has a lot to learn—when it comes to politics. No man ever went down the line harder for labor than Senator Claude Pepper of Florida, yet the CIO sat on the sidelines listlessly watching his campaign . . . Other Senators may remember that listlessness next time labor needs a friend on the Senate floor.

There's Chip Robert of Georgia over there in the lobby of the Warwick Hotel, just back from Singapore, where he air-expressed a snake to his wife Evie. Evie used to fancy herself a snake charmer. Now she charms Democrats. By the time the snake arrived in Washington, however, and had a chance to be charmed by Evie, it was almost dead. Air-sickness . . . Says Chip: "If you have any dangerous snakes around give 'em an airplane ride. It's the best way to kill them" . . . Chip looks healthier now that he doesn't have to raise money for the Democrats. (He used to be Democratic treasurer.) So does George Killion, who succeeded him. George is now head of the American President Steamship Lines and says there's nothing like a trip across the Pacific for a summer's vacation . . . Money raising for the coming Truman campaign is going to be tough. Mrs. Perle Mesta, the Oklahoma oil heiress who throws those big parties for the Trumans, is counted on for a big slice of dough. So are Secretary of Defense Forrestal and Ambassador Averell Harriman. They're supposed to ante up half a million, and if they don't come through it'll be bad, for almost nobody else will.

The late Josephus Daniels was so right. It takes a big leader, a great man, to weld together the heterogeneous, warring factions of the Democratic Party. They're too individualist, in many respects so American. They're far too happy scrapping . . . Also, of course, some of them have got old and fat and complacent. No longer are they the young, vigorous, fighting party of Franklin Roosevelt . . . The days when new, fresh, invigorating youngsters would come to Washington and work almost for nothing just for the joy of helping their country are over . . . Yet that doesn't detract from the great job they once did. The Republicans can howl their heads off about the New Deal, but they'll never dare repeal the New Deal laws—the SEC, social security, REA, old-age pensions, soil erosion, support for farm prices . . . Those were days of never-ending battles for the underdog . . . The Democratic Party today is still the champion of the underdog—only some of them are now so tired, so uninspired, so old . . .

Excess Economy

We save our money for the day . . . When we may take a rest . . . And when at last we can afford . . . To buy the very best . . . And in a way this plan is good . . . For people to pursue . . . With perseverance great enough . . . To see the project through . . . Provided we protect ourselves . . . From cold, financial facts . . . And do not fail to take some time . . . To play and to relax . . . But all too often we are so . . . Intent upon our goal . . . That we neglect the comforts of . . . The body and the soul . . . And when our hoard has reached the height . . . Of all we want to buy . . . Our feebleness informs us it . . . Is almost time to die.
